NEW PM TO BE TESTED IN JUNE MINI-ELECTION

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal byelections will be held Monday, June 17, to fill all four seats now vacant in the House, Prime Minister Pearson announced today.

The four byelections will be the first test of strength at the polls for Mr. Pearson's successor, to be chosen at a Liberal leadership convention here April 4 to 6.

Voters will go to the polls in three Quebec ridings, Montreal St. Jacques, Matapedia-Matane and Sherbrooke, and one in Ontario, Grey-Bruce.

Montreal St. Jacques and Matapedia-Matane were last held by the Liberals; Sherbrooke by independent Maurice Allard, and Grey-Bruce by the Conservatives.

PROTEST VOTE

Labor Suffers Crushing Blow

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP)—The Labor government has been crushed deeper into a trough of troubles by 55,341 soured English voters.

Their stampeding change of political sympathies trampled Labor out of three parliamentary seats and swept a fourth back to the Conservatives in byelections Thursday.

The four-seat slam by the Tories left Labor holding a bitter political record: It is the first time this century a party has lost three seats in a single day's byelections.

The 55,341 voters account for the total of ballots lost to Labor Thursday through switched loyalties or abstentions since the general election just two years ago Sunday. Total Labor poll in the three Midlands ridings and one London constituency was sliced by more than half to 49,945 from 105,286.

PRODIGIOUS LOSSES

Labor's vote plummeted by about 16,000 in both Dudley and neighboring Meriden, by 10,000 in London's Acton and more than 13,000 in Warwick and Leamington, a seat held by former prime minister Sir Anthony Eden for 34 years until 1957 and the only safely-Tory community of the four.

Prime Minister Wilson's government retains a handy 75-seat majority in the House of Commons despite the lengthening series of byelection setbacks. In 20 months, Labor has lost nine of 12 seats tested in byelections while the Tories have held onto five of theirs.

The massive turning away from Labor demonstrated again Thursday is another challenge to a government just shaken by the resignation as foreign secretary of George Brown, deputy leader of the parliamentary Labor party, and plagued by incipient internal revolt.

Although the anti-government swing had been predicted, Labor officials and some neutrals had felt the government's popular decline might be levelling off — especially after the stringent but widely-praised March 19 budget.

OUST WILSON AIDE

Dudley, bailiwick of Wilson aide George Wigg until his recent elevation to the peerage, had been considered a safe Labor seat. The other three polls resulted from deaths.

Chartered accountant Don Williams overwhelmed Wigg's would-have-been successor, financial consultant John Gilbert, by 28,016 to 16,360.

In Acton, Tory businessman Kenneth Baker beat Labor's Walter Johnson 12,242 to 8,522.

BIG BLASTS FOLLOW RAID

HANOI (AFP)—U.S. planes flew a lightning raid today against the Hanoi area.

There were two heavy explosions on the city's southeastern outskirts.

Hanoi's anti-aircraft defences all opened up aganist the attackers who were apparently flying low.

Today's targets were apparently located towards the Red River, to the southeast. It was the second daylight raid in recent weeks.

Bombing Pause Near?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. congressman said today he believes President Johnson is considering a new 30-day pause in the bombing of North Vietnam.

Rep. Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, chairman of the house Republican conference composed of all GOP house members, did not give the source of his information.

Laird said he had heard speculation that a bombing pause might coincide with the Wisconsin primaries next Tuesday, but added, "I am not one who speculates along that line."

He then said that "there may be a bombing pause announced for a period of some 30 days just to give it a try, and then the president would be in a position where he could say to his critics that he had offered such a pause."

Laird charged that the administration was playing politics by postponing a request to Congress for additional money he said was needed to finance the Vietnam war.

Laird said administration leaders had delayed submitting a supplemental money request to avoid giving Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D—Minn.), campaigning as a peace candidate, an additional argument against Johnson's Vietnam policy.

Firebugs Plague Memphis In Wake of Race Outburst

By BILL JOHNSON

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Troop-protected firetrucks and stringent police patrols kept guard on Memphis today, but fires flickered sporadically in the wreckage left by a riot which claimed one life.

The violence began on historic Beale Street Thursday morning when a march by 6,000 Negroes, led by Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., in support of striking garbage collectors, turned into a riot and continued through the day and night despite a tightly-enforced curfew.

Another possible confrontation between marchers and police was expected today with Negro leaders saying they would stage another march—this one limited to sidewalks as were those held almost daily since the city's sanitation workers struck Feb. 12.

Only police, state trooper and national guard vehicles moved on the major streets during the night, but the alleys and back streets were alive with youths darting forth to set fires and stone firetrucks.

At midnight, a fire department spokesman said 148 fire alarms had been turned in from the downtown area.

In a sniping incident, five shots were fired at police stationed at the intersection of Beale Street and Hernando Avenue, the day's main trouble spot.

Policemen put on bulletproof vests, and national guardsmen with sniperscopes moved into the area. No further shots were reported.

Thursday's march began as a peaceful demonstration. Its leaders and police say the violence was the work of a splinter group of Negro youths.

YOUTH GROUP RIOTS

Frank Holloman, Memphis police director, said the trouble started when 200 youths separated from the main group and went on a window-breaking and looting binge. Police retaliated with clubs and riot gas.

In the struggle that followed and continued through the night, a 16-year-old Negro, Larry Payne, was shot to death. More than 150 arrests were made and at least 50 persons were injured—including five shot and one stabbed.

Holloman said he was told Payne was shot after charging a policeman with a butcher knife when the youth was caught looting.

The stabbing victim was an unidentified city bus driver, leading the Memphis transit authority to halt all bus service.

Gov. Buford Ellington ordered in 4,000-riot-trained national guardsmen and put another 8,000 on alert.

Israel, Jordan Clash Again Along UN Cease-Fire Front

Bombers Rock Arab Positions

Times News Services

TEL AVIV—Jordan and Israel today fought with tanks, artillery and mortars in a day-long battle the full 70-mile length of the Jordan River Valley.

Israeli planes swarmed across the Jordan River and bombed Jordanian gun positions following a border incident which each side blamed on the other.

The border is a cease-fire line established by the United Nations following the June war. A Jordanian military spokesman said four Israeli jet fighters were hit and seen falling in flames during the clash.

The battle began with rifle and machine-gun fire and gradually escalated to larger weapons as the war front expanded along the Jordan Valley from the Sea of Galilee in the north to the Dead Sea in the south.

During the day, Israeli planes intermittently bombed the village of Karameh, where Israel launched a major raid last week to destroy alleged terrorist bases.

Unlike the March 21 clash between the two nations, there was no invasion today by Israeli infantry.

One report said the fighting had stopped at sundown this evening.

An Israeli army spokesman charged that the Jordanians began firing machine-guns at Israeli settlements at 11:30 a.m. Israeli troops fired back, he said, and the Jordanians wheeled up artillery to bombard the settlements of Fesher, Beit Yosef and Yardena. The Israelis replied with their own artillery.

JORDAN BUYS U.S. WEAPONS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Jordan signed an agreement Thursday providing for renewal of U.S. arms shipments.

The state department said the pact was signed in the Jordanian capital of Amman and provided for shipment of aircraft and tanks to Jordan. The U.S. also sells arms to Israel.

Israeli Bombers Blast Jordan

Fighting halted around noon but erupted again a half hour later. At this point Israeli planes were dispatched to bomb the Jordanian guns, the spokesman said. He claimed there were no Israeli casualties.

Tension had filled the valley earlier in the day after four Israeli civilians were killed when their trailer, pulled by a tractor, hit a mine in the banana grove in Massada, south of Lake Galilee.

To the Arabs it looked as though war was impending again.

Before news of the air strike, press reports in Cairo, Beirut, Damascus, Amman and Bagdad had chorused the general feeling that Israel was about to hit Jordan again, and soon.

Israeli troops buildups were reported under way in the northern part of the Jordan Valley, and inhabitants on the Jordan side of the river were reported to evacuate their homes for safe ground.

The press also spoke of Israeli buildups along the ceasefire line with Syria, in the Sinai Desert and even along the quiet border with Lebanon.

Reports from Amman said King Hussein held a lengthy meeting at army general headquarters Thursday. In Beirut, President Charles Helou and Premier Abdullah Yafi discussed the situation with Arab League Secretary-General Abdel Khalek Hassouna.

Iraqi President Abdel Rahman Aref warned the Arabs that time was not on their side. In a speech, Aref said the mission of United Nations peace envoy Gunner Jarring was "useless" and the solution of the crisis lay in the hands of the Arabs. By that he meant another war.

The incidents today came eight days after Israeli forces slashed into Jordan, destroyed three guerrilla bases and killed 170 Arabs.

Earlier today an Israeli Army spokesman said machine-gun bursts were fired at two Israeli army jeeps and a command car near the occupied city of Gaza. He added there were no casualties.

In Beirut, Lebanon, A Palestinian commando group, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, claimed its raiders blew up four Israeli halftracks with mines.

In addition to the four persons killed when a trailer they were riding hit a mine, a fifth person, an American was wounded.

'We Want Phil' Chanters Cleared From Legislature

By JOHN MIKA

The spectators' galleries had to be cleared of some 70 chanting demonstrators Thursday while a trio of aircraft made a flypast over the Legislature's dome as a gesture of support for Phil Gaglardi.

The demonstrators, most of them elderly and a few carrying Bibles, chanted "we want Phil" in the galleries after having piled placards outside demanding his reinstatement as highways minister.

Mr. Gaglardi had made one of his few appearances in the legislature this session about three hours earlier but ducked out after shaking Premier Bennett's hand and telling reporters "I'll be back, see ya fellas."

Michael Latta, a Kamloops oil distributor who lives three blocks from Mr. Gaglardi, shouted from the galleries that the legislature was using "character assassination" against the former highways minister.

And Mrs. E. Graeper of Kamloops yelled down at the Socreds as the demonstrators were herded out on Speaker William Murray's command: "Lousy Communists. Phil is the best man of all of them . . . Phil has done more than all of them put together."

Although some cabinet ministers grinned sheepishly, Premier Bennett sat with a frozen smile on his face throughout the demonstration but he told reporters later his answer to their demand is: "I am satisfied with the present minister of highways."

Mr. Bennett took over the highways portfolio the previous Thursday when he announced the resignation of Mr. Gaglardi and his reappointment as a minister without portfolio.

Regret Demonstration: Bennett

The premier also made a formal statement regretting the incident at the reopening of the house following supper adjournment.

As premier of the province and leader of the government, I greatly regret the demonstration we had this afternoon," he said.

"Demonstrations of any kind at any time in any Parliament in the Commonwealth is a most regrettable situation for any reason," said Speaker Murray who ordered the house into recess while galleries were cleared for the first time in his career.

He said no charges are contemplated although demonstrators could be jailed "at the pleasure of the legislature."

Mr. Latta told reporters after the demonstration that it was "spontaneous" and had been conceived and arranged within the previous 48 hours. He said it included 30 persons from Kamloops and the rest from the Fraser Valley, Vancouver and Victoria.

He said he was one of the organizers but would not identify any others. He said he was in the petroleum products distribution business but would not identify the company.

(The Kamloops city directory identified him as president of Atlas Petroleum Products. An answer tabled in the legislature last Friday said Active Petroleum Products, which lists his name among two directors, was paid $1,201 for gasoline and $1,285 for diesel oil by the highways department during the present fiscal year.)

Mr. Latta said a series of petitions are being circulated around the province to give "tremendous support for Phil Gaglardi" which will be presented to Mr. Bennett.

'Financial Support of Party'

He said the demonstration and a further campaign for Mr. Gaglardi "has the moral and financial support of the Social Credit party" and others.

He said he was not active in the party but helped organize the protest "because of the past years of abuse of Phil Gaglardi."

Mr. Latta said Mr. Bennett "has done an admirable job with the government and heading the government" and the demonstrators were not upset with his role in Mr. Gaglardi's resignation but he was sure "he heard our message" during the chanting.

"We feel he had to accept the resignation to take the pressure off the party," he said.

Mr. Gaglardi was "not that ill" that he had to resign, he said.

Asked his views of the Lear jet flight to Dallas with Mr. Gaglardi's daughter-in-law and grandson, Mr. Latta said, "I don't want to comment on that. That's a controversial thing."

The demonstrators formed a circle in the rotunda of the

WIRE BRIEFS

Killy Is Champion

ROSSLAND (AP) — Jean Claude Killy of France won his second straight World Cup ski title today as he moved into unofficial first place in early stages of the second run of the men's slalom at the Red Mountain international ski meet.

Wins Curling Title

Thousands Flee Fires

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fires broke out today in two of the largest department stores on Chicago's famed State Street. Thousands of customers and employees fled the flames down stairwells filled with blinding smoke.

There were no injuries reported.

Judgment Reserved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judgment has been reserved in the hearing here into the grounding of the B.C. government ferry, Queen of Prince Rupert. The ferry is back in service.

Hydro Holds Line On Rates

Electricity and natural gas rates of B.C. Hydro will remain unchanged "at this time," the government agency said in a statement Thursday.

Despite a jump of 12 per cent in ordinary operating costs in the past fiscal year, Hydro will hold the line on rates and on its transit fares, said co-chairmen Gordon Shrum and Hugh Keenleyside.

"Several months ago it seemed almost certain that rates would have to be increased this spring," said Dr. Shrum.

But by curtailing expenses and "introducing cost-saving procedures wherever possible" an increase has been avoided," he said.

The last increase in electricity rates was March 31, 1967, when B.C. Hydro announced a hike of half a cent per kilowatt hour, or up to $1.50 a month extra to a domestic consumer bill.

The increase followed a series of reductions since electric power came under public ownership.

Newfoundland Sales Tax Up

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld (CP)—Newfoundlanders were hit with $20,000,000 in tax increases today when the 1968-69 budget was brought down in the legislature.

The provincial sales tax is to be increased to 7 per cent from 6 and corporate income tax is being raised 1 per cent to 12 per cent.

As well, liquor, beer, tobacco, gasoline and some insurance policies will cost more as the result of Finance Minister James McGrath's first budget.

Two Dead, 16 Injured In Panama Rioting

PANAMA CITY (CP) — Normality returned to this politically torn capital today following wild rioting Thursday night that left two dead and at least 16 persons injured.

Stores that closed at the first signs of trouble reopened and traffic throughout the city seemed normal. The opposition has been trying to get a general strike started against the government.

A national guardsman shot and killed a looter and the second victim died in still unclear circumstances. Guard patrols were out in large numbers in the business district.

The commander of the guard, Brig.-Gen. Bolivar Vallarino, said in a communique today his troops would act vigorously, with "all means at their disposal," to put down any new disturbances. He blamed Thursday night's rioting on unscrupulous politicians, without making any specific reference to persons or organizations.

The main elements in Panama's trouble are two claimants to the presidency, a restive national guard and a decisive Supreme Court session starting Monday. Thursday night's rioting followed a silent protest by 2,000 women.

Westbank Revival Sought; Relocate in Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP) — The Bank of Western Canada will be revived and its head office located here if its backers can obtain a stay of proceedings in a Manitoba court which would wind up the bank's affairs, Sinclair M. Stevens of Toronto announced today.

Mr. Stevens said at a news conference that through Westbank Securities Ltd., a Regina-based firm, shareholders and former directors of the Bank of Western Canada have entered an agreement with York Lambton Corp. Ltd. of Toronto which would result in reactivation of the bank subject to court approval, Ottawa sanctions and ratification by the shareholders.

Also announced were details of the agreement with York Lambton which currently holds 50.1 per cent of the voting stock in the bank. The agreement provides for the sale of 28 per cent of that interest and an option for a further 12 per cent. York Lambton would eventually end up with a 10-per-cent interest in the bank.

B. A. Chalmers of Toronto, vice-president of York Lambton, said in a simultaneous news release that it would be York Lambton's intention to retain the 10-per-cent interest.

PREMIER WAS THERE

Also present at the conference was Premier Ross Thatcher who said there were two hurdles to be cleared before the bank could be established in Saskatchewan, one being the stay of proceedings.

The Court of Queen's Bench in Winnipeg has been asked to issue an order staying the proceedings for a period and on terms subject to decision by Mr. Justice Roy Matas.

Shareholders voted in Winnipeg last fall to wind up the bank which had capital of $13,000,000.

The fold-up action was not unexpected. The official notice of the Winnipeg meeting published last July listed winding up of the bank as one of the matters to be considered by the shareholders. The institution was the victim of a series of unhappy circumstances—first, frustration with Parliament, then serious internal disagreements and finally, a deteriorating image that smashed enthusiasm on which the bank was founded in 1966.

. . . CLEARED FROM LEGISLATURE

legislature after being ejected from the chamber and repeated their "we want Phil" chant before filing out of the building and back aboard their bus and cars while the MLAs were in recess for 10 minutes.

Stuck Out Tongues at Reporters

They arrived and left during a light rain. One of the elderly women used crutches and a couple screwed up their faces and stuck out tongues at a reporter.

Minister without portfolio Pat Jordan was seen talking to one of the demonstrators but she declined to discuss it later.

Among the demonstrators were:

Edith Scarff, Mr. Gaglardi's secretary here; Charles Bennett, a business associate of Mr. Gaglardi's sons Bob and Bill in the Del Cielo Investments land development at Kamloops, and Allan Parker, an Ashcroft service station operator.

One Social Credit MLA said he also saw several highways department workmen in the crowd but did not know if they were demonstrators.

Bob Reeds, a Vancouver restaurateur and pamphlateer whom Mr. Gaglardi had praised as an outstanding "newspaperman" during his one speech in the legislature this session, also was with the group.

Mr. Reeds said the flypast was to include an armada of "25 to 30 planes but I imagine the weather prevented them from coming."

Bert Toye, chief highways department pilot, told reporters he had not authorized any government planes or pilots to participate in the flypast but press gallery reporters first learned one was planned through a highways department pilot who asked to remain unidentified.

The planes involved appeared to be twin-engined Beechcraft, a twin-engined Piper and a single-engine Harvard.

CIRCLED HOUSE

The Beechcraft circled the legislature at about 800 feet three times then flew over the dome about 4:45 p.m., half an hour later than the flypast was supposed to start.

The other two planes flew over within five minutes of each other about 5:30 p.m., as the demonstrators arrived—also delayed apparently by missing the ferry connection—in private cars and a bus.

About 15 minutes later Mr. Latta interrupted Liberal Leader Ray Perrault by shouting from the gallery.

Deputy speaker Herb Bruch banged his gavel and shouted up to the galleries for quiet as the chanting began.

Speaker Murray, who had heard rumors there would be a demonstration, was on hand and quietly mounted the dais as the mace was hurriedly put in its place as his symbol of authority, and he ordered the recess so the galleries could be cleared.

'GOING TOO FAR'

David Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam), shaking with anger, shouted at the fixedly-smiling premier: "Is Clancey behind this? Did he hire the bus? Paint the signs?

"This is going too far," Mr. Barrett roared as several Socreds yelled back "hogwash".

Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) yelled "you can have him" at the demonstrators still calling for Mr. Gaglardi.

Later, William Clancey, a Vancouver public relations specialist closely associated with Mr. Bennett, denied he knew about the demonstration or had any part in arranging it.

"I was not there at the time and I don't know what happened but it shouldn't have happened," he said. "These things do more harm than good."

Mr. Clancey was present in the corridors shortly before the sitting began, when Mr. Gaglardi arrived after meeting the Social Credit caucus.

GET PAPERS

Mr. Gaglardi slipped into the chamber to shake hands with "the boss" and then came out and headed for his former office to get some more papers before returning to his Vancouver hotel suite for another appointment with a doctor.

Before leaving he told reporters he would buy the Lear jet for himself if he had the money, when asked his opinion of Premier Bennett's intention to get rid of the aircraft.

He was told of the rumors of the flypast.

"Isn't that lovely," he said. "I wish I were in one of them. Is the jet going to be there?"

He said he has not planned any holiday as suggested he would by Mr. Bennett last week.

"What I really need is to be able to work 17 or 18 hours a day to keep me busy," he said.

WASH STREETS

"If someone would give me a broom and asked me to wash the streets I'd be happy."

As he and Mr. Clancey walked to the Douglas Building, Mr. Gaglardi told reporters he didn't know if all the mementoes of his 16 years as highways minister had moved out of his former office yet nor what quarters he will be allocated as minister without portfolio.

"I'm not around here much anymore so I don't know what's going on," he said. "I'll be back, see ya fellows."

Both he and Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) were the only MLAs absent throughout the afternoon and night sittings. Mr. Capozzi flew to Palm Springs to fill a previous engagement as speaker at a poultry producers convention.

REACTIONS

Among the reactions to the demonstration:

"It was the worst demonstration of noisesome partisanship the house has witnessed in many years," said Opposition Leader Robert Strachan.

"A well-organized and disgraceful show," said Liberal Leader Perrault. "There are proper channels for protest without disrupting the parliamentary process."

"The NDP organized the demonstration to make us look bad," said John Tisdalle (SC—Saanich and The Islands).

"He must be kidding," said Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby-Edmonds).

"I always look pleased, did you expect me to look mad?" said Premier Bennett when asked why he was smiling through the disturbance.

"I had no knowledge of it. I was surprised by it and I regret the disturbance."

. . . LABOR

Four interventionists in Acton lost their £150 ($390) candidate deposits for failing to poll at least one-eighth of the total vote.

In marginal Meriden, party publications editor Keith Speed raised the Tory total to 33,344 votes from 29,250 while broadcaster Rodney MacFarquhar found only 18,081 of the 33,831 Labor supporters of two years ago.

The Conservative victory margin in Warwick-Leamington soared by more than 150 per cent, former MP Dudley Smith returning to a new seat with 28,914 votes to 6,992 for Labor's Ray Carter and 6,415 for Liberal Anthony Butcher.

Standings in the 630-seat Commons: Labor 351, Conservative 260, Liberas 12, Independents 4, vacancies 3. Government whips count the majority as 72 rather than 75 since they consider the speaker and two deputies as non-voters.

Two Fined $350 For Impairment

Manfred Morley, 779 Windfall, was fined $350 in central court today for impaired driving. His licence was suspended.

Court was told Morley was stopped at 12:10 this morning on Metchosin Road after he was seen weaving on the road and driving with two wheels on the shoulder.

Also fined $350 for impaired driving was Jack McIntyre, 42, of 315 Irving.

Court was told he was seen driving south on Cook St. March 21 at 11:50 p.m. RCMP officers in a car behind his told police his car had been weaving.

Have Confidence in Your Country—Pearson

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — In one of his last appearances outside Ottawa as prime minister, Lester B. Pearson called on the people of Canada Thursday night to maintain confidence in themselves and their country.

Speaking at a dinner sponsored by the Peterborough Liberal Association, the prime minister said Thursday night he found it difficult to agree with Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield's statement in Toronto Wednesday that people were losing confidence in Canada.

"This may be true, but there is no reason for it. Ours is the greatest country in the world with the greatest future."

He said he believed "we are perhaps losing confidence in ourselves and our ability to deal with the problems of Canada today."

"Perhaps we rely on the government to do too much for us. Perhaps we should begin to rely more on ourselves."

Earlier in the day, Mr. Pearson visited his boyhood home and met old classmates and other friends.

He recalled his years in Peterborough as "the second most happy time in my life."

Secret Plane In Communist Hands In North Vietnam

REDS GAIN SECRETS AS PLANE DOWNED

WASHINGTON (AP) — The loss of an F-111A, most advanced fighter-bomber developed by the U.S., may hand the Communists the benefits of $1,000,000,000 in U.S. research and development work.

Officials said Thursday the fate of the air force F-111A and its two crew members, listed as "overdue on a mission in Southeast Asia, was uncertain, but their worst fear appeared to be confirmed today. The North Vietnamese reported the plane was shot down in Ha Tinh province, North Vietnam.

The revolutionary swing-wing plane was part of a group of six F-111A fighter-bombers that saw combat for the first time this week.

If the plane did indeed go down in North Vietnam, it could mean an enormous coup for the Communists—depending on the plane's condition.

The Soviets are well along in swing-wing technology, sources said, so it appears they might not gain greatly in this respect from capture of a downed F-111A by their North Vietnamese or Pathet Lao friends in Laos.

ADVANCED EQUIPMENT

But the F-111A is packed with sophisticated gear, novel engines and other devices developed by U.S. scientists and technicians after years of effort.

Perhaps the most serious U.S. loss to the Communists—and a consequent bonanza for the North Vietnamese, Soviets and Chinese—would be the F-111A's secret "electronic countermeasures" equipment, designed to foil warning radar and thus permit the planes to penetrate to target and return home safely.

With samples of this gear, Communist engineers might learn how to deal with it—and thus compromise the effectiveness of the devices in the F-111A and other U.S. warplanes.

Among other highly complex and sophisticated mechanism aboard F-111A:

—A "terrain-following" radar which permits the plane to fly faster than sound only a few hundred feet above ground level, with automatic sensors keeping the plane clear of such obstacles as hills and mountains.

—Automated navigation and bombing system, combining use of radar and computers to keep the plane on precise course and enabling bombing of targets with record accuracy in darkness or foul weather.

CANADA 'RESCUED' AFTER DIEF ERA

LONDON (CP) — George V. Ferguson, editor-in-chief of the Montreal Star, says that John Diefenbaker's fall and Lester Pearson's "1963 arrival at the summit probably rescued Confederation."

Ferguson compares the prime ministerial records of the two men in an article pegged to Pearson's departure in The Round Table, an independent quarterly magazine dealing with Commonwealth affairs.

Of the "rescue" of Confederation, he writes that Diefenbaker in power progressively enraged the Liberal Lesage administration in Quebec and was regarded as taking no account of the "quiet revolution" in that province. It was no exaggeration to say that "another year of the Diefenbaker stand-pattism would have ended in rupture."

Pearson had perceived that Quebec must be met at least halfway and had instituted programs that met, at least partly, the new spirit of Quebec.

CHIEF POWER-HUNGRY

"To say therefore that he saved Confederation is, in the judgment of more than one observer, no more than the truth."

Of the Conservative leader, Ferguson says:

"If ever a man frittered away power it was he. He settled for the shadow, not the substance of achievement. He won smashing victories in Parliament but turned them to no purpose greater than the maintenance of power."

While he says the current government has been the greatest "reform" administration in Canada's history, he also turns a critical eye on Pearson.

"His record is by no means without flaw. . . . The reforms achieved have been accompanied by an amazing record of bad appointments, both in the public service and in the Senate. . . . He accepted and acted on advice which ran clearly counter to his deep reforming instincts."

Ferguson says Pearson paid off political debts with "unhappy and unnecessary deals" because he was more interested in ideas and policies than in the future health of the Liberal party.

"It may well be that some future heavy price will be paid by both the party and the nation for this studied disregard for the basic elements of political party strategy."

Remains on Parole

NEW YORK (AP)—A judge refused Wednesday to order deposed U.S. congressman Adam Clayton Powell jailed for contempt, allowing him to remain on parole pending appeal. Supreme Court Justice Arthur Markewich said, however, that if Powell's appeal fails and he then refuses to surrender himsself for a 30-day jail term "his career in New York politics would effectively terminate."

Why Students Turn to Drugs

A recent college graduate who has "been there" re-evaluates his experience with drugs and sounds a sombering warning in April Reader's Digest. "I've been through the whole business, and survived – which not everyone does," the anonymous author states. Read how he got started on marijuana, how he soon found himself out of step, unable to concentrate and always eager to "turn on" again.

From his own experience he tells why some students graduate from "pot" to LSD and others to hard narcotics.

CUTBACK OF ICC ASKED

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Canada plans to pull about a third of its personnel out of Vietnam because of difficulties faced by the International Control Commission.

Recall of the Canadians will require Canadian government approval.

In a dispatch from Ottawa, the newspaper says about 100 persons are scheduled to leave the ICC next month. It says the action involves 20 military officers and non-commissioned officers among the 59 Canadians working with the ICC.

The newspaper, quoting external affairs department sources, says staff will be reduced sharply at the Canadian ICC office in Saigon with further cutbacks expected in Laos.

The ICC was formed at the 1954 Geneva conference to supervise ceasefire operations between France and the Vietnamese. It was to observe violations and report infractions to Hanoi and Saigon and to the conference co-chairmen, Britain and Russia.

Fourteen countries, including Canada are supposed to finance ICC operations, but many are in arrears. Canada contributes $30,000 a year for general expenses, but has advanced substantial sums to keep the commission afloat. Ottawa sources, quoted by the Globe and Mail, estimate that the ICC currently owes Canada $800,000.

UNDERGROUND ORGANIZATION

World French Plot Alleged

WASHINGTON (CP) — A French underground movement with the code name of "Francophonie" aims "to unite all French-speaking peoples into a world-wide commonwealth that will rival the Anglo-Saxon or English-speaking world," says a spokesman for the American Security Council.

Canada, Belgium, Switzerland and Italy are feeling the results, says Dr. Walter Judd, a former Republican congressman and voice for the council, a private right-wing organization with a strong anti-Communist bias.

Judd, who links President Charles de Gaulle of France with the movement, makes his allegations about "Francophonie" in a statement prepared for broadcast on the council's five-times-weekly program. It is called Washington Report, broadcast over 1,100 U.S. stations.

Judd says an "ethnic conference was held in February . . . in Paris where delegates of self-styled liberation movements in Belgium, Canada, Italy and Switzerland gathered to meet with Gaullist agents and plan future activities."

Judd says "French agents have recently caused the collapse of the Belgian government and are openly calling for the cession of Walloon (French-speaking) territory to France, the merger of the Flemish with the Dutch in the neighboring Netherlands and the complete abolition of Belgium as a nation."

He alleges that France "over bitter but ineffective protests from Italy" is beaming French-language "propaganda" to 100,000 people in the Aosta Valley of Italy whose mother tongue is French.

Judd says followers of de Gaulle "explain quite candidly that they hope to destroy Belgium in retaliation for Belgium support of England's efforts to join the Common Market over de Gaulle's objections."

The Datsun Pickup is for people who like to drive both a hard bargain and a good truck. It packs a bonanza of practical features into a commonsense price.

The Datsun Pickup has a spunky overhead valve engine. It not only effortlessly moves the truck along at freeway speeds but has plenty in reserve when the load is heavy and the going rough. (This is the same power plant that won Datsun the 1967 Canadian Rally Championship, so you don't have to baby it.)

On the six foot bed you can park a full ton of anything and expect the pickup to haul it day in and day out . . . with real gas economy. And 100,000 mile reliability is no fiction. We know of a man in California who has put 175,000 miles on the clock without ever having a major repair. In 1967, Datsun sold 14,000 pickups in the U.S. . . . more than all other import trucks combined.

Other things you get for your investment are a full synchromesh 4-speed shift, battery-saving alternator, vinyl interior, heater-defroster, windshield washers, seat belts, twin outside mirrors and 6-ply whitewalls.

So come on. Be a tough customer. Datsun's.

Cause and Effect

THE OUTBREAK OF VIOLENCE in Memphis, Tennessee, yesterday was viewed in many quarters as inevitable. It was not known in which city the first of the summer's riots would take place, but the dominant impression in the United States seems to have been that one was bound to happen somewhere. The prediction is also that violence will continue to erupt in other communities as well.

Police forces all over the United States, according to frequent news items, have been readying themselves for the expected clashes with Negro demonstrators, and the whole problem has taken on a sense of inevitability. The "long hot summer" apparently has become not something to avoid but something to wait for. There appears to be a most untypical fatalism about the whole situation.

There have been, of course, many efforts to answer the questions raised by the Watts riots—the lack of education, the lack of opportunity, the so-called poverty trap which stultifies and frustrates the Negro. But nothing has been done on the scale which events demanded; the all-out remedies which so great an emergency obviously called for have not been applied.

If there was ignorance regarding the situation it should have been dissipated by the President's riot commission, which spelled out cause and effect in very plain language. But the extent of the crisis does not seem as yet to have been fully understood by many white Americans; there has not been the nation-wide move toward a solution which under the circumstances might have been expected.

The Vietnam war, with its astronomical expenditures, is cited as a major cause of delay in meeting the requirements of the domestic front. If this is in truth the reason, then the Far East campaign may well inflict injury on the United States far greater than any suffered in the jungles and rice paddies of Vietnam. What many United States observers foresee and fear is nothing less than a form of civil war at home, with all the intensity which the racial factor would add to such a catastrophe.

Certain it is that each incident of violence, with death or injuries to either side, can only build up hatreds and fears for the future, and perpetuate for an incalculable time the animosities which are themselves an effective bar to the application of remedies. In this great democratic country which is our neighbor we may be witnessing one of the major tragedies of our century.

No Soft Touch

WHEN, IN THE NEXT FEW weeks, serious university students complete the examinations for which they are now studying, they may concentrate on a top priority problem — the financing of their next university year. Many of them who lack adequate parental assistance have already been told that stake-raising vacation jobs are going to be scarce. Now they are being informed that it may be more difficult than hitherto to borrow under the Canada Student Loans Act.

In the Commons this week Prime Minister Pearson gave the assurance that "these loans will certainly be available for students who really need them". But that assurance followed his explanation that federal officials have been discussing a more consistent application of the criteria for granting loans.

"It may well be," the Prime Minister said, "that some students who do not clearly need help under this plan will find that the allocations are being reserved for those students who do need help."

The possible effect of any loan reduction is indicated by the number of University of Victoria students who seek this form of help. This year applicants ran over 1,000. There were 11,000 throughout the province. A majority of them received help ranging from $100 or $200 to the maximum of $1,000. The principle is widely accepted throughout this country that lack of finances alone should not bar worthy and capable students from higher education. The hard facts of next September, when fall term starts, are that many deserving young people may face unusual difficulties in raising the money to continue at university.

Employers, seeking summer replacements for staff, should give serious consideration to hiring undergraduates who wish to return to university and can profit from attendance. Many Victoria employers have adopted that policy. Some of those who endorse it, however, find existing economic conditions, uncertainty over possible work disruption and other financial hazards of industry curtailing their efforts to help the student.

Mr. Pearson has said that loans will be available to those who really need them. But students would be wise to realize early that this year it will be no soft touch, if it ever has been.

Pushing and Pulling

IT WAS IRONIC THAT ON WEDnesday, when President Johnson was issuing a proclamation declaring May 19 as the beginning of World Trade Week, the United States Senate passed by a 55-to-31 vote a bill calling for import quotas on all textiles. The measure was part of an omnibus package, including a $6 billions cutback in the proposed 1969 budget, offered to the President in return for accepting his 10 per cent surtax on income taxes.

At the same time, the House of Representatives ways and means committee was rejecting Mr. Johnson's proposal for a tax on spending by Americans who travel outside the Western Hemisphere, although the committee indicated that it might restore the levy if the administration initiated legislation for a tax on imports. If the government wants to hold down its balance of payments deficit by discouraging foreign travel, the committee feels, then it must also discourage spending on foreign goods.

There was no dearth of critics of both these Congressional actions, including even Senator Everett Dirksen, who has pushed for trade protection measures in the past. He argued that with the dollar in jeopardy it would be foolhardy to pass legislation which would invite retaliation from other nations. Others pointed out that at a time when the United States needed full international co-operation in stabilizing the monetary system, Congress should not be creating suspicion that the United States was leading the world in a wholesale retreat into a policy of protectionism.

But even members of Congress who might theoretically agree that maintaining confidence in the dollar and working for freer trade is in the best interest of the country, are also highly susceptible to pressure from constituents in this election year. And since in the United States, as in most countries, there are numerous geographical areas which would expect to benefit from restrictive import tariffs, the pressure is heavy.

Whose Hate?

I have read with considerable interest the article by your columnists Messrs. Douglas Fisher and Harry S. Crowe on the subject of alleged hate-mongering in Canada. Personally, I deplore hate-mongering. Nevertheless it would appear to be just whom we are criticising whether or not such criticisms are considered hate-mongering. For example, it would appear to some to be quite in order to insult our Queen and the estate of monarchy generally, to ridicule British traditions, to vilify the United States in Vietnam, and even to poke fun at the Scriptures and the Christian faith, and deride Christian standards of morality. Yet to utter the mildest criticism of Jewry, even of Jewry's worst elements, is to incur the smear of hate-mongering! This, sir, is not intellectually honest! Admittedly, it is wrong to condemn anyone on account of race, religion, color and class but it is equally wrong to spare anyone on these accounts. — Richard D. Corrance, 1037 Craigdarroch.

Cruelty in Vietnam

Your correspondent E. W. Abraham very rightly deplores the excesses of the Viet Cong and states that these excesses are rarely mentioned in our newspapers. I do not agree with him in this as I have read many reports of such atrocities but in spite of the fact that such stories emanate from U.S. sources my experience has been that the Viet Cong are reported to have killed village chieftains and petty government officials of the Saigon government and not women and children. All civil wars are excessively cruel and the U.S. Civil War was no exception. However I can find no excuse for the indiscriminate bombing of both North and South Vietnam by the Americans and the use of napalm bombs and the destruction of very valuable crops.

I would strongly urge your correspondent to read the very able sermon preached by the Rev. Robert J. D. Morris in the First United Church on March 17. Copies of this sermon are available on request. I do not believe that even Dean Rusk could classify the Rev. Morris as a Communist. I have nothing but admiration for the people of North and South Vietnam who are so ready to sacrifice their lives and property for a freedom which the U.S. so rightly claimed in 1776. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 1254 Rockland.

By MAURICE WESTERN

The Indian's Right to Hunt

A compromise proposal for a settlement of the controversy over Indian hunting rights has now been developed by officials of Mr. Laing's department. It may be further elaborated as a result of discussions with the regional Indian advisory councils and with sportsmen's federations across Canada. The problem has been reviewed on several occasions, most recently with the introduction by Mr. Bud Orange, Liberal member for the Northwest Territories, of a bill to remedy the situation exposed by a Supreme Court judgment in the Michael Sikyea case.

Western

It has always been the view of the Indian people that they enjoy by treaty an unfettered right to hunt game for food in unoccupied Crown lands. But the Canadian Parliament more than half a century ago gave its sanction to an act ratifying the migratory birds convention with the United States and Mexico. The act — differing in this respect from Mexican legislation — failed to reserve Indian rights. But there was apparently no recognition at the time nor for long afterwards that any conflict existed between the act and the treaties and the Indians for nearly 50 years effectively exercised the rights which they were supposed to possess.

The wild duck case brought matters to a head. Mr. Sikyea, an Indian of the Yellowknife band, won his case in the territorial court but the judgment of Mr. Justice Sissons was reversed and the legal question was finally decided when the Supreme Court found the convention act to be valid legislation applying alike to Indians and whites.

Symbolic Significance

For the Indians the case had symbolic significance going far beyond its economic implications. They saw in it a breach of faith by the Parliament of Canada. They were not alone because the highest judges, in explaining their verdict, said essentially the same thing.

Mr. Orange proposed to restore the situation by amending the convention act to exempt Indians and Eskimos. There would, however, have been a continuing prohibition on the hunting of species in danger of extinction.

The proposal now being considered takes account of changing realities in northern Canada. To the extent that Indians and Eskimos are drawn into wage labor, the value of the ancient hunting rights diminishes. Why go far afield for food when one can go to the community store? Thus, from the conservationist standpoint, the problem is much smaller than the actual population figures would indicate and will grow progressively more so.

For native people who do require game for the food supply, the right will be restored subject to the requirement of a special free migratory bird hunting permit (not available to white residents). Through the permit system it will be possible to keep track of the kill so that the situation may be reviewed from time to time. Further, the department hopes to keep in touch with the hunters and gradually to develop among them an informed interest in conservation practices.

Closed Seasons

Indians and Eskimos will also be required to observe closed seasons. As game laws are to the advantage of those concerned, this is consonant with the assurance offered the Indians by the commissioner who negotiated the treaty covering the Mackenzie district. It may, however, be a difficult matter to work out, especially in far northern areas.

The net result should be to restore to the Indian people much of what they lost through the celebrated cases in the courts. It will not be a full restoration but the old situation was being changed in any case by the transformation of the north.

Mr. Laing will probably hear complaints also from various sportsmen's and conservationist groups. Some recent comment, however, ignores the background and particularly the fact that the Indian right was in fact freely exercised for five decades down to the Sikyea case. Compared to the game taken for sport in the United States, where at least four million licences are issued annually, the amount taken for food by declining bands of wandering hunters in the Canadian north is a mere drop in the bucket.

It is understood that there have been conversations about the proposed new Indian permits between Canadian and American officials. What is involved, however, is a convention not an international treaty and it is competent for the Government of Canada to implement the intent of the agreement by regulations which may, in accordance with conditions, be varied from time to time.

By RICHARD PURSER

A Surge in the Kennedy Campaign

IN the space of barely a week, a new flash phenomenon has almost come to dominate the presidential political scene. The initial success of Senator Robert Kennedy's campaign has been so spectacular that harried reassessments are in order. They are being made not only by the press — almost all political reporters here have been astonished by Sen. Kennedy's sudden emergence — but by President Johnson's supporters, who are beginning to get seriously worried, and by Richard Nixon's supporters, who are no longer certain who it is that their man will have to face in November.

Purser

It is by now clear that there is support for Sen. Kennedy among some segments of the population to an extent not earlier imagined. Observers of the growing disenchantment with President Johnson (over other matters as well as the Vietnam war) had earlier noted an apparent drifting away of support from Sen. Kennedy as an alternative. This was attributed to disillusion because of his refusal to challenge the president.

His would-be supporters — it now turns out to have been only some of his would-be supporters — turned to Sen. Eugene McCarthy, who had never dreamed of reaching the White House but who now displayed the courage of his convictions. While Sen. McCarthy decided to run, Sen. Kennedy decided that if he wished to reach the White House in 1972 — which he passionately did — expediency demanded that he remain silent in 1968.

The vote for Sen. McCarthy in New Hampshire changed all that and caused Sen. Kennedy to speed up his timetable by four years.

Sen. McCarthy won the respect of reporters, who followed him in New Hampshire, for the obvious sincerity of his concern, the idealistic and essentially apolitical nature of his campaign, and for his sheer guts. Reporters were also favorably impressed with the bright, well-shaven, well-scrubbed and well-dressed young people who worked for him — a far cry from the headline-grabbing anti-war protesters.

When Sen. Kennedy made his move — audacious or opportunistic — to steal Sen. McCarthy's show, the latter's supporters were furious and even the reporters, cynical from years of association with politicians, were sickened. At Sen. Kennedy's March 16 press conference, a distinct feeling of hostility toward him hung in the air.

Still Lot to Explain

This writer's comment last week was typical of many by those of us who have associated with Sen. McCarthy and his people: "Sen. Kennedy has a lot of explaining to do to remove the tarnish from the glitter of his name."

This remains true, and it is also true that Sen. Kennedy is and will remain hated by millions of war hawks and racists, and distrusted by millions of social conservatives and business persons, no matter what he explains.

But it has been revealed during the past week that there are other millions to whom he need explain nothing and for whom he can do no wrong. Many of these millions are on the nation's university campuses, where support for Sen. McCarthy was also centred and where resentment of Sen. Kennedy as a Bobby-come-lately might have been expected to be strong.

But Sen. Kennedy has shown that the previously demonstrated support for Sen. McCarthy represented only the tip of the iceberg of anti-Johnson sentiment on campuses. His reception by young audiences across the country, wild to the point of adulation and frenzied almost to the point of physical danger to the senator himself, suggests that he alone has the political personality to bring to the surface the mass opinion that Sen. McCarthy could not quite reach.

There may well be sound foundation for the cold political judgment decision: His assessment that only his intrusion into the McCarthy campaign could provide the political muscle needed to beat President Johnson, if he can indeed be beaten at all.

Normally it is virtually impossible for his own party to deny an incumbent president renomination for his second term. He controls too much of the machinery for selecting delegates to the national nominating convention. Only a massive ground-swell of public opinion, sufficient to convince the convention delegates that renomination of the president means final defeat at the polls, can alter this.

Creating Groundswell

Sen. Kennedy is out to create that groundswell of opinion. His fighting oratory, lashing out against the woes of the country — Vietnam, race, the generation gap, the dilution and disordering of national priorities — and against the administration he holds responsible for them, has brought him apparent initial success.

But his audiences to date, primarily of students and racial minority groups, are not necessarily representative of the voters at large. While it is too early to say how far he will be able to go, it is late enough to say that he has the other side worried.

Before dismissing the Kennedy threat, it should be pointed out that Sen. McCarthy's success in New Hampshire was provided by adult voters despite the student orientation of his campaign; and that the latest Gallup Poll, showing Sen. Kennedy moving ahead of President Johnson since he entered the race, was conducted among registered Democratic voters, not among students.

As 80-year-old Alf Landon, who was President Roosevelt's Republican opponent in 1936, observed last week, this is an Alice in Wonderland campaign.

Easy on the Water

OTTAWA JOURNAL

Interested always in studying how other people are getting along with their liquor, we present today news from the elephants. It comes via the Manchester Guardian, our overseas authority in these matters.

"How does an elephant get drunk? It's fairly simple according to 'Naturwissenschaftliche Rundschau,' a South African learned journal. The elephants approach a marula tree and eat its fruit (Sclerocarya bierrea)—fruit also used by Africans for brewing near-beer. After consumption, the beasts head fast for the nearest water-hole and drink a lot of water. Thereupon the marula ferments in their stomach, forming alcohol and extreme cases of elephantine staggers. A habit-forming business, often repeated. When intoxicated, they continually indulge in wild, weaving charges, wreaking death and destruction."

The Guardian drew no conclusions, which is one of the troubles about being a guardian. But it seems clear to us that the moral is never to mix water with the stuff, not ever.

Looking Back

From the Times, March 29, 1908:

James Murray, the judge of the recent horse show in Vancouver, came to Victoria today. He thinks Victoria should assuredly have a horse show also.

He bases his opinion on the excellent horses that were sent from Victoria to the Vancouver show. They were, Mr. Murray says, among the best exhibited in the terminal city. He instances the horses of Dr. Spencer, Jas. Mitchell, J. A. Grey, Lim Bang and others.

Portrait of a Deserter

By JIM HOAGLAND
The Washington Post

ALEXANDRIA, Va.—John Ashley, of Alexandria, is the 21-year-old son of one of the army's top civilian training officers, and an army enlisted man under orders to go to Vietnam.

Eric Phillips is a 21-year-old deserter, who has been running for four months because he refuses to fight "the immoral and criminal war in Vietnam".

John Ashley and Eric Phillips are the same person. They co-exist in a troubled youth who turned up in Stockholm last week, and who was there granted political asylum.

Ashley's step into exile ended the journey he began Nov. 10 when he deserted from Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. He went underground and took the alias Eric Phillips, working at odd jobs in the mid-west and trying to get to Sweden.

He was one of eight American servicemen granted political asylum by the Swedish Aliens Commission. They all object to the Vietnam war. Twenty other American soldiers have been granted asylum in neutral Sweden.

Seeing Parents Was Too Risky

It is not clear how long Ashley has been in Sweden, nor how he got there. He came to Washington in late January, to see his parents before leaving the country.

But he decided against the meeting when friends persuaded him this would be too risky. On Jan. 23, he got in touch with a reporter from The Washington Post and agreed to tell his story, provided it would not be used until he was in Sweden, or in jail.

There were still icicles on the naked grey and silver tree limbs in Glover Archbold Park, near Georgetown in Washington, on that drizzling day. Ashley picked one of the icicles and nibbled at it, letting it melt against his tongue.

"I guess I'm the only black sheep in the family," he said, brooding about the impact of his decision on his parents. "But this war has broken up a lot of families, and in worse ways than this."

His soft voice dropped as he talked about his family. It was the central part of his John Ashley existence, and it pained him to talk about it.

He Had Read Beautiful Books

Then he broke into a quiet laugh as he thought about the "beautiful things I've done, the beautiful books I've read" as Eric Phillips.

While there is a clear division in the youth, there is also a clear unity. In both roles, he expresses revulsion at what he calls society's banality and vulgarity, and the inability of humans to love one another.

He is in many way a Holden Caulfield, grown up to face the army and Vietnam a decade after J. D. Salinger's fictional teenager became a symbol to the nation's adolescents of their own real or imagined sensitivity.

To many adults, however, Holden Caulfield was the ultimate symbol of a mixed-up kid who couldn't cope. Speaking of Ashley, an army public information officer said his records showed "he was a very confused young man."

Track Star At High School

Ashley was a track star for three years at Groveton High School in Alexandria, where his parents live.

"What I liked to do was run in the woods, in the sunshine. I wasn't ambitious about grades, and not very directed in my studying."

Because of his grades, "My parents and I decided that a prep school would be a good thing for me if I wanted to get into a college. So we picked the New York Military Academy in Cornwall on the Hudson. I didn't like the regimentation, but I made it through."

Ashley cocked his head to the side and tugged at the zipper of his green khaki field jacket. He has an engaging warmth that makes older persons feel they could, and should, help him.

He enrolled at Adams State College, in Alamosa, Colo., after meeting the president of the school, who helped him get in. But the president retired after Ashley's first year, and, depressed about "a plunge in my grades because of spring fever" Ashley dropped out.

Went to See Draft Board

"See, I went to my draft board, and they told me I couldn't get my 2-S (student deferment) back until I got my average up. So I figured, what's the use; and dropped out.

"I knew they would come and get me, so I just decided to live." He returned to Alexandria, and worked at the post office, delivering mail. "I just loved that job. You could meet people, and talk to them, and you were outdoors."

Up until college, Ashley had thought little about the war.

JOHN ASHLEY
. . . he wouldn't hate

"Then I began reading — Erich Fromm, Martin Luther King, Catch 22, and magazines, like Ramparts. And I knew that the war was wrong."

Ashley lived at home while working for the post office for six months. He tried, he says, to talk about the war to his family, but "they wouldn't listen."

"It was pretty bad. I told them I was completely opposed to the war. They were so opposed to me, and my view, that dad cursed me and asked me if I was a hippie. So I quit talking about it.

Do It First, Then Talk

"They don't care much one way or the other about the war. They just kept saying, 'If you don't go, you'll never get a good job and be able to have a good family.' I didn't want to upset them. They said, 'Do it, and then we'll talk about it'."

Then Ashley paused. "Look, I don't want it to sound like I'm blaming my parents. They thought the army was the best thing for me. They were just doing what they thought was right. They're both very smart. They've both got master's degrees, and Dad was at Harvard."

His father, J. Edward Ashley, is an educational development specialist with the Joint Chiefs of Staff office.

"So I found out I was going to get drafted in May. And my sister's wedding was in May, and I didn't want to miss that. My sister's so great." His smile disappeared. "I don't even know where she lives now."

He went to the army recruiting station, and found that if he enlisted he could get a 120-day delay. He enlisted, and was called to duty May 22, 1967.

Recruiters 'Beautiful Cats'

They play a real dirty trick on you. They put the most beautiful cats in as recruiters, and they're nothing like the monsters that get you in basic training. The first sergeant that talked to us said, 'I hate all of you (obscenity) and I'm going to make you hate.' That's what they're like."

Ashley said he made it known right away he was against the war. "When I took a test for officer training, I drew peace symbols on the test paper. I flunked, of course. I refused to do bayonet practice against another soldier. I told them I couldn't kill another person, and they thought I was kidding."

Ashley said he talked to his commander about applying for conscientious objector status, and was told it would be fruitless.

He was assigned to Fort Benjamin Harrison as a finance clerk trainee. "But I got kicked out right away. I thought if I took an overdose of sleeping pills, they would let me out of the army. So I did.

"But they took me to the hospital and pumped out my stomach. When they asked me why I did it, I said, 'I'm sick of living, sick of the army.' The psychiatrist said, 'That's a normal reaction,' and put me back on duty."

Ashley, who had been punished for a number of minor infractions by this time, says his unit commander told him that "he wasn't going to punish me for taking the sleeping pills. Instead, he would see to it that I got sent to Vietnam.

"A friend told me they wouldn't send you to Vietnam if you went AWOL. So I left the post in October and came to Washington for the Pentagon demonstration.

Brutality Against Own

"That was the final thing that made me know I couldn't fight the war, after watching the government's brutality against its own people. And my father was working there, in that building.

"But when I got back, my orders for Vietnam were waiting for me. The lieutenant said, 'We're just going to forget about that. We want you to go to Vietnam'."

An army spokesman at Fort Benjamin Harrison said Ashley was dropped from finance school for "disciplinary reasons" and reassigned to an administrative company in Vietnam. He would not comment further.

Ashley was due to report to a debarkation port in California in mid-November. He got leave and came to Washington to see his parents.

War Isn't Like That

"I tried to talk to them one last time, to tell them how I felt about killing other people. I asked my Dad, 'What would happen if I met a Viet Cong out on the battlefield, all alone? Couldn't we just have a beer and talk this thing out?' My Dad said, 'War is not like that.' And I thought it was sad."

The day after his 21st birthday, Nov. 5, Ashley began his run. He went to friends in the midwest and got a job, under his alias, as a shipping clerk in Ohio.

He had been talking for an hour. The afternoon skies were getting dark. He stopped abruptly and said he had to go. "I've got things to do, and not much time."

John Ashley walked out of the park, up the winding path. He skipped a couple of steps near the top of the hill, and was gone.

Eric Phillips was on his way to Sweden.

Astonishing Dearth of Facts About Effects of Marijuana

The increasing use of marijuana by young people is one of the most important social problems in Canada today. This is not necessarily because of the effects of the drug itself—so little is known about it—but due to the emotional and legal conflicts it has aroused.

For thousands of young people who believe, rightly or wrongly, that marijuana is neither more harmful nor more immoral than liquor or tobacco or tranquillizing pills, the methods by which the police have attempted to suppress the drug and the severity of the sentences handed down to those found in possession of it, have engendered contempt for the law and the judicial process.

This is the first of two editorials in The Globe and Mail of Toronto strongly urging that rigorous scientific investigation be undertaken to resolve the problem. The second editorial will appear tomorrow.

Marijuana.

With the possible exception of sex, it raises more prejudices, objections and eyebrows than any other word in the perennial conflict between Conservative and liberal, young and old, adjusted and alienated.

Call it what you will—Mary Jane, pot or grass—it is variously described as a threat to our society and a sure antidote to today's stressful living.

Its defenders argue that it is less harmful than cigarette tobacco and alcohol and, at worst, only psychologically addictive.

Its opponents say it leads to more potent addictive drugs, is a factor in violent crime and sexual excesses, and may cause psychotic episodes or long-range personality changes.

Widely conflicting views on marijuana, which is obtained from parts of the female hemp plant (for what that may be worth), are not limited to Home and School Clubs and hippie subcultures. Even the professionals are stumped. Many scientists insist that what is not known about it is probably more important than what is known.

Little Known

This is borne out in a scientific statement on marijuana released by the Addiction Research Foundation in January. It said there "is no comparably valid information" on the relationship between dependence and chronic use of marijuana; "grossly insufficient" information on deleterious effects of chronic use of marijuana; "not sufficient well-documented evidence" on the relation between marijuana use and use of other drugs.

We have been presented with fairly impressive evidence that cigaret smoking causes lung cancer. Alcohol leads to alcoholism and a whole range of other diseases; it contributes heavily to carnage on the highways.

Uncontrolled use of heroin and morphine and other recognized addictive and deleterious drugs can be dangerous in the extreme—we know all that.

These items have been subjected to intensive research and the results have led to prohibition in some cases, regulation in others, and sometimes just a simple warning to lay off. With marijuana, what is the answer?

There are laws against its use, possession, trafficking and importation, but the laws are being flouted regularly and increasingly. And in many instances with conviction. A United Church Social worker last week predicted that 20 per cent of Metro Toronto high school students would be drug users by 1970.

Jail Terms

Last month, the Toronto district office of the federal Justice Department announced that drug prosecutors will be asking for jail terms for first offenders in marijuana cases. Last week, Justice Minister Pierre Trudeau said that marijuana should not be listed as a criminal offense if medical evidence shows it to be harmless.

PIERRE TRUDEAU
. . . change of mind?

Such contradictions are common. The government of India appointed a commission to study the use of marijuana-like substances in 1893; it recommended that the substances be regulated but not banned. "So grand a result, so tiny a sin?" the report asked.

Israeli and U.S. scientists recently devised an economical synthesis of tetrahydracannabinol (THC) which is believed to be the chief intoxicant in marijuana. The Federal Addiction Research Centre at Lexington, Ky., has shown that enough THC can cause a psychotic reaction in every subject.

For those who argue that marijuana is a stepping stone to more potent drugs, scientists say it would be more instructive to consider how many marijuana users never graduate to heroin. Heroin addicts also probably started on milk.

Too Glib

There are too many glib answers, too many contradictions, too many questions. If there is serious doubt whether marijuana is dangerous, why such imposing penalties (life for trafficking and possession for trafficking, seven years for possession and importing)?

Why suddenly decide to stiffen the penalty for first offenders while entertaining doubts about whether use of pot should be regarded as a crime?

Inspector William Pilkington of the Metro Police Morality Bureau said recently Canada could have as many as 100,000 drug addicts instead of the present 3,500 if use of marijuana is made legal. Where does he get his facts?

Brian Chapman, a social worker with the United Church of Canada, the same evening said what is needed is honest, relevant information. Robert Robinson, director of education for the Alcoholism and Drug Addiction Research Foundation agreed.

Alcohol Data

"There is now a substantial supply of factual data on alcohol," he said. "There is a much more limited amount of data on the other so-called mood-modifiers. We should be urging our young people to examine critically every bit of data available."

Surely this is the sensible course to follow. Marijuana should be put under the microscope, not to justify its legalization or its prohibition, but just to get the facts.

We know pitifully little about it. And perhaps exhaustive data on marijuana would eliminate much of its glamor to the young, many of whom already regard alcohol as "too square."

CALCULATING THE GENETIC ODDS

By CHRISTINE DOYLE

"Will my child be normal?"

Almost every woman gives herself some torment over this question even when relatives supply no cause for suspicion of inherited disorder.

Today, these fears, which are all too often an irrational hangover from old wives' tales, talk of bad eggs, sins of fathers and so on, are being dealt with objectively by geneticists whose job it is to evaluate the risk of a defective child when an inherited disorder is running in the family.

About half the major medical centers in Britain now run routine genetic counselling clinics, or "medical betting shops" as they have been dubbed by some doctors. At the Institute of Child Health in London, four to six new patients are seen each week. Yet this is probably only scratching at the surface of the numbers who need advice about their genes.

"We have certain basic principles in advising people," explained the medical geneticist in charge of the counselling clinic at the Institute. "Perhaps the most firm one is that it is not our job to tell prospective parents what to do. We try to tell them the odds honestly, as best we can, and put the risks in perspective, pointing out that something like one child in 50 is born with quite a serious malformation anyway, and that any additional risks must be seen against that background."

Indecisive

A few parents are really in need of positive advice, if for instance they are very indecisive and there is a strong likelihood of their producing an obnormal child. The estimated risks are always passed to the family doctor and he decides how best to deal with individual cases.

Seeing these parents has a dual role, for whereas in the past many hereditary diseases have been regarded as untreatable the advances of modern medicine are making this less and less true.

However, diagnosis and treatment, virtually from the moment of birth, may be vital, and knowing in advance that a child as yet unborn, perhaps not even conceived, runs the risk of a disease or malformation can mean life or death later on.

How are the odds calculated? Like blood groups, many inherited disorders are directly controlled by dominant- or recessive genes. Harmful genes may arise at any time quite spontaneously (hardly surprising as the cell works virtually a 24-hour shift) or through the effect of radiation or powerful drugs. Or they may be passed on from generation to generation to make themselves evident when two people with similar mutant genes marry.

In roughly the same way that odds for other traits can be estimated, geneticists can calculate the likelihood of an inherited disease.

Dwarfism

When the damaging gene is a dominant one then genetic counselling is easy. One type of dwarfism, for instance, which produces a child with short arms and legs, stubby fingers and toes, is farly easy to estimate. Because it is passed on through a dominant gene, there is a 50-50 chance that a dwarf will produce a dwarf child.

Conditions like dwarfism, which has its counterpart in the animal world in species like the Pekinese dog, have been closely studied in the Old Order Amish. This is an isolated inbreeding group of people who live in Maryland.

They still dress in the style of a century ago, are very religious and believe that higher education is a perversion. The close-relative marriages provide doctors with an excellent opportunity to study the detailed genetics of a new recessive disorders.

One ordinarily rare form of recessive dwarfism occurs in five of every 1,000 live births and is carried by 13 per cent of the Amish population.

Mongolism

Ever since it was observed by Lionel Penrose, one of Britain's most distinguished geneticists, more than 30 years ago, that there is a twenty-fold increase of mongol births in mothers over the age of 45, many intelligent women have felt anxious about the outcome of pregnancy in later life. The over-all rate of mongolism (a term disliked by geneticists because it has nothing to do with Mongolian people) is around 1,500 in every million births. Even though these children are very lovable many die in childhood, and the emotional and financial strain of a mongol child is severe.

Mongolism is a disorder involving an entire chromosome rather than one particular gene, and is due to an accident in the developing egg or sperm when an extra chromosome is added, to give 47 instead of the normal 46 in the foetus. For most women under 25 the risk of a mongol baby is about one in 2,000, but for a woman of about 20 who has already had one mongol child the risk rises to nearly two per cent. But this is due to a few high-risk parents who may be detected by chromosome studies.

Disorders of the sex chromosomes when an extra X or Y chromosome may be added produce a wide variety of intersex states ranging from the barely perceptible to hermaphrodite-like conditions where both set of genital organs are present.

Sex-linked disorders — that is, diseases associated with genes on the X chromosomes (none are yet known on the Y chromosome) — include color blindness, a certain type of muscular dystrophy, and haemophilia (excess bleeding through lack of clotting agents in blood).

Protected

They are normally carried by the woman and appear in the man. The reason a woman is protected is that she carries the disorder on one of the X chromosomes, and the healthy gene on the other chromosome will prevent her from developing the disease. But she can pass the harmful information on to her children.

"There is a one-in-two risk of the sons being affected and a one-in-two risk of daughters becoming carriers," said the director of the Institute's clinic.

Girls who have seen a brother severely handicapped and perhaps dying from a form of muscular dystrophy known as the Duchenne type are naturally very concerned that they might pass on the disorder to a son.

Some of these sisters will be carriers and some not and their chance can often be estimated by a special test. This measures the amount of an enzyme present in high levels in the blood of muscular dystrophy victims and perhaps also present to a lesser degree in carriers.

Genetics advisers rightly stress that couples should never be forbidden to have children: it's their decision. Most act on the advice. A survey of 169 patients who were referred to the clinic revealed that of 74 high-risk families, one third remained undaunted by the risk while two-thirds were deterred. Of 95 low-risk families, one-quarter decided not to have a child.

Most Lucky

Alarmingly, most people carry at least two or three quite serious recessive genes, but fortunately most are lucky enough to marry someone who carries two or three quite different ones. More than 800 diseases are known to be triggered by faulty genes but the number of diseases to which some may be genetically predisposed may be many more.

Yet this is not, geneticists stress, a picture of gene fatalism; even if it is impossible for anyone to alter the genes with which they were born, biologists continually point out how complex and varied inheritance is. In very few cases can a sharp line be drawn between genetic and environmental causation.

One study of criminals by Dr. Patricia Jacobs and her colleagues in Edinburgh showed that a number of psychopathic criminals over six-feet tall in one hospital prison had an extra Y chromosome. The incidence of this extra chromosome was one in three, which is about 300 times more than in the normal population.

Yet although this may eventually show that some people have a genetic predisposition to the "criminal type" very much depends upon their upbringing and education.

Diseases

Although no gene or chromosome can be picked out, the same appears to be the case with many diseases and shortcomings, such as heart conditions, mental illnesses like schizophrenia, degenerative old age, and sight defects. They run in families, but other factors like stress, eating habits, type of work, all seem to affect the way in which a genetic predisposition is or is not manifested.

An important question arises from the speed with which man has altered his environment over the past 150 years. For thousands more he has been adapting slowly through the "survival of the fittest." Now it seems that man's environment, through under-exercise, over-eating and the rat-race of ulcer-belt cities, is changing too fast for his body to be able to cope, while modern medicine has also given him the ability to ensure survival of the less fit. How far can man safely go in upsetting nature's genetic balance?

Amendments Clarify Labor Bill

Labor Minister Peterson Thursday introduced amendments to Bill 33 giving the legislature rather than the cabinet the power to remove members of the proposed mediation commission.

Other amendments clarified the right of disputing parties to reach their own agreement at any time after their case had been referred to the commission and regardless of whether a decision had already been made by the commission.

Mr. Peterson said the right to vary commission decisions applied both in cases of binding and non-binding arbitration.

Further amendments gave commission members the right to publish a dissenting minority opinion and put the onus on the employer to prove that a closure is for legitimate business reasons and is not a lockout.

HYDRO WOKER RIGHTS

The right of B.C. Hydro workers to strike (in cases where the dispute is not referred to the commission by the cabinet) was also spelled out in amendments, to assure hydro workers the same rights as employees of other crown corporations.

Some of the changes were similar to amendments already put on the order paper by opposition MLAs.

The controversial labor bill, which received second reading Wednesday after long debate, gives the cabinet the power to prevent or stop strikes by referring them to the commission for settlement.

Mr. Peterson indicated that establishment of the commission and getting it into full operation would take some time and that Bill 33 would not be proclaimed until some time after the current session.

Tribute Paid To Cosmonaut

The legislature Thursday paid a brief tribute to Soviet cosmonaut Yuri A. Gagarin, the world's first man in space who was killed Wednesday in an air mishap in the U.S.S.R.

Garde Gardom (L—Vancouver-Point Grey) asked permission to make a statement on the death.

"All members received this tragic news in sorrow," Mr. Gardom said.

"In spite of ideological differences mankind marches on," Mr. Gardom said.

The Liberal member paid tribute to the cosmonaut's courage and daring in facing the unknown, paralleling him to explorers Cook, Columbus and Cartier.

He asked for "an expression of sympathy to the people of the U.S.S.R. and his family.'

APPOINTMENT of Robert D. Howland, 58, as chairman of the National Energy Board was announced Thursday by Prime Minister Pearson. He will take over July 1 from I. N. McKinnon who is retiring. Mr. Howland has been vice-chairman of the board since 1959.

ASKS DETAILED EXPLANATION

Baird Demand Delays Start of Youth Program

A bid for $18,000 to launch a Victoria youth program suffered a temporary set-back Thursday when Ald. Robert Baird asked for a detailed explanation of the program.

Ald Clyde Savage asked for the $18,000 and told Victoria city council that the money would be divided evenly between the YM-YWCA and the Victoria Boys Club to enable them to commence special youth counselling services.

"The idea is not that these two organizations would go out trying to persuade young people to join their respective groups," Ald. Savage said. 'What we hope to do is get fully qualified people who can go out and work with young people, find out what their problems are and help them where possible."

The youth program was advocated by Mayor Hugh Stephen in his inaugural address in January.

Ald. Baird said he wanted a full council meeting with Community Welfare director Garth Homer before he voted.

"I'd like to hear just what the details of this plan are," he said.

Ald. Hugh Ramsay said he saw no harm in listening to Mr. Homer before voting but added "I wouldn't want this statement construed in anyway to suggest that I am against the program."

A special meeting of council to hear Mr. Homer's outline of the program will be called in the near future.

'Canada Manpower Is a Failure'

Welfare Minister Dan Campbell Thursday called the Canada Manpower Department a failure and lashed "fuzzy thinkers who head for the trees when somebody mentions a work program for unemployed employables."

The minister was replying to—and congratulating—Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) who asked why employable welfare recipients couldn't be put to work doing useful jobs to get them out of the welfare category.

Mr. Nimsick said there must be work on roads, parks or other public projects that needs doing.

Mr. Campbell said he was "inclined to agree" with the "work-oriented approach" and added:

"Canada Manpower as it stands today is a failure . . . It is not doing what should be done with unemployed employables. It is the responsibility of Manpower."

The minister criticized the "total bogey about experimental work programs for those on welfare."

'People have been too hypocritical about this whole thing," he said, during debate on his departmental spending estimates in the legislature.

Mr. Campbell said federal government co-operation is needed before such experiments could be attempted but indicated communities should examine their own capabilities to provide scope for experiments and play a key role in them.

Mr. Nimsick said a useful work program would take many people out of the welfare category who should not be there.

He also called for deserted mothers to be put in "a higher category" by considering their social assistance as "allowances by rights."

Mothers raising children without help from a husband are doing an important job for society, he said.

Only people who are "physically unable to take care of themselves" should be considered as genuine welfare cases, he said, urging an increase in payments for all.

Council Endorses Plan for James Bay

City council Thursday endorsed a master plan for the development of James Bay as a high-rise apartment area.

The main recommendations were revealed a week ago when Mayor Hugh Stephen addressed a meeting of the Victoria Real Estate Board.

At that time the mayor forecast the day is not far off when James Bay will house 4,000 more apartment units than it does now.

The master plan, presented to council by Ald. Ian Stewart, was prepared by the city planning and traffic engineering departments. Both were praised by Ald. Stewart.

Basically the plan calls for a clearly defined provincial government precinct, the development of apartment buildings under a new bonus plan and an over-all plan for improved roads.

It lists six stages of development.

- To define a realistic legislative precinct, reflecting the provincial government's objectives for its proposed legislative and administrative buildings.
- Encourage redevelopment of the older, obsolete and deteriorated housing by providing incentives for private capital to invest in new development.
- Provide incentives to private capital to invest in a high standard of new apartment development.
- Secure orderly transition from low density to high density residential development.
- Safeguard traffic right-of-ways of sufficient width to accommodate the higher traffic volumes resulting from high-rise apartments.
- Recognize the significant industrial content of the district and the development potential of the waterfront.

One of the main attractions to developers lies in the bonus clause offered new apartment builders.

In simple language the apartment builder will be able to obtain more economical floor-space ratios if he provides underground parking, well landscaped lawns and extra footage in setbacks.

When announcing the first details of the plan a week ago Mayor Stephen said he is sure it will prove attractive to developers and result in an apartment building boom for the older area of the city.

THE PILL
and the
TEEN-AGE GIRL

What are the real reasons why some parents provide their teen-age children with The Pill? How has this medical discovery changed the sex standards of today's youth and what are its implications on our "new morality"?

April Reader's Digest features a timely article which shows why the potential effect of The Pill, on our society, may be even more devastating than the nuclear bomb. Written by the distinguished Nobel Prize-winning author, Pearl S. Buck, The Pill and the Teen-age Girl is recommended reading for all teen-agers and parents.

It's in April Reader's Digest — now on sale. Also featured in this issue: Why Students Turn to Drugs and The Difficult Art of Being a Parent. Get your copy of Reader's Digest today.

MAY HURDLE 9 PER CENT

Another Jump Due in NHA Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — The National Housing Act lending rate is expected to increase Monday to nine or 9⅛ per cent, potentially eliminating NHA mortgages for most individuals with incomes of less than $8,100 a year.

The NHA rate, now 8⅝ per cent, is what insurance companies and other private lending institutions may charge for mortgage loans guaranteed by the government against default.

The rate is revised as necessary every three months on the basis of market yields for federal government bonds.

A final set of figures published Thursday by the Bank of Canada indicated the change that will occur Monday, April 1. No official announcement by Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. is expected before the new rate officially takes effect.

A nine-per-cent rate on a maximum NHA loan of $18,000 over 25 years amounts to carrying charges of $149.04 a month. Average property taxes for NHA borrowers are $34.19 a month, bringing principal, interest and taxes to $183.23 a month.

Although there is some flexibility in the policy, CMHC is unlikely to guarantee a home-owner loan if monthly charges exceed 27 per cent of borrower's income.

Thus, a man obtaining an $18,000 mortgage at the new rate should have an annual income of at least $8,136.

CMHC statistics show that the lending institutions have not in fact been demanding the maximum NHA rate for their money in recent months. Few borrowers are likely to run into the nine-per-cent rate as long as they are able to obtain a government-guaranteed mortgage.

Conventional mortgages for which the government assumes no risk have been running at nine per cent and more in some areas of Canada since last fall.

In January, with the official NHA rate of 8⅝ per cent, the average NHA loan was granted at a little less than 8¼ per cent.

A 25-year, $18,000 mortgage at the latter rate would cost the borrower about $140 a month, not counting property taxes. Most individuals earning less than $7,750 would be turned down for loans.

CMHC statistics show that $18,000 has come to be a representative figure for NHA loans.

Last year the average cost of homes bought under the act was $19,442, compared with $17,945 just a year earlier. The average down payment increased to $4,312 in 1967 from $3,544 in 1966.

Down payments may be cut sharply under terms of legislation passed earlier this month.

The government now will guarantee loans covering 95 per cent of the lending value of a home to a maximum loan of $18,000. This will chop 50 per cent and more from many down payments if builders do not automatically translate the legislation into higher-cost homes.

Hotelmen Meet Here On Monday

Directors of B.C. Hotel Association and the affiliated Hotel Association of Canada meet in Victoria Monday.

Chairman E. J. Vernon of Vancouver said business sessions will begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Empress Hotel Georgian Lounge.

Other officials in attendance will be vice-presidents Alan Pearse, Nanaimo; Frank Burger, Victoria; George Peters, Nelson; Leo Mulhern, Vancouver; treasurer K. J. Campbell, Vancouver, and managing director J. Roy Corbett of Vancouver. Twenty-five other directors will represent all parts of the province.

A bus tour has been arranged for wives of delegates and an evening entertainment is planned.

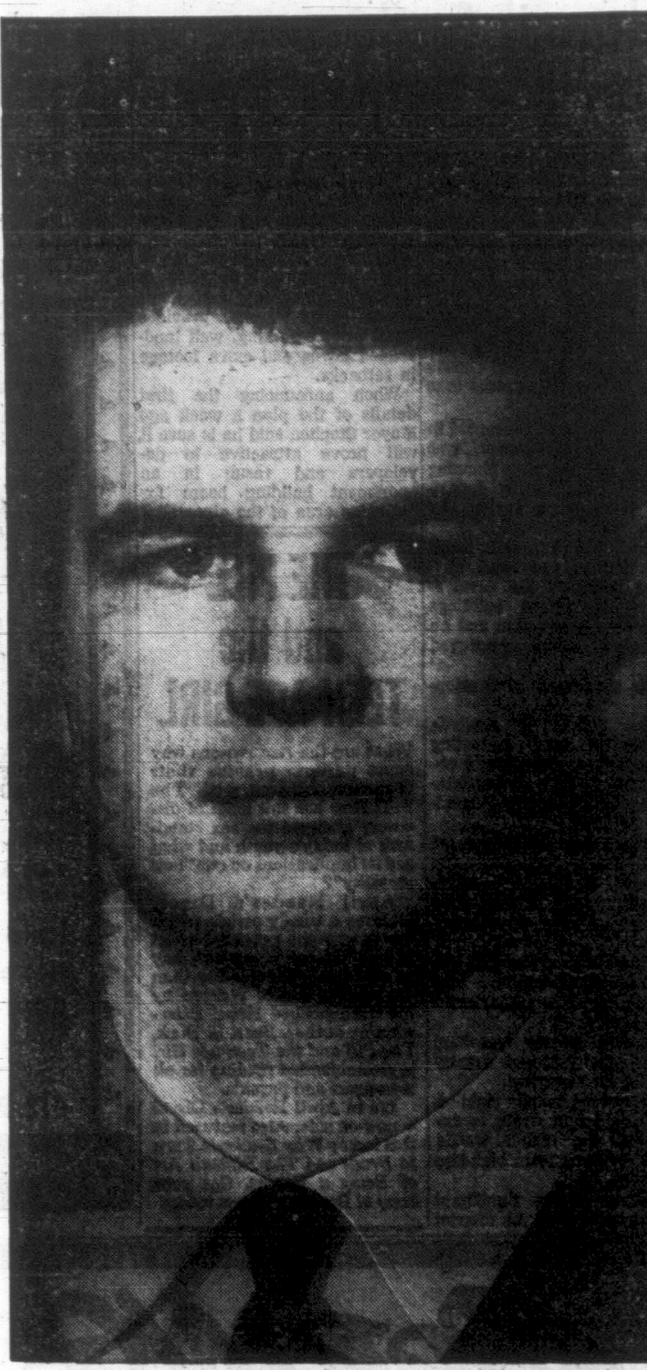
Why do young men pay twice as much for car insurance?

Because they have twice as many accidents as other drivers. Added to that, their accident costs are much higher.



These are the facts. Unfortunate—but true.

These figures can be changed, and so can the cost of insurance for younger male drivers.

There is only one way; by reducing their accident rate.

Even though younger men pay a lot more for insurance, they have the same opportunities as other drivers to reduce their own insurance costs.

One accident-free year can bring a 15% reduction.

Three accident-free years and the savings are substantial. And those who pass approved driver training courses can obtain a further 10% reduction.

If more younger men take advantage of these dividends by driving safely, the cost will be lower for everyone.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseed prices, especially flax, took downturns in trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Most losses resulted from increased selling by traders clearing their holdings for the weekend.

Rapeseed prices moved in a narrow range.

There was a light domestic feed and grain trade. A relatively steady rye market received support from the firm Chicago market.

CHICAGO (AP) — Commodities on the Board of Trade moved nervously over an irregular price range today.

Trade was moderate and fairly mixed.

It appeared that the trade was taking a watchful attitude concerning the international monetary conference at Stockholm.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Golds Skid at Toronto

Golds took a plunge in active trading today on the Toronto Stock Exchange, as European markets continued to report slipping bullion prices. Golds were also down on Wall Street.

Observers felt speculators were uncertain about the results of a meeting of monetary authorities at Stockholm and about the effect of Monday's reopening of the London gold market.

AT TORONTO—In golds, Dome plunged 5½ to 59½, Kerr Addison ½ to 15¾ and Camflo 30 cents to 5.15.

Oils and uraniums paced the advance in other sections of the market.

Scurry-Rainbow was up 3¼ to 29¾, Husky Oil 1⅝ to 21¼, Denison Mines 1½ to 68, World-wide Energy 1.45 to 4.00 and Rio Algom Mines 1 to 31.

In industrials, Revelstoke and Falconbridge gained 1 each to 8¾ and 94½. Ocean Cement fell 1 to 21.

Final volume was 3,705,000 shares compared with 3,495,000 Thursday.

AT NEW YORK blue chips and glamor stocks advanced.

Lockheed climbed about five points on news of its contract to produce the big passenger plane known as the airbus for TWA, Eastern Airlines and Airholdings Ltd. of Britain.

McDonnell Douglas, Lockheed's unsuccessful rival for the contract, dropped more than two points.

AT MONTREAL industrials, utilities and banks rose while papers slid in trading today.

Among industrials, Velcro climbed 2¼ to 44½, Credit-Foncier, a Quebec loan company, 1¼ to 51¼ and International Utilities ⅝ to 37⅛.

CPR, Canadian Vickers and Alcan added ½ to 49¼, eight and 24½.

AT LONDON stock market prices were higher at today's market opening in the wake of a strong voter protest against the government, shown in the results of four Thursday by-elections.

AT VANCOUVER gains outnumbered losses as the exchange took on a healthier tone today in forenoon trading.

Ocean Cement, which rose $2.25 Thursday on news of a stock takeover bid, lost $1.37 of the amount today at $20.62.

Torwest had the heaviest volume, 58,200 shares, to put on .03 at .56. Magnum traded 43,700 to gain .11 at $1.72.

Westcoast Resources, which lost its Japanese partner earlier this week, fell another .04 to .37 on trading of 31,800 shares. The stock lost .26 on Thursday.

Royal American and Stampede made three-cent gains in the oils and Captain International added .25 at $5.50.

Profit Drop Reported By Cominco

MONTREAL (CP) — Cominco Ltd. has reported a 21.8-per-cent drop in consolidated net earnings to $38,484,000 or $2.31 a share in 1967 form $49,183,000 or $2.59 a share in the previous year.

The company said in its annual report that the decrease was caused "primarily by lower prices received for lead and zinc and by higher costs, including interest and depreciation, offset by some extent by an increase in revenue from the chemical and fertilizer operations."

Sales revenue totalled $216,959,000, a three-per-cent reduction from the $224,566,000 in 1966.

Total sales revenues during the last year were divided in these proportions: 48 per cent from lead and zinc, 21 per cent from all other metallurgical products, 29 per cent from fertilizers and two per cent from industrial and other chemicals.

To Halt Service

EDMONTON (CP)—Northern Alberta Railways has applied to the Canadian Transport Commission for permission to discontinue its passenger service from Edmonton to Dawson Creek, B.C., NAR general manager K. R. Perry says.

Mr. Perry said in an interview the railway lost about $160,000 on the passenger operation last year.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted today at $1.07⅞ for cheques, $1.07⅞ for notes and $1.05⅝ for silver. Sales were $1.08⅝ for cheques and $1.08¾ for notes.

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar was unchanged at 92 21/64 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling up ¼ at $2.40 5/32.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 1/32 at $1.08 5/16. Pound sterling was up 7/16 at $2.60 3/16.

Ford Next Target of UAW

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was two down and one to go for the United Auto Workers Union Thursday as 23,000 workers ratified a new working agreement with General Motors of Canada Ltd.

Hours later, however, it was announced that the union has given Ford Motor Co. of Canada six days — until 10:30 a.m. Thursday—to come to terms before more than 11,500 workers go on strike in Ontario plants at Windsor, Oakville, St. Thomas and Niagara Falls.

The union signed a new agreement with Chrysler Canada Ltd. on Feb. 1 after a nine-day strike.

The 48-day strike against GM shut down plants at Toronto, Oshawa, London, St. Catharines, Windsor, and Ste. Therese, Que.

Silverknife Makes Deal

By AB KENT
Business Editor

An extraordinary meeting of Silverknife Mines Ltd. shareholders Thursday approved a plan to provide $260,000 for exploration and development work on the old Silvertip property in the Tootsee River area.

Kent

President Harry Fowler said 40 shareholders met at the Empress Hotel and voted unanimously to accept the offer of Northern Comstock Mines to finance the silver claims just below the Yukon border to production in exchange for 50 per cent of net proceeds.

Northern Comstock, of Vancouver, has as its directors Mr. Fowler; Art Becker, of Vancouver; president J. Peter Heron, of Kamloops, and Charles Craig, of Victoria.

Mr. Fowler said he is secretary-treasurer of Comstock. He and Mr. Craig also are directors of Rodstrom Yellowknife Mines Ltd., which has controlling interest of Silverknife.

Last November, Silverknife became the object of much attention in the speculative mining market and subsequently was suspended from Vancouver Stock Exchange unlisted section pending an investigation by the superintendent of brokers.

After eight weeks the order was lifted, but the superintendent said no new prospectuses for financing would be accepted until new engineering data on the property was submitted to the securities commission by a professional engineer employing "acceptable" procedures.

This was not thought to be possible until late in the season due to heavy snow on the property.

The plan adopted by shareholders Thursday does not require issuing new stock, however.

According to Mr. Fowler, the agreement calls for Northern Comstock to spend $50,000 immediately, and to that end a crew is now at Watson Lake preparing to rehabilitate the property's old camp and to undertake a gravity survey of the high grade mineral zone April 1.

Results of this survey were expected to be ready in time for the company's annual meeting April 30.

Northern Comstock will decide by Aug. 1 whether to proceed with the undertaking at a cost of a further $100,000, and again, within three years, whether to spend the remaining $100,000.

Mr. Fowler said administration costs would come out of the total $260,000.

If Northern Comstock decides not to develop the property, it will return the claims without encumbrances to Silverknife, Mr. Fowler said.

Fifty new claims were added to the earlier holdings within the last two weeks, he added.

There are 1,050,000 shares of Silverknife outstanding, of which Rodstrom has 400,000.

Canadian Petroleum Association's B.C. division Thursday elected J. C. Ebbels, of Shell Canada Ltd., Calgary, as its new chairman.

Meeting at the Union Club were some 40 representatives of member companies, many of them among the top three executive posts of Calgary-based oil company operations.

Vice-chairman is W. B. Dingle, assistant regional operations manager for Imperial Oil Ltd.; second vice-chairman and finance chairman S. G. Olson, vice-president of Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas Co. Ltd., and public information chairman M. C. McKinnon, executive vice-president of Central Del Rio Oils.

New directors added to the board included D. A. Axford, vice-president Mobil Oil Canada Ltd.; L. I. Brown, president Chevron Standard Ltd. (immediate past-chairman); J. P. Gallagher, president Dome Petroleum Ltd.; William Hope-Ross, general manager Placid Oil Co.; Mr. McKinnon, and R. R. Roethke, vice-president Union Oil Co. of Canada.

Let's talk REAL ESTATE

By JACK MEARS F.R.I.

Now that we have two offices and a growing organization, I can't help thinking back to when we opened the Oak Bay office. Our main ideal, at that time was to provide the best real estate service in town. I don't know if we have done that but there are certain things I do know. I know we have never lost our desire to achieve that. I know that in a period of over ten years I can count collapsed deals if not on the fingers of one hand at the most on those of two. I know that we have never landed either a Vendor or a Purchaser in trouble and I know that neither has ever been left in any doubt as to where we stand.

Last year, foreseeing a coming need to place real estate, insurance, financing and banking under one roof we joined hands with The Yorkshire & Canadian Trust Limited. They purchased a part of our business and we a much smaller part of theirs. As a result of this I moved to our downtown office at 737 Fort Street. Both sides feel they have benefitted from the association and it is becoming increasingly geared to helping our joint clients.

Where do we go from here. Frankly I don't know but I feel rather like "Avis." We still may be either the biggest or the best but we "try harder." We may not be or have the "smartest salesmen" but we do give the best advice and service we can. We feel we have had our fair share of deals and probably a few more than that. Our participation in the Yorkshire Financial Group gives us an association with Boultbee, Sweet Realty in Vancouver, the Cumberland Mortgage Corporation; and E. B. Cousins in Vernon. We would like some day to be of use to you. If we can help you, call me at the City Office at

Rangers Take Inside Track With 5-4 Win

By The Canadian Press

The late-season jogging for playoff positions makes this year's National Hockey League playoff run one of the most interesting races in recent years.

Montreal Canadiens have first place sewn up in the veteran Eastern Division, but the runner-up spot is still anybody's choice although New York Rangers have the inside track.

The season-long battle between Rangers and Boston reached a climax Thursday night when the New Yorkers claimed a 5-4 victory over the Bruins to move four points up with two games left.

To take second place, on the basis of the season's record between the two clubs, the Beantowners would have to win their remaining games while New York lost both.

BIG M SCORES TWO

In another Eastern Division game, tail-end Detroit Red Wings converted two goals by newcomer Frank Mahovlich into a 3-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks.

The expanded Western Division race also shapes up into a rousing finish that could be decided when the season winds up Sunday. Philadelphia Flyers reclaimed first place with a 2-0 win over St. Louis Blues in a game played at Quebec City.

The Flyers, with two games remaining, now have 73 points—two ahead of Los Angeles Kings. The King's only chance to nail down the division crown lies with the possibility that the Flyers will lose both their final games while Los Angeles wins its last game.

KINGS COULD WIN

Should the Kings win their remaining game in the 74-game schedule and the Flyers lose their last two games, then Los Angeles would win with a better season's record.

Donnie Marshall and Reg Fleming scored twice each to pace the New York victory with the other goal going to Phil Goyette.

Eddie Shack, Phil Esposito, Dallas Smith and Derek Sanderson scored for Boston.

Esposito's goal and an assist moved him into a second-place tie in league scoring with Gordie Howe of Detroit, who picked up an assist in the Red Wings victory.

Unfortunately for both, however, Stan Mikita of Chicago also earned an assist in the game and maintained his three-point lead as the league leader with 84 points on 39 goals and 45 assists.

Sudsy Support Scorned

A brewery-backed hockey team endorsed by city council sent shudders down the back of Ald. Robert Baird Thursday afternoon.

Ald. Clyde Savage had just suggested that Victoria city council should support Vancouver's bid to win a National Hockey League franchise.

Ald. Baird rose in horror.

"Here is a man supposedly supporting youth to the utmost on the one hand, and on the other asking this council to support a hockey team backed by a brewery.

"Youth at no time needs the sponsorship of a brewery. I am in hearty disagreement with this. Drinking and youth just don't go together—and don't forget drinking leads to other things," Ald. Baird said cryptically.

He found one supporter in his protest with the silent vote of Ald. Percy Frampton.

Aldermen Lily Wilson, Cecil Parrott, Lloyd Clarkson, Hugh Ramsay, Ian Stewart, Clyde Savage and the mayor voted in favor of supporting Vancouver.

PRESIDENT IN CITY

Little League Grows To Huge Organization

Although never a baseball player, Peter McGovern is president of an organization that provides baseball opportunities for approximately 1,800,000 youngsters in Europe, Asia and North America.

He is the boss of Little League.

Golf he does play, and after arriving in Victoria Wednesday night he played a round at Uplands the next morning.

McGovern opens a youth leadership seminar at the Chief Petty Officers' Mess, Esquimalt, at 9:30 on Saturday morning.

"Our ambition is to keep Little League baseball as a youth program," McGovern said. "Right now we govern 7,000 leagues and roughly 42,000 teams. And we like to think we are doing more good than harm to the youth of North America and Europe."

ANNUAL CONFERENCE

While in British Columbia he will also address 250 delegates from B.C. and 10 from Alberta to the second annual B.C. Little League conference in Vancouver over the weekend.

Since McGovern took the helm of the organization in 1952 its ranks have swelled from 1,000 to 7,000 leagues.

The Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa., has benefited from that growth and brings in substantial revenue from television rights as well as from thousands of spectators that flock there each year.

OPEN TO PUBLIC

Esquimalt sessions will be open to the public and start at 9:30 a.m. and 1:30 and 6:30 p.m.

"Next to the United States," McGovern explained, "Canada is the largest Little League organization in existence. Our program is rapidly catching on in Latin America and Japan, but today it is nowhere as big as it is in Canada."

BASKETBALL CHAMPS HONORED

Victoria's championship basketball teams received official government recognition at two sites Thursday. Diane Doyle, of Victoria Rawlings, is shown receiving medallion from Mayor Hugh Stephen as Canadian senior women's champions were honored in ceremony at City Hall. In Legislature Thursday night, Oak Bay's provincial high school champs received desk-thumping congratulations. Premier Benentt introduced coach Gary Taylor and team stars Don Burrows and Dave Morgan, who were on floor as special guests, and Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) introduced other team members. Fashion-Plate Sanders Likes Everything Glossy

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — If Doug Sanders doesn't win the Masters golf tournament in April, his next big goal will be the British Open in mid-July.

It's not that he isn't planning to press his one-stroke advantage over the field in today's second road of the Greater Jacksonville Open. But Sanders has won it before and he knows another prestige victory would establish him among the elite of the game.

"The British Open to me could excel the big American tournaments such as the Masters, U.S. Open and PGA," Sanders said. "I have business interests overseas and I figure the British Open would mean half a million dollars more to me than any of the three major tournaments in the United States."

NO. 5 ON LIST

Sanders stands fifth in the list of modern era money winners in golf. His earnings of $493,655 rank right behind Arnold Palmer, Bill Casper, Jack Nicklaus and Julius Boros. All of them have won more than one major event and are secure.

Sanders headed the pack with a seven-under-par 65 into the second round of the $100,000 Jacksonville Open.

He shot an easy eagle—two wood shots and a two-foot putt—and five birdies in Thursday's opening round.

Steve Reid, Al Geiberger, Gardner Dickinson, Dewitt Weaver Jr. and Julius Boros were at 66. Don January, Richard Martinez, Chi-Chi Rodriguez and Bobby Nichols were at 67.

Defending champ Dan Sikes was among a dozen at 68 after an erratic round including an eagle, three birdies and a bogey.

Al Balding of Toronto and Gary Player were at 69 and Palmer at 70. But Nicklaus at 74 faced the necessity of a good second round to make the cut for the final 36 holes Saturday and Sunday.

The leaders:

Doug Sanders	34-31—65
Julius Boros	32-34—66
DeWitt Weaver	33-33—66
Al Geiberger	34-32—66
Gardner Dickinson	32-34—66

Canucks Improve Fading Prospects

SEATTLE (AP) — Vancouver Canucks downed Seattle Totems 3-1 Thursday night to move ahead of Phoenix Roadrunners again in the battle for the final playoff position in the Western Hockey League.

The odds remain with Phoenix, however, as the league heads into its final weekend.

The fourth-place Canucks, now one point ahead of Phoenix, wind up their schedule tonight when they meet Portland Buckaroos in Vancouver.

Phoenix is at home to third-place San Diego tonight and Saturday night and then closes out against San Diego in the California city Sunday.

BIG GAME FOR O'KEEFES . . . . . . ALSO CUP CONTEST

It's a Two-In-One Match

A crucial fight for first should be enough to sprinkle added interest on any match.

But Victoria O'Keefes, at the insistence of the B.C. Soccer Commission, will step out Sunday to kick for two soccer prizes.

Their scheduled Macdonald Park (2 p.m.) match with Vancouver Columbus loomed all-important because first place in the Pacific Coast Soccer League will be at stake.

O'Keefes and Columbus also were scheduled to meet later in the quarter-finals of the Province Cup competition. Because of a demanding schedule, the soccer commission has requested the teams to consider Sunday's result as their Province Cup match.

Ergo: The two-in-one match.

Both Columbus and O'Keefes have played 16 games. UBC Thunderbirds hold down first with 23 points, but have completed their regular PCSL schedule. O'Keefes follow with 21 points, two more than Columbus.

A Victoria victory would knock Columbus out of the running for first place. O'Keefes then would need only a tie in their final match (April 6) against Burnaby Villa to pick off first place.

Now King James Feels Legitimate

Sharron Claims Women's Singles; Open Under Way

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Jamie Paulson feels "legitimate" now.

And Sharon Whittaker is hoping she will continue to refrain from peeking into the future.

They are Canada's best badminton players and the home-crew hopes to watch as the curtain of national competition parts from "closed" to "open" at the Racquet Club today.

Paulson, 19 and spry as a whip, went "legit" Thursday night by edging Vancouver's Wayne Macdonnell from the national men's singles throne.

Officially, the edging process was recorded 13-15, 15-4, 15-9. Respectful, but impressive.

Sharon, consistently reminding herself of the present, moved onto the women's throne by defeating defending champion Alison Daysmith, 11-7, 11-4.

The singles battles drew the curtain on the "closed" portion of the annual Canadian tournament. Today, the more exciting "open" battles began with challengers from India, Thailand, Japan and the United States lining up with the Canadian titleholders.

Play got under way this morning and 31 matches will carry the field to the quarter-finals by this evening. Semi-finals get under way at 1 p.m. Saturday and the finals at 7:00.

The dethroning of champions by Whittaker and Paulson held most of the interest Friday, but there was excitement in the doubles.

CHANGE IN MIXED

Paulson and Montreal's Yves Pare retained the men's doubles title while Pat Moody and Jean Miller followed form in the women's final.

The mixed trophy, however, moved from east to west as Vancouver's Mimi Nilsson and Rolf Paterson defeated the defenders, Mrs. Moody and Pare, 15-11, 15-5.

The Paulson-Pare pairing defeated Bruce Rollick and Bert Fergus 15-6, 15-9. Montreal's Moody and Miller carefully and cleverly carved out a 15-10, 15-7 decision over Miss Whittaker and Miss Nilsson.

Paulson, capping a five-year quest, performed brilliantly in defeating Macdonnell after the Vancouver ace had dominated Canadian finals for six straight years.

It wasn't unexpected, but even Jamie couldn't contain himself after taking the game point. When Macdonnell's return carried too far, his Calgary rival whirled and flung his racquet high and hard against a Racquet Club wall.

SUPERB CONDITIONING

Paulson, just returned from a month-long overseas visit, admitted he "really wanted to win" the Canadian title.

"When I was overseas," Paulson said, "I was bothered by the feeling I wasn't legitimate. Although I was the only Canadian in tournaments, I didn't feel I could represent Canada because I wasn't a Canadian champion."

He admitted feeling much better after disposing of Macdonnell in a thrilling, strength-sapping finale. The 19-year-old showed a variety of excellent shots, good strategy and actually out-lasted a 27-year-old rival who is noted for his superb conditioning.

Paulson consistently kept forcing Macdonnell to the back court, giving the Vancouver ace few chances to uncork some of his vaunted smashes.

FORMER VICTORIANS

Miss Whittaker was in complete command against Miss Daysmith in a final that brought together two former Victorians. Sharron, now teaching at UBC, seemed content to rely on allowing Alison to make the mistakes.

Perhaps lacking from a steady diet of good competition by living in Seattle, Miss Daysmith appeared to make more errors than expected.

But, to Sharron, the key to victory stemmed from the fact that she constantly kept reminding herself of the time.

"I have a bad habit of looking ahead. Instead of playing it point by point, I tended to look ahead to the next two or three points.

"This time, I just played it point by point."

Annual Races For Ski Club

Members of the Sno-Birds Ski Club will be skimming down slopes at Green Mountain Sunday in the club's annual races.

South Meadow rope tow will be in operation and club officials hope to obtain use of the T-bar tow. Limited snowmobile service is planned and overnight accommodation and cooking facilities will be available for guests, who must provided their own sleeping bags and food.

Fresh snow is reported at Green Mountain and 12 inches of new snow on the three-foot base is reported from Forbidden Plateau, where all tows are operating.

Calgary Star Triple Winner

Calgary swatters were in the spotlight Thursday as junior titles were decided in the Canadian badminton championships.

Brian Dick, runner-up to fellow Calgarian Jamie Paulson in last year's junior men's singles, was the big winner as he swept all three events he entered.

In the singles, Dick waged a mighty battle with clubmate Mike Paterson before blasting out an 18-13, 10-15, 15-11 triumph over the Calgary and Alberta champion as the singles finals were staged at the Racquet Club.

In earlier finals played at Cordova Bay Community Hall, he partnered Paterson for a doubles victory and combined with Sherri Boyse to collect the mixed doubles crown.

Paterson and Dick has a tough struggle with the Ontario pair of Don Ross and Doug McGillivray before getting home with a 17-14, 15-13 decision.

There was more hard work waiting for Brian in the mixed final, in which he and Miss Boyse battled from behind to clip another Calgary duo, Paterson and Wilma Marriott, 5-15, 15-7, 17-14.

Miss Boyse failed in a bid to retain her singles crown in a battle with Toronto's Nancy McKinley, who was ousted by Barbara Nash of Vancouver in last years' quarter-final round.

Miss McKinley, the current Ontario junior and senior champion, handed Miss Boyse an 11-7, 11-6 defeat.

Playing with Sandra Kolb, Miss Boyse also came out on the short end of the score in the women's doubles final. The Calgarians won the first game 17-14 against Miss Nash and Jane Dubord but the Vancouver pair came back to take the crown with 15-10, 15-6 margins in the final two games.

SPORTS DIARY

By SHIRLEY POVICH

(The Washington Post)

BRADENTON, Fla. — He showed up on the ball field shirted in a sleeved jersey of misty green that peeked from beneath a vest of wedding-gown white. Matching knickers were set off by gold-striped socks, and at the waist he was belted in Kelly green. On his face he wore a palpable blush. It said he was ashamed of the whole thing, and please forgive.

This was Joe DiMaggio, once the symbol of the impeccably sedate New York Yankee pinstripes that for decades had been the badge of quiet class on the ball field. Now he was all liveried in the uniform that is the sartorial horror confected by Charles O. Finley for his Oakland Athletics who, in the main, are the same Kansas City A's of last year.

DiMaggio is an addition, as the new executive vice-president of the club, hired by Finley, upon whom was not lost the appreciation that DiMaggio is an enduring idol in the San Francisco Bay area. DiMaggio does not yet have an exact definition of his duties which are, vaguely, to help the club in any way he can and also to make friends for the flamboyant Finley.

The outrageous get-up of the team is explained by the fact that Finley fancies himself as a sort of pace-setter in mod raiment of the baseball diamond. Thus far he has succeeded only in creating a riot of low taste that has left fans to guess whether it is a man, a bird or a ball player that is arrayed in all that plumage Finley has decreed for his athletes.

DiMaggio makes haste to explain that Finley does not insist his new executive vice-president don the players' monkey suit. "I have two options," he said. "I can stay in my street clothes and make it an office job, or I can wear one of these rigs and get out on the field with the players in spring training. I prefer to get close to the players."

He has a blank cheque from manager Bob Kennedy to coach any player DiMaggio believes he might help. "Why not?" said Kennedy. "Where are you going to find a coach who knows more about going for a fly ball, or getting away a quick throw or swinging a bat the right way. I'm grateful to have Joe around." Kennedy pointed out that the A's are a tender club in need of special baseball schooling. "Our 40-man roster only averages 23 years of age," he said.

It wasn't DeMaggio's intention when he accepted Finley's offer of an executive post with the team to join the A's on a spiked-shoe level. "But this is where the most fun is, out here on the field," he said. "I'm enjoying it, even the bus rides to the exhibition games." When he was a Yankee, the exhibition games didn't mean bus rides for DiMaggio. He was ferried around Florida in the private planes of either of the co-owners, Dan Topping or Del Webb.

During the nearly 20 years he has been out of baseball, DiMaggio secretly has been yearning to get back into it, he said. When he quit the Yankees it was in a sort of good-riddance spirit. He wouldn't hang on beyond his time, as a pathetic back-slider, and he was not enamored of Casey Stengel, the Yankee manager who, DiMaggio believed, was determined to show he would win pennants without DiMaggio.

"I wanted back in baseball, but nobody asked me until Mr. Finley came along with his offer," DiMaggio said. "I know all the stories about him, but there is no need for us to clash. He's the owner, with an owner's privileges, and as long as he doesn't challenge my personal dignity I guess we can get along."

DiMaggio says he will confer frequently with manager Kennedy, and recommend player deals to Finley and Kennedy. But the continuing suspicion is that Finley hired him chiefly as a showpiece in the Bay area where the Oakland club will be competing for fans with the San Francisco Giants, who have had it all their own way in that populous community since 1958.

Finley's A's need help. They were a woeful tenth last year at Kansas City. Oakland's novelty of being in the majors will sustain the attention initially, and DiMaggio's presence is another plus. So is Oakland's new, beautiful 50,000-seat park, a contrast with the Giants' ill-located Candlestick Park with its built-in tornadoes.

In addition to their support in Oakland, the A's will be aiming for the allegiance of nearly 500,000 potential fans in the Santa Clara Valley-San Jose area who, geographically, are uncommitted to either Oakland or San Francisco. DiMaggio, who is increasingly promotion-minded, said, "If we get off to a good start, we could have those fans."

The Finley-DiMaggio alliance is about as unlikely an axis as could be conjured. Their history in baseball would indicate they are absolutely incompatible. One has been deplored, the other adored. But DiMaggio has a special type of security. He is the only executive vice-president in the majors who has a two-year agreement drawn up for him by his personal friend, attorney Edward Bennett Williams, who when he writes a contract writes in iron.

Hunters, Anglers Pay Higher Fees

By STEWART LANG

Higher licence fees for hunters and fishermen in British Columbia will become effective April 1 with the increased revenue scheduled to be channeled into more intensive game management programs.

Most of the increase falls on tags. Only two raises are set for angling fees and none on the actual hunting licences.

Increased tag prices are: Deer—$1.00 (up 50-cents), elk—$5.00 (up $3.00), caribou—$5.00 (up $2.00), moose $6.00 (up $1.00) and grizzly bear — $10.00 (up $5.00).

In addition, the resident anglers licence is up $1.00 to $3.00 and the short-term non-resident fee is now $3.50.

Victoria Gun Club will hold its annual trophy trap shoot Sunday at 1 p.m.

Competition will consist of 200 birds in four events—16 yards (A, B, C, and D classes), doubles, handicap and open for the Colonist trophy. Trophies will be awarded for each class of the 16-yard event.

Waters around Victoria have seen little traffic from the fishing set during the past few days because of poor weather, but some who ventured out managed to collect salmon.

Joe Smith of Pedder Bay Marina reports slow returns although Henry Rollins brought in five fish Tuesday, including two 12-pounders

Bud Blackburn of Anglers' Anchorage reports a concentration of big salmon in Tod Inlet. The big ones are also hitting Tomic Plug or minnow along the "Wall" toward Willis Point.

At daybreak, blues may be taken offshore in the "Triangle" consisting of Tod Inlet, Willis Point and the Bamberton shore.

Rex Welland of Oak Bay Marina reports that grilse and bluebacks seem to have moved out of the adjacent waters.

Guide Bob Pepper reported Thursday that five fish from six to 12 pounds were taken near Fiddle Reef.

Nancy's Fall Prolongs World Cup Argument

ROSSLAND (CP) — With victory virtually assured, Jean-Claude Killy, of France, can afford to be casual—and was Thursday night—about the race today in which he can clinch his second World Cup ski title.

"I just arrived here," he said. "I don't know who's racing against me. I haven't looked at the course at all yet. . . . I won't practise before the slalom but I don't mind."

Killy has 186 points in cup standings. The only way he could lose would be if Gerhard Nenning of Austria wins his next four races at the Red Mountain meet here or at Heavenly Valley, Calif., April 6-7.

Killy's French ski team coaches dismissed Nenning's chances and named American skier Rick Chaffee, 23, as a threat in the slalom today, second day of the four-day international meet.

Coaches expected fewer disqualifications and falls in the men's event than there were in the women's slalom Thursday, won by Marielle Goitschel, of France.

20 DISQUALIFIED

Twenty women were disqualified and 12 others, including Nancy Greene of Rossland, defending world women's champion, fell and did not finish the race over two tough courses.

"The women's course was a catastrophe," said French women's coach Jean Beranger. "They are tired so late in the season. But the men's race will be different because they are stronger."

Chaffee, U.S. slalom and giant slalom champion from Rutland, Vt., grinned at the French coaches' selecting him as a threat and said:

"That's nice . . . but you have to call Killy the best."

Nenning has only 92 points but can pick up enough points to edge Killy. Dumeng Giovanoli of Switzerland, also entered here, has 117 but can't pick up enough to take the title.

This is because a skier uses his best three finishes for points. A race winner gets 25 but if, for example, his best three previously were 24-25-20, he would pick up only five points for 25-25-25.

HOPING FOR BETTER

Overnight freezing was expected on the course and coaches looked for good conditions today.

Fernande Bochatay of Switzerland was second in the women's slalom in 91.96 seconds, 1.5 behind Miss Goitschel. Miss Greene's fall prolonged the fight for the women's cup.

If Miss Greene wins the women's giant slalom Sunday and Isabelle Mir of France is out of the top four, Miss Greene wins the cup. Otherwise, the contest will continue at Heavenly Valley.

Killy was prepared to pass up this meet, confident that Nenning can't win four straight, but decided to race only in the slalom "just for Nancy Greene.

"I promised her I would."

The U.S. women's team Thursday lost Cathy Nagel, 19, of Enumclaw, Wash., suffering bleeding in a hip joint after a slalom fall. It was not known how long she would be out of action.

But the team had some consolation. Kiki Cutter, 18, of Bend, Ore., was third in the slalom in 92.52 seconds and Wendy Allen, 23 of San Pedro, Calif., fourth in 92.60.

Track Program Blooms

A track and field training program is currently under way through the auspices of the Royal Canadian Legion and the Victoria and District Track and Field Association.

Youngsters between the ages of 11 and 17 have been working out at Lansdowne Junior High School from 7 'til 9 p.m. on Thursdays. Anyone interested in following the field may register at that time.

In operation for three years, the program has lured approximately 120 young athletes.

Last year, the Legion sponsored one of the biggest inter-area track meet in Victoria.

Golden Glovers Featured on Card

London Boxing and Athletic Club will stage an amateur boxing card at the Club Tango tonight, starting at 8.

Four golden gloves champions —Fred Fuller, Bobby Kacer, Brian Zelley and Dick Findlay —will be featured. Other battlers on the card include Tony James, Ken Macdonald, Gary van Buskirk and Les Vegas.

Optimists Meet Nanaimo Squad

Victoria Evening Optimists match skills with Harewood Skillings of Nanaimo in a provincial quarter-final soccer game Sunday, starting at 12 noon at Heywood Avenue Park.

In a division seven quarter-final, Lake Hill Kiwanis will play Marpole Sports Club in Vancouver's Elm Street Park at 2 p.m.

Softball Registration

Softball registration for boys and girls from eight to 18 years in the View Royal area will take place in the View Royal firehall Saturday at 10 a.m. Four divisions — peewee, midget, bantam and juvenile—have to be filled.

Upholsterer Henry stitched together 204-214-278 — 696 series at Mayfair Lanes in Friday Niters League.

Flyers Returning To Troubled Rink

PHILADELPHIA (AP-CP) — The National Hockey League's Philadelphia Flyers, without a permanent home since the Spectrum here was damaged March 1, announced Thursday the team will play its Stanley Cup playoff games here.

The team had been playing most of its games at Quebec City since the stadium was closed after its roof was damaged.

Philadelphia '76ers, the city's team in the National Basketball Association, also will resume play at the Spectrum next week.

The Flyers said Thursday, after being assured by the city a safe-and-sound Spectrum would be available, that it would play its first Stanley Cup playoff game there next Thursday.

A city official said it was possible the '76ers would be able to play an NBA game at the Spectrum Wednesday, if the current Eastern Division semi-final series with the New York Knickerbockers isn't over by then.

A new roof should be finished by Friday night, a city spokesman said, and a temporary operating permit will be issued.

San Diego Signs Houston's Hayes

SAN DIEGO — Elvin "Big E" Hayes, star of the University of Houston team, has been signed by San Diego Rockets of the National Basketball Association.

Terms of the contract were not announced but are expected to call for $440,000 over four years as the Rockets, who made their NBA debut this season, won a bidding war with Houston of the fledgling American Basketball Association.

The Mavericks are said to have offered $500,000 but Hayes said he wanted "to play against the best, and that's the NBA."

Brewer Chosen On All Ballots

TOLEDO, Ohio (CP) — Carl Brewer, a former all-star with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, was a unanimous choice for the first all-star team in the International Hockey League this season.

Brewer, a defenceman with Muskegon Mohawks, was reinstated as an amateur a year after he walked out of the Maple Leafs training camp in the autumn of 1965.

His rights were retained by the Leafs, who dealt them to Detroit Red Wings earlier this month although Brewer will not be allowed to play in the NHL until next December.

Clair Continues To Clean House

OTTAWA (CP) — Trampled by Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Eastern Football Conference last year amid reports of dissension, Ottawa Rough Riders have made their second pre-season trade and a third may be on its way, it was learned Thursday.

Coach Frank Clair's latest move at rebuilding his club came in a deal with Saskatchewan Roughriders of the Western Conference. The Ottawa club has sent Billy Cline, import defensive-back and back-up quarterback, and Canadian halfback Larry DeGraw to the Western club in return for Canadian-linemen Tom Beyan and Moe Levesque.

Levesque actually came to Ottawa last year and DeGraw is to be the payment for a debt owed to Saskatchewan.

Cline, who understudied quarterback Russ Jackson, did the punting and played in the defence backfield, became expendable earlier this year when Ottawa obtained Bill Van Burkleo from Winnipeg Blue Bombers in a five-player deal.

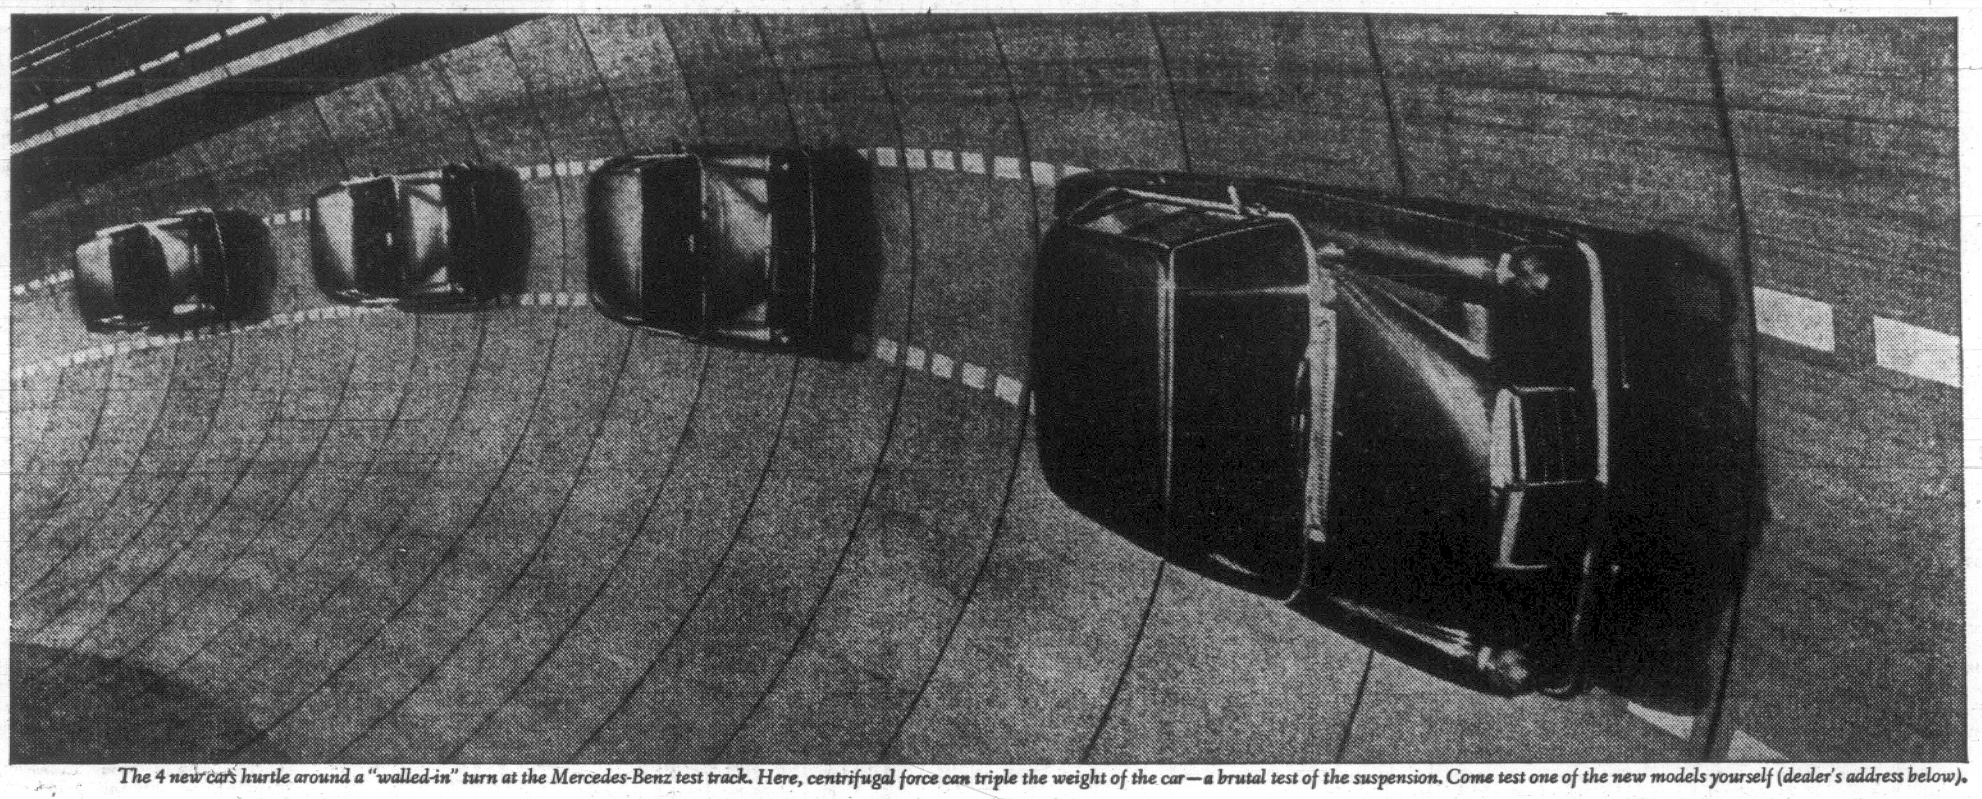
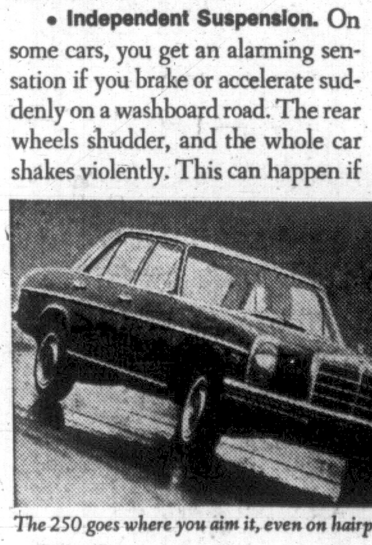
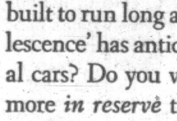
There's Pease In Lions' Camp

VANCOUVER (CP) — John Pease, a 235-pound, two-way halfback and former junior college All-American, has been signed by British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference. Pease, 23, a late cut by Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League last year, can play halfback or fullback on offence and halfback or linebacker on defence.







The 4 new cars hurtle around a "walled-in" turn at the Mercedes-Benz test track. Here, centrifugal force can triple the weight of the car—a brutal test of the suspension. Come test one of the new models yourself (dealer's address below).

Announcing 4 defiantly "over-engineered" cars from Mercedes-Benz.

An automotive expert previewed the 4 new Mercedes-Benz motor cars in our picture.

His sum-up: "Over-engineered."

He was right. By most standards, these Mercedes-Benz motor cars are "over-engineered." They go far beyond the requirements of conventional automotive engineering.

Example: Every one of the 4 new Mercedes-Benz cars has power disc brakes on all 4 wheels. The same braking system used on 180-mph Grand Prix racing cars. Some critics would say this is too much of a good thing—needless in most driving situations. Mercedes-Benz engineers say, "Nonsense. Caliper-type disc brakes have proved, in test after test, that they provide the most precise braking possible—at all speeds. Put them wherever you've got a wheel."

Incidentally, Mercedes-Benz doesn't believe in naming its cars after animals, fish, and miscellaneous wildlife. After all, a car is a machine. It shouldn't sound like it belongs in a zoo. The names of the four new Mercedes-Benz models (the 250, the 230, the 220 Diesel, and the 220) simply indicate engine size. The 250, for example, displaces 2.5 liters.

What "over-engineering" means to you.

"Over-engineering" isn't a jazzy, hoked-up advertising phrase. It has meaning for anybody who's ever been dismayed by the lack of genuine engineering and craftsmanship in a contemporary motor car. It has meaning for anybody who's ever driven a car with mushy steering, lazy brakes, annoying rattles, and seats that leave you feeling like you took a long spin in a cement mixer.

"Over-engineering" is reflective of a basic Mercedes-Benz attitude, best expressed by Automobile Quarterly Magazine: "The prime concern of Mercedes-Benz has always been engineering—not styling, or sales, or what the rest of the industry is doing."

"Over-engineering" makes the new line of Mercedes-Benz cars handle differently, steer differently, brake differently than any conventional automobile on the market. They are, in fact, decidedly *un*conventional motor cars. Here are some facts to prove it:

• Unitized Body and Chassis. Most conventional automobiles have a separate body and chassis, held together with bolts. After a while, the bolts can work loose and rattle. On a rough road, the racket can be deafening.

Mercedes-Benz engineers insist that their cars deliver rattle-free performance. That's why the body is welded to the chassis with 10,000 individual welds. The result: a single structure of immense strength and rigidity. After 50,000 miles or so, you may begin to wonder if your Mercedes-Benz will ever rattle.

• Independent Suspension. On some cars, you get an alarming sensation if you brake or accelerate suddenly on a washboard road. The rear wheels shudder, and the whole car shakes violently. This can happen if the car has a conventional rigid "beam" axle.

The 250 goes where you aim it, even on hairpin turns.

Mercedes-Benz engineers patented an all-independent suspension that gives each wheel the freedom to move up and down without disturbing the others. On a washboard road, the suspension is soft enough to smother road jolts. On a tight curve, it's firm enough to fight body sway.

This unique suspension system is one of 5,200 basic engineering patents held by Mercedes-Benz.

• "Fatigue-proof" seats. Take a day-long trip in some cars and you'll come out feeling like a damp washrag. Those seats that felt so good at first turned out to be too soft in the long run.

A word about that word "Announcing"

Mercedes-Benz does not announce new models very often. There are no annual model change-overs. And "planned obsolescence" has never been part of the Mercedes-Benz philosophy. Nor will it be (the engineers are pretty defiant about that, too).

When a new model is introduced, it is only when significant engineering advances can be most fully realized by designing an entirely new car.

Even then, new models are not introduced to meet the frantic schedules of the "announcement season." They are put on the market when Mercedes-Benz engineers say the cars are ready—not a day sooner.

For these 4 new models, the engineers spent 5 years making sure—from drawing board to the test track to the dealer's showrooms today. The wait is worth it. These are the best automobiles Mercedes-Benz has ever built.

Mercedes-Benz cars are built to be as comfortable as they are roadworthy. Orthopedic physicians were called in to help design the seats so that you'll have proper back support on cross-country tours as well as short hops to the shopping center. When you slip into one of these carefully contoured seats, it will feel firm at first, but once you get used to it, you'll never settle for "marshmallow" seats again.

Mercedes-Benz engineers have respect for your backbone.

• Indefatigable engines. If it was possible to cruise for hours in your car at full throttle, what do you think would happen? You'd probably reduce the motor to a smoking ruin.

Mercedes-Benz engines are designed to cruise at full throttle all day long, because on the wide-open highways of Europe, they often do! The engine of every Mercedes-Benz automobile is assembled to aircraft tolerances. The bearings, for instance, are machined to 4/10,000ths of an inch—about one-eighth the size of a human hair.

To help you decide.

The only way to appreciate Mercedes-Benz features and philosophy of "over-engineering" is to take a demonstration drive.

Here's a fact-capsule on each of the four new cars, to help you decide which one you'd like to test drive:

The 250: "A 3,000-pound sedan with the handling ability of a sports car."

The 250 is the premier model of the new Mercedes-Benz motor cars. Top speed of the 250 is comparable to a standard V-8, yet its fuel economy is that of a Six. Its outside dimensions are close to a domestic compact, but inside measurements are nearer to those of a full-size luxury car. "Over-engineering" makes it worth every penny of its $5,875.*

The 230: " For those who want superb engineering in a modestly priced car."

The 230's engine is a little smaller, simpler, and less powerful than the 250's, but its overhead camshaft engine still squeezes power and economy from every drop of gas. If you like the 250 but don't demand its highly sophisticated engine, you could pocket a tidy saving. The 230's price is a modest $5,044.*

The 220 Diesel: "So economical, it doesn't even use gasoline."

This is the one car in the Mercedes-Benz line that runs on Diesel fuel. The sturdy Diesel engine does away with carburetors, spark plugs and other paraphernalia of the conventional gasoline engine, yet has enough power to cruise at 80 mph (where the law allows). The 220 Diesel is more expensive than conventional economy cars, yet it could save you more money in the long run (say, 100,000 miles or more) than the flimsiest little economy car you could buy. Price: $4,898.*

The 220: "For people who are diffident about Diesels."

The 220 is exactly the same car as the 220 Diesel except that it does not have a Diesel engine. The 220 has a ruggedly powerful engine that sips gasoline at a miserly rate. Price: $4,725.*

Take a test drive

We invite you to test drive these models yourself. Right now, they are on display in our showroom—ready for your inspection. Kick the tires. Slam the door. Raise the hood. Get behind the wheel. Then make your own decision about "over-engineering." You'll probably find it boils down to this: "Do you want more engineering than most cars offer you these days? Do you want a car that's built to run long after 'planned obsolescence' has antiquated conventional cars? Do you want a car that has more in reserve than you may ever need?"

If that proposition sounds interesting, come in today—and see 4 new motor cars that were "built to be the best, not the best seller."

'Kind of Youth Can Do Without'

A letter written by one of the Victoria Low Income Group protesters was brandished in the legislature Thursday as an example of the kind of youth involvement in community affairs that B.C. can do without.

Welfare Minister Dan Campbell said the letter was written on Company of Young Canadians' letterhead but declined to name the writer or the person to whom it was addressed.

In the letter the writer complained of being locked out of the Legislative Buildings when he returned with a sleeping bag at one o'clock one morning to rejoin others in a rotunda sleep-in to protest low welfare payments.

The letter described an attendant who refused admission to the youth as "warlike in character," "mongoloid in intellect" and "a strange man."

It said the provincial employee showed "arrogance, inanity and a general crassness unsullied by wit," Mr. Campbell reported.

It also demanded the man be fired for not letting the writer in, for discourtesy and for incompetence.

"Oh, this is real great stuff," said the minister, describing the letter as a product of the wrong kind of youth involvement.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan several times demanded that the letter be tabled in the House but Mr. Campbell refused on the grounds he had only quoted a part of it.

The interlude ended with Ernest Hall (NDP—Surrey) suggesting:

. . . And So It Goes

Spectators in the public gallery: "We want Phil! We want Phil! We want Phil!"

Nimsick: "You can have him."

Bruch, interrupting Opposition Leader Strachan who was talking about George Washington never telling a lie, during welfare estimates: "I want to warn the member that Washington was not on welfare."

Bruch, after pounding the gavel several times to keep members on the subject: "... For the last time ..."

Berger: "What is this, an auction?"

Barrett, appealing to Campbell for lighter case loads for welfare workers: "In your heart, Mr. Chairman, he knows I'm right."

Barrett to Campbell about Brannen Lake training school for boys: "Don't tell me it's a treatment centre. You know it's not a treatment centre."

Macdonald: "I know it."

Barrett: "He knows it."

Campbell: "He's a Macdonald."

Barrett: "You're a Campbell."

Barrett, urging Campbell to give up one of his two cabinet portfolios so he could do a better job on the other: "I want to make a plea to you on behalf of your anxious backbenchers who are examining cabinet vacancies over coffee in the dining room."

'Mothers Showed Backbone'

Victoria's marching welfare mothers showed "the kind of backbone that parents should pass on to their children," the legislature was told Thursday.

"That's the kind of drive we want to foster," social worker David Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) told Welfare Minister Dan Campbell during debate on welfare department estimates.

Other NDP members joined in defending the right of the welfare mothers to protest low welfare payments.

The demonstrations ended last week after some of the mothers, members of the Victoria Low Income Group, sat in on a legislative dinner at the Empress Hotel.

Mr. Barrett said the present scale of welfare payments is too low.

"Where is the opportunity for motivation? How are these mothers to maintain their pride by staying out of the bureaucratic clutches of your department?" he asked, calling for higher payments.

Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) said the mothers were "genuinely right in coming here to get the attention of government" and Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) said they had "an absolutely iron-clad case that their children are not getting enough in the way of good food and clothing."

Secretary Named For Harbors Board

John Southworth, executive officer of the B.C. Energy Board, has taken on the additional responsibility of executive secretary of the B.C. Harbors Board.

The appointment was announced Thursday by Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

Bottle Drive

About 50 Cubs and Scouts from the First Douglas district will hold a bottle drive in the Quadra - Tolmie - Douglas area Saturday.

Volunteers will be after pop and beer empties to raise money for scouting projects.

Three years ago, we came up with a big idea: SMALL PRICES

When we started business, we felt there was room for an optical company that would make high-quality glasses without the high prices, and we've been successful. London Drugs Ltd., Optical Dept., has become one of the city's large optical companies, with thousands of satisfied customers.

How did we do it? There's no big secret involved. We use the same modern automated production methods as other optical companies, and fine quality materials. We just make less profit per pair. No compromise in quality is necessary. You can prove that to yourself: Get a pair of London Drugs Ltd. optical glasses, take them back to your eye doctor and have him check them against the prescription he gave you. We make prescription-perfect glasses. But we still sell them from $9.95*, single vision glasses complete. Just because we made it big doesn't mean we have to charge that way.

*Depending on your prescription and style of frame you select.

WE DON'T AND WON'T MAKE ANY SACRIFICE ON QUALITY, SERVICE AND SATISFACTION.

CHRYSLER

best power for any fishing boat afloat! Meet the 9.9, one of the all new fishing engines by Chrysler. Most powerful 'under 10' on the market. Gets you out there where the big ones are. Our new 9.9 has pushed our 14' test boat and driver 23 mph (has even pulled a full grown skier!), yet she'll troll all day with hardly a murmur. Shallows are no problem, either. Chrysler's exclusive Depth Minder drive lets you operate in a mere 6 inches of water ... and the spline-drive prop won't pick up weeds, ends shear pin changing forever. And just look at that new low-profile design. It's designed to make your carrying, stowing and operation that much easier ... lets you fish across the stern, too. When it comes to fishing outboards, Chrysler has the big edge. From the all new 4.4, through the 6.6 and 9.9 to a completely new 20, they're all backed by Chrysler engineering excellence and the famous Chrysler warranty.

Ex-MLA Stabbed 'By Own Party'

An opposition MLA Thursday praised former Victoria Social Credit MLA J. Donald Smith as a fighter for pensioners who had been stabbed by his own party.

David Barrett (NDP — Coquitlam) unleashed withering scorn on Minister Without Portfolio Mrs. Isobel Dawson for remaining silent during a debate on welfare estimates involving senior citizens in need although she had been assigned to work with the division of the aged.

His criticism made her cheeks redden but she refused his challenge "to stand up and say something for these pensioners."

Mr. Barrett also attacked Works Minister Chant and Waldo Skillings, both Victoria Socred MLAs, for remaining silent about the problems of many pensioners in the city with the highest proportion of senior citizens.

He said that provincial regulations are so severe in restricting supplementary allowances to the elderly that a pensioner with a life insurance policy worth more than $500 to his spouse is denied any supplementary assistance for that reason alone.

"That honorable member for Victoria J. Donald Smith stood up one night (during the 1965 session) and fought the cabinet tooth and nail for bus passes for senior citizens," said Mr. Barrett.

DIDN'T CONFORM

"And what happened to him? He was beat out at a nominating convention because he didn't conform."

(Mr. Smith lost renomination for the 1966 election when the three-seat Victoria riding was cut to two seats by redistribution.)

"Many of us remember him that night when he lay his political career on the line for senior citizens yet here we have a minister of portfolio who is paid $6,000 extra salary for being responsible for them and yet she won't even get up to speak for them," said Mr. Barrett.

"The spirit of J. Donald Smith was laid to rest by the political manoeuvring of this government.

"Where are the two members for Victoria? Why aren't they on their feet fighting for these citizens?

"All we get from them is silence and the A plus B theorem.

"This government doesn't care about senior citiznes but who do you think spent their lives working and building the dams of this province, including the one named W. A. C. Bennett?

"Many of the people who built this province need help but all this government gives them is double-talk."

WAC TO ASK FOR INTERIM SUPPLY?

Premier Bennett is expected to ask the legislature for interim supply of about $72 million to carry on government operations.

The unusual request — for one-twelfth of the budget — may be forced by the length of the session.

The current fiscal year runs out Sunday and the estimates for his $866 million budget for the new fiscal year beginning Monday still haven't been completed.

However, there is a slight chance he won't ask for the advance payment and just rely of diverting cash flow for a few days to meet bills —such as civil service wages

Music World Pays Respects

Singers, choristers and members of several city churches crowded into Thomson and Irving's chapel Thursday afternoon to pay their last respects to Mrs. Ida Tupman, wife of Victoria choir leader Frank Tupman.

Mrs. Tupman died in Mount St. Mary's Hospital Sunday from multiple sclerosis. She had been ill for 16 years.

Rev. Albert King, who conducted the service, said Mrs. Tupman's brave struggle against creeping paralysis "gives us courage to bear our own infirmities."

"She adapted herself to every stage of her illness. When she could no longer speak, she wrote, and when she could no longer write, she learned to type. At the end there was nothing left but a smile."

Mr. Tupman, the minister said, continued giving inspiration to city choirs while enduring the heavy burden of his wife's illness.

Ten years ago, when she knew she was dying, Mrs. Tupman planned her own funeral. She chose the hymn, O Love that Will Not Let Me Go, and she chose the pallbearers.

They were James McVie, Frank Hall, John Hobden, Lionel Connelly, Ivan Green and Alfred Sheard.

Student Enrolment Restricted by UBC

VANCOUVER (CP) — The University of British Columbia has decided to restrict enrolment next fall, by more strictly enforcing existing requirements.

A university spokesman said Thursday the board of governors had agreed to clamp down on late applications and late registrations. This would affect about 400 applicants, mostly from outside B.C., he estimated.

UBC is expected to increase its enrolment from 18,400 to around 20,000 this fall.

The University of Victoria and Simon Fraser University have already announced they will not have to turn students away this fall.

Anyone Can Enter Gorge Race Sunday

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

With a little imagination, a person can conjure up visions of punting on the Thames, the Cam, or the Cherwell. Very simple, really.

Hewett

You merely join with boat or camera in Sunday's Gorge Race, when the sailing prams will splash a vivid swath along the waterway from Craigflower Park to the Inner Harbor.

The skippers will be too preoccupied watching for wind shifts, weed patches, and wild herons to appreciate the more aesthetic aspect of their race. But shore-based spectators will find the progress very easy to follow. (And one of the few yachting events where a telephoto lens is not required to record the action.)

Vantage points along the four-mile course include the bridges—Craigflower, Tillicum, and Johnson—and the Gorge Road south of Admirals. (Where there is also the newly-completed promenade section to admire.)

For the fourth consecutive year, the sponsoring club, RCNSA, has issued an open invitation to anyone with an El Toro, Sabot, or reasonable facsimile, to join in the fun. And likewise, an open invitation for all competitors and friends to attend the prize-giving at RCNSA's Maplebank Road Clubhouse following the race.

The original "race" in 1962, however, had a vastly different character. It involved naval apprentices who had elected sailing in their voluntary sports program. And they were more interested in the portaging aspects of the exercise than the sailing!

This first expedition used four plastic 14-foot Mark III dinghies, which were sailed from the Naden Boatshed to Thetis Cove in Esquimalt Harbor. From there, using saplings and their web belts, six men portaged each boat to the northern end of Portage Inlet.

An thence began a minor comedy of errors.

They sailed to Craigflower Bridge, where they dismasted, went under, and rerigged.

They sailed to Tillicum Bridge, where they dismasted, shot the rapids stern first for better control, and rerigged. (The tidal vagaries had been seriously miscalculated, and the boats arrived at the critical moment of full boil.)

They sailed to Inner Harbor, where the three man crews changed over. (A navy truck had followed the route from bridge to bridge, carrying the other half of the portaging teams.)

The final reckoning occurred back at Portage Inlet, where the sailors found 500 yards of knee deep mud to negotiate before they could make the return portage!

This Sunday's race will be child's play by comparison. The 10:30 starting time is calculated to coincide with the tidal advantage, which is guaranteed to swoop the fleet down to the Inner Harbor in spite of, or even without, the wind.

Registrations commence at 9:30 a.m. at Craigflower Park on Admirals Road. Only requirements are a 50c entrance fee and a life jacket which must be worn. Those who plan to go only as far as Inner Harbor should arrange for transport for their boats.

The first leg of the course, from Craigflower Bridge to Inner Harbor, should take approximately 1½ hours.

Following a luncheon break, weather will determine the second lap.

The second stage will go around the "outside" to Esquimalt Harbor. If winds are heavy, however, the route will be retraced back up the Gorge.

The Duncan Scott will act as committee boat, while smaller craft will be assigned rescue boat duties below the falls as well as on the "open sea" part of the voyage.

SHORT TACKS: Main trophy for the Sunday Race was put up by the Portage Inlet and Gorge Waterways Association ... First winner in 1965, a case of divine justice, was Dennis Parsons, who instructed the Navy boys and masterminded the idea for the 1962 race ... 1966 winner was Robin Spear ... Rudy Kirmsche won in 1967 ... Among this year's prizes is a compass for tail-end-charlie. So he can improve his navigation, of course ... Bill Whitby has organized this year's contest ... Denny Coverdale is one of the liveliest, and most talented, foredeck men on the Island. Among other things, he has logged many hours in front of Reality's mast. Now he's back at the helm of his own boat, with the launching last week of Melee, a Haida class sloop which he finished and rigged as a winter project ... Speaking of Reality, she has been a regular contender in the Tsehum Haven series, which concludes spring racing this sunday. ..

Victoria Canoe and Kayak club is set to swing into action. They meet 8:30 on Thursday April 4, at the Tolmie Troop Scout Hall on Shelbourne Street to discuss plans and places for weekend outings. One feature will be "Pioneer Trips." More experienced canoeists will pre-paddle a specific trip and bring back recommendations. This way, safety for less experienced members can be assured. Visitors and prospective members are welcome to attend the meeting.

Field Trip

The intermediate section of the junior branch of the Victoria Natural History Society will meet at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday to go to Francis Park to finish replanting a fire burn, and clear trails in the Freeman King Park.

Loan Deadline

The monthly picture loan evening for members of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria will take place Monday at 7:30 p.m. Renters are asked to return the pictures presently out on loan to the gallery before noon Monday.

Okanagan Band on Stage Tonight

At Mount View Secondary School tonight, a touring B.C. interior band will appear in concert.

Vernon Secondary Schools Band is paying its first visit to Victoria.

It is under the direction of Vernon Bryant who had his early training in the Esquimalt Secondary Band and directed Mount View and Lansdowne Secondary Bands before going to the Okanagan.

He is a brother of Reeve Ray Bryant of Esquimalt.

The Vernon Band's tour has taken it to Osoyoos and Ellensburg, Wash. It will conclude in New Westminster.

Also participating in the program will be the Mount View Band under Howard Denike.

This is the ensemble that had the honor of being the only Canadian band to perform at the Music Educators' National Conference in Seattle recently.

The conference was attended by some 8,000 educators from all over the United States and Canada.

'A Gift From Fidel'

CARACUS (Reuters) — The Venezuelan airliner hijacked last week by an armed man returned here from Cuba Saturday, its 46 passengers each carrying a bottle of rum and some Havana cigars presented to them by a Cuban Air Force officer as "a gift from Fidel Castro."

Charged as Spy

PARIS (Reuters) — Maurice Picard, former French civil defence chief, has been charged with having had contacts with foreign agents.

James Bond Is Dead Amis Effort Proves

LONDON (AP) — Secret agent James Bond is dead after all, British critics said Thursday.

They gave the thumbs down to an attempt to resurrect agent 007—brainchild of the late Ian Fleming—in a new novel called Colonel Sun, by British author Kingsley Amis.

"Amis—writing his first thriller—is quite unable to capture the laconic, brash, pseudo-sophisticated, gimmick-ridden style and manner of Fleming," said Peter Phillips in the London Sun.

Amis, who has written his Bond book under the name of Robert Markham, made his name in the 50s with the widely acclaimed novel, Lucky Jim.

Arthur Mayse

While scurrying about our tiger city last night, we saw handsomely displayed on the side of a new building at Fort and Richmond a very old device.

This was the Staff of Asclepius, Greek god of medicine, handsomely executed in what looked to be stainless steel. The staff itself was twined by the traditional serpent, and a Canadian touch was supplied by a spray of maple leaves.

But why apply the symbol of the healer's art to a building that carried a Toronto-Dominion Bank shingle across its front?

Probably part and parcel of the new chumminess in banking, I suggested—'Let us heal your sick finances with a loan.' That seemed a shaky interpretation, though, so this morning I did some checking.

The Toronto-Dominion people like the Staff-and-serpent too, but can lay no claim to it. They're merely renting ground floor space for yet another branch, and the rest of the building will be occupied by a covey of doctors.

Architects Wade Stockdill Armour and Blewitt (a mouthful, but the lady who answered handled it beautifully) told me that the medicos had suggested the Asclepian staff.

I learned further that Roy Ward of Bayliss Neon Sign Company designed the decoration, and that it was set in place on Tuesday.

Since sign specialist Ward is busy up-Island, I can offer no further information about his handiwork—which, after all, speaks for itself.

The Salvation Army, an outfit that never closes its doors to the hopeless and helpless, has been given a brush-off by Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee, and I feel that Sally Ann should have received the $5,000 grant she requested.

The reasons given for the turndown were, first, that the S.A. duplicates services supplied elsewhere, and second that 'pastoral counselling' is given to the needy along with practical help.

Well, as for the first, the plain fact is that the Army was doing good works in these parts long before those other agencies were hatched . . . so who is duplicating who?

Also, if there's another haven that takes in the hungry and shelterless at weekends and after 5 p.m. on weekdays, I've yet to hear of it.

As for the other charge, it could be pointed out that the 'C' for Christian in grant-receiving YMCA and YWCA also suggests a pastoral influence at work.

However, the committee has made up its mind for this year, and all that is beside the point. I can only hope that voluntary contribution more than closes the fund-gap.

While we're on the subject, I'd like to clear up a frequent beef to the effect that the Salvation Army sells household gear and clothing donated to it for poor people's use.

The Army sells through its thrift shops — and urges the general public to buy—in order to finance its pickup service and obtain cash with which to meet bedrock need. Also, very many hardup families refuse to accept direct charity, preferring to keep pride intact by purchasing at minimum prices.

But every day, Sally Ann gives from the items you donate, to people who can't afford even that much.

The other day I hauled out a power mower with last year's grass still crusted on its wheels, and without the slightest hope, began to haul on its starter. Nothing happened, of course.

While I was pondering whether to take it in for repairs or maybe just buy a new chopper, along came a high school boy who took matters calmly in hand.

He eased the screen from the air filter, removed the wad of cleaner material inside, and gave both a dunking in a tin of solvent that happened to by handy-by. Next, he trickled a spoonful of white gas directly into the carburetor throat.

This done, he replaced filter and screen, and gave the starter a casual tug.

Wheeee! The little Briggs-Stratton began to sing like a bird.

"Learned how at school," said he; and why, when us now-mature types were going to school, didn't they teach us a few such handy tricks?

The Sasquatches Are Coming But They're Smiling

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Canada has her own goodwill ambassador from the north — Ookpik.

Now B.C. is entering the toy field with a representative of her own. — a nine-inch fuzzy-haired Young Sasquatch.

The larger Sasquatch may have eluded human pursuit but these tiny creatures are guaranteed to welcome everyone with their broad smiles.

They're the brainchild of Arie de Ruiter of Langley, who two years ago conceived the idea of selling Sasquatch dolls to tourists at Harrison Hot Springs.

LOAN PROBLEMS

Intrigued by the stories of the legendary creature Mr. de Ruiter, his family and neighbors made a protytpe doll. But their initial efforts to get backing met with little success.

As a previously defunct chicken farmer, Mr. de Ruiter could not get enough credit to cover the initial expenditure of producing a stock of the dolls.

However, with the recent publicity given to the Sasquatch through Rogoo Patterson's film which purported to show the legendary ape-man and the subsequent Provincial Museum expedition, Mr. de Ruiter finally convinced the Credit Union he had a good thing going.

3,000 ON MARKET

Now sales have proved so successful, with nearly 3,000 dolls in the market even before the tourist season, that Mr. de Ruiter's family is going to need extra help assembling the dolls in the basement.

Handling distribution on Vancouver Island is Reindeer Schuitema, 5307 Patricia Bay Highway, who used to be a neighbor of the de Ruiters in Langley.

Mr. Schuitema and his wife spent many evenings helping the de Ruiters design the Young Sasquatch's charming face.

Business is booming, Mr. Schuitema reports, and "it's something we believe will greatly help B.C.'s tourist industry."

COSTUME BALL SATURDAY

They'll Keep Dancing Until They're All In

Costumes and customs of 100 years ago will be revived in the Agricultural Hall, Saanichton, Saturday night.

North and South Saanich Agricultural Society is starting its centennial year celebrations with an old-time costume ball at which costumes in the style of 25, 50, 75 and 100 years ago will be worn.

Eight prizes will be offered for the best men's and women's costume in each 25-year period.

SUPPER AUCTION

"We are also reviving the old prairie custom of auctioning box suppers prepared by the ladies," says Doug McHattie, who will be master-of-ceremonies.

"In each case the highest bidder has the privilege of escorting the lady who prepared the meal to supper."

The ball starts at 9 p.m. and will continue until the dancers "have had enough."

The second centennial event will be an amateur rodeo at Saanichton May 24, with music by various bands which have participated in the Victoria Day parade.

The annual Saanichton fair will be held Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 2. It is the oldest fair west of the Great Lakes and was started in September, 1868, by 10 enthusiasts who contributed $5 each to the prize fund.

"They had hired a canoe, with four Indian paddlers, to go to the fair at Cherry Point, near Duncan," Mr. McHattie said. "They had a grand time there, but on the way home they hit on the idea of starting their own fair.

"It has been held every year since."

Five Willing To Transfer Mt. Douglas

Saanich May Get Park Proposition

Five members of Victoria city council agreed this morning it is time the city handed Mount Douglas Park to Saanich.

They also agreed to increase their efforts to persuade the regional district or the provincial government to take Thetis Lake Park off the city's hands.

Both decisions were made during preliminary discussions on this year's parks budget which, before cuts, totalled $686,720 some $84,505 higher than last year.

With $15,905 of that total earmarked for routine maintenance at Thetis and an additional $34,250 slated for extraordinary expenditure, city manager Dennis Young suggested the time had come to call a halt.

REGIONAL PARK

"Every time I see these expenditures, entirely unrelated to the city's parks program, I realize that we seem to be paying more and more money each year into this park which is in fact a regional park.

"We should go to the other municipalities and invite them to share the maintenance costs with us, and if they refuse we should go into a program of severe retrenchment."

Ald. Ian Stewart agreed.

"Perhaps Mr. Young is correct and we should take some stand," he said. "While I am prepared to vote the money for routine maintenance I am going to have a great deal to say when the extraordinary expenditures come up."

The matter was still under debate at press time.

Mayor Hugh Stephen pointed out that one of the steps the city could take right away is an invitation to Saanich to take over Mount Douglas Park.

HALF FROM SAANICH

Expenditures on Mount Douglas this year will total $7,610 of which Saanich pays half.

In the meantime the city agreed to spend the $15,000 required to keep Thetis Lake in reasonable condition but indications were that the request for extra money would run into heavy going later in the day.

The extra cash is being asked to build change rooms and a comfort station at a cost of $21,900; a sewage disposal system for $7,000; construction of parking areas $2,000; road maintenance and parking barricades $2,000; a portable fire pump, $250 and the removal of blackberry bushes $1,000.

The feeling was that only the fire pump would survive the budget-paring knife.

Sharp Air Fare Hike Asked on City Route

Excursion Rate Boosted to $15

Applications announced today for fare increases by Canada's major airlines would raise the return excursion price for Victoria-Vancouver flights from $9 to $15.

Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines have both applied to the Canadian Transport Commission air committee to raise their North American rate structure 10 per cent effective April 28.

Air Canada said Victoria to eastern Canada or Caribbean flights would continue to be based on the Vancouver price.

The west coast three-day excursion fare, applying to Victoria-Vancouver and Victoria-Seattle, continues, although at the higher rate.

For Victoria-Seattle, the fare would climb from $13 to $19 return within the three-day period.

One-way fares between Victoria and Vancouver will go up by $2 to $10. The Seattle fare would also rise $2.

No increase in fares is proposed for international or Caribbean routes.

EXPENSES UP

CPA president J. C. Gilmer said air transport expenses have been outrunning revenues, resulting in a cost-price squeeze dictating higher fares. He noted that Canada's airlines charge substantially less than U.S. carriers.

Most domestic fares had seen little change in the past 18 years, he said.

Air Canada said there had been no basic fare rate changes for six years. But recently there have been "substantial increases in the cost of labor, facility user charges, fuel and a wide range of other materials and services."

NEW EQUIPMENT

It is also foreseen that higher capital costs are in the offing in order to buy the new equipment Air Canada has on order. (It is expected Air Canada will go to the New York market for capital borrowing.)

Both CPA and Air Canada announce a new youth air travel plan for the 12-21 years group, applying where unbooked space is available on domestic flights. If youths hold a $3 membership card, they will be able to fly for half-price.

It was being introduced to promote greater understanding among young people by encouraging them to travel between points in North America, Air Canada said.

The two airlines also are proposing to introduce a discount domestic group fare applicable in Canada and the U.S.

Victoria Flying Services Ltd., operating a charter float plane service from the Inner Harbor to Vancouver's Coal Harbor, has an application before the air committee to introduce a scheduled service at a price of $12 per passenger, one way.

At present, the flying service offers charter flights — downtown to downtown — for as little as $42.50 each way for a single passenger plane. Using larger aircraft the firm can take from three to six passengers one way at a cost of $16.60 each.

HYDROFOIL DELAYED ONCE AGAIN

Start of a Seattle-Vancouver service by the hpdrofoil ship Victoria has been postponed, a spokesman for Northwest Hydrofoil Lines said today.

President William I. Niedermair said the service, originally due to start April 1, will be rescheduled at a later date.

He said the postponement is due to documentation requirements in connection with the U.S. Maritime Administration's mortgage for the ship.

Mr. Niedermair said the 75-passenger Victoria will operate a two-hour service between the two ports. One-way fare will be $10.

Patient Restrained in Bed For Protection, Probe Told

By PETE LOUDON

A patient who died following a hospital fire here Sunday had been placed in restraints to protect himself and other patients, a coroner's jury was told Thursday night.

Testimony was given that Ng Tong, 78, was tied in his bed at St. Joseph's Saturday night because he had an active case of tuberculosis and had been wandering about the hospital on four occasions that day.

A restraining jacket, with the straps tied under his bed, was also intended to prevent him from falling from bed as he had done previously, the coroner's jury was told. This was described as accepted hospital practice.

How he freed himself from the bed and caught fire and how long his clothing was burning before he was detected and the fire extinguished were points which were not established before the inquest was temporarily adjourned by Coroner Edmond Jorre De St. Jorre.

RESUMES APRIL 23

The inquest was adjourned until April 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Law Courts. Eleven witnesses gave testimony during the three-hour session Thursday. Two remain to be heard, with the possibility others will be sworn, the coroner explained.

No evidence was submitted to suggest Mr. Tong had been tied in a chair when his pyjamas caught fire—a theory expressed by officials at the day of his death Monday.

The coroner's jury heard medical evidence that Mr. Tong was suffering from a kidney ailment and a skin disease as well as tuberculosis.

St. Joseph's pathologist Dr. Bruce Hay said third degree burns covered the upper portion of the body.

But he added, "I feel he died of acute kidney failure, chronic kidney disease.

The doctor also stated that his examination showed Mr. Tong suffered a coronary thrombosis, which probably occurred after the fire "a matter of hours before he died."

"It could have been important to the cause of death," he stated.

In response to questioning he added that had the deceased been a man of 25 and of sound body, "I would not expect such burns to kill him."

Inspector Charles Webb of Victoria police and Lloyd McKenzie QC (appearing for the hospital) joined the coroner in questioning the witnesses.

They learned from John Joe, a storekeeper of 1720 Carnegie Crescent, that Mr. Tong had been about 40 years in Canada, had been sick for two or three years, and "he wished to go back to China."

Mr. Joe said he thought Mr. Tong had an adopted son there although he had never heard him speak about a wife. Mr. Joe knew of no mental illness although he thought the deceased might have difficulty in communicating because he spoke only Cantonese and pidgin English.

Detective Edward Hardy exhibited a pair of burned pyjamas and the burned-off straps from a restraining vest. He also showed a complete vest as a sample of the type Mr. Tong had worn.

There were no fragments of the restraining vest other than the straps. The pyjama jacket sleeves had been burned away and almost the complete right side of it. There were some scorch marks on the back of the jacket and on the trouser cuffs.

Referring to the straps of the restraint jacket Det. Hardy said, "it would appear to me as if someone was trying to burn their way loose."

Not Guilty Plea Made in Charge Of Sheep Killing

A man charged with killing sheep on Sidney Island pleaded not guilty in Sidney magistrate's court this morning.

Trial date for Robert Turnbull, Thetis Lake Trailer Park, was set for May 9. Bail of $1,000 was continued.

Police said earlier this week Turnbull was arrested in a boat off Shoal Harbor.

Police were called to the scene by Sidney Island owner Jack Todd, who has been running a flock of sheep there for several years.

Ask The Times

Q. Would you please tell me the history of HMCS Haida—what type of war vessel was she and her history in World War II?—R.P.

A. Haida was a tribal class destroyer commissioned by the RCN Aug. 30, 1943. She served in various theatres of war: Arctic, 1943-44; English Channel, 1944; Normandy, 1944; Biscay, 1944; Korea, 1952-53. The ship participated in the sinking of 20 vessels in 488,542 miles of cruising. After the war she served in the Atlantic fleet and in her last years as a training vessel of the naval reserve in the Great Lakes. Haida was sold to Crown Assets Disposal Corporation Oct. 11, 1963.

Q. Could you please tell me where I could get information on a wedding which took place in Blaine, Washington?—G.P.W.

A. Write to the editor of the newspaper there, The Blaine Journal. The address is given in the Ayer Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals as Post Office Box 10, Blaine, Washington, (98230).

DEFENSIVE DRIVERS TAKE NO CHANCES

THERE ARE PLENTY OF TRICKS

Stop Sign: Slice of Metal Guaranteeing Nothing!

By DON VIPOND

What can a driver do to meet the moment-by-moment hazards his fellow motorists present? He can master the proven tricks to stay clear of accident situations. The Institute of Adult Studies is conducting a course in defensive driving. Here Times reporter Don Vipond details the lessons learned in the second of four classes. You can enrol in the next course, beginning April 23, by phoning 385-1411.

Don't trust anybody.

That's putting the philosophy of the defensive driver harshly. But it also underlines the single great truth he drives by.

On the road, nothing is for sure.

A stop sign is a slab of metal guaranteeing nothing.

A traffic signal is glass and wires, not a barricade.

And that no-passing line down the road is just a very thin layer of paint.

To drive defensively is to quit fuming at the bad drivers. It's not going to change them and it may give you an ulcer.

All that energy is used to smooth your path down the highway, to spot and compensate and thus avoid those converging factors which meet to produce the moment ripe for an accident.

There are tricks to know. They're simple and they work.

For the tail-gater, the driver whose car fills your rearview mirror—simply gradually slow down.

Usually this will give him the message. Or a chance to pass you. And if a crisis does develop in front of you, you'll have the space to slow down gradually, giving him the time to stop without ending up in your trunk.

And always signal your next move.

You are the eyes of the driver behind you. But he can't read your mind.

Most devastating of road accidents is the head-on crash.

It's the killer but in fact it is rarely head-on. Cars meet off-centre and spin after impact. And most people are killed when they are tossed out. This is where a seat belt saves your life. Don't be caught dead sitting on it.

Most everyone will admit driving is a full-time job but the defensive driver lives that knowledge.

When others may be eyeing their passengers or the scenery, he's keeping a close watch on the right-hand ditch. It's always better to take a chance there than suffer the shattering meeting with an errant oncoming car.

Learning to drive defensively is a matter of tuning in, of heightening awareness of what's going on in the traffic around you.

Of knowing, for example, that almost half of road crashes occur at intersections because drivers are more uncertain there and tend to dispute the right of way.

Of knowing that it's good sense to keep your wheels straight when you stop to make a left turn at an intersection. Then if you're rammed from behind you won't be driven into the path of that oncoming bus.

Of knowing that the worst time for accidents is between midnight and 2 in the morning on weekends. That's when the sleepy drivers, the drunken ones and the hot rod cowboys are thickest. So it's a good time to be in bed.

Next Tuesday's lesson: The intersection crash; passing and being passed.

SHOPPING GUIDE

These Nutty Butters Are High in Protein

By PENNY SAVER

I have a friend who is a health nut. She is always going on one kind of diet or another. Right now she is trying to be a vegetarian. Some of the recipes she has discovered are absolutely delicious and her latest passion is great with me. I am a nut nut and nuts provide my friend with the protein she needs in her diet. She spices up her salads with high protein breads spread with high protein nut butters. I was completely bowled over.

Like every other nut nut, I am sold on peanut butter. My friend buys hers from a store that makes their own. They even make peanut butter without salt for nut lovers on salt-free diets. A 16-ounce jar of their peanut butter is 58 cents. I already knew about these products.

What I didn't know was that this store made other nut butters just as delicious. Their crunchy peanut butter, for example, has cracked peanuts in it and one added extra ingredient — sunflower seeds! This yummy spread is 65 cents for a 16-ounce jar.

Peanut butter is the base for another delicious spread that is high in protein. Whole sesame seeds are mixed with it. This peanut-sesame spread is 65 cents a jar. Occasionally my friend uses a raw sesame in salads and other dishes. Raw sesame paste is 80 cents for a 16-ounce jar and is an excellent source of protein. I love it just for itself.

Soya Beans Make Sandwich Scene

When I began to munch on one of my sandwiches, I almost dropped it in surprise. "Don't tell me they make a butter of cashews," I cried. "They do," my friend replied, "but that's not it." She had given me a soya butter sandwich. The soya beans are roasted and made up with salt and sugar to make a delicious nutty spread that reminds me of nothing more than a good, roasted cashew. This spread, which is not made in Victoria, is an excellent source of protein since soya is one of the best vegetable sources of protein known to man. An eight-ounce jar is 55 cents and a 16-ounce jar, 93 cents.

The cashew butter my friend mentioned is 98 cents for a 12-ounce jar. This is made at the Victoria store as is almond butter. The almond butter, which I can't wait to try, is $1.08 for a nine-ounce jar. I think it would be good on party snacks and I would like to try it in some of my cookie recipes.

These nutty spreads go best on nutty breads and the store my friend visits has all kinds of high protein breads. Sprouted wheat breads at 35 cents a loaf are low in starch and high in protein — an excellent choice for someone who is dieting, especially on the gram diets. They are positively delicious too. I fell for the bread, but it was the buns that won my family's collective heart. This store sells whole wheat hamburger buns at six for 35 cents. We have always been brown bread fans and hamburger patties on brown bread are twice as good. So are cold meats. My vegetarian friend is horrified, but I don't care. She can spread her buns with soya butter if she will and I will eat them gladly. I still insist on a bit of meat in my diet however.

Please call me at 382-3131, if you would like to know where these items may be found.

COOKING CAN BE FUN . . . . . . BY MARY MOORE

Apple Crisp to Delight Novice

Moore

In a large Canadian department store dining room Apple Crisp is on the menu once per week. Men and women alike know when it is to be served and have lunch there that day.

I asked the head dietitian, "Why is your Apple Crisp so popular?" She said, "Because we bake it a long time."

Following her lead I made apple crisp and baked it for 50 minutes to achieve the lovely combination of flavors and rich result.

Our young inexperienced cooks can make apple crisp to perfection—and with ease.

APPLE CRISP

(Serves 4 or 5)

Preheat oven to 375 deg. Fahr.

Six medium apples (Spys or Macs), 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour, 1 cup light brown sugar, ½ cup butter or margarine.

Wash, peel, quarter, core and slice apples. Be sure to remove all of the little sharp seed cases when you remove cores. Slice apples into a shallow casserole or baking dish that can be carried to the table. I used corningware, 8x8x2." Press down apple slices with your palms and immediately sprinkle over them the lemon juice and salt.

Into a large bowl measure the flour, brown sugar and cinnamon and mix them. Add the butter or margarine and with pastry blender cut it into the flour mixture until pieces of butter are about the size of large peas.

Carefully tip this crumbly mixture over the apples and spread it to completely cover them. With your clean palms press and pack down and smooth top.

Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for at least 50 minutes until apples are very tender and top is deep gold. Serve hot with 10 per cent whipping cream.

NOTE: If desired (and if you have other dishes baking at the same time) you may bake this at least one hour at 350 deg. Fahr.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. I have several small moles on my face. Someone told me that if I puncture them with a needle they will go away. Is this true?

A. No. Also, you should never touch or irritate a mole or try any do-it-yourself measures. See your physician or a skin specialist. They can be easily removed, but by an expert.

Lowman

Q. I have a very round face and have to wear glasses. What type frames will be most becoming to me?

A. Do not wear round ones. Select frames which emphasize the up and down lines or those that have an upward sweep.

Q. Will bicycle riding make my legs prettier?

A. It will firm the muscles and give them contour. I do not classify it as a leg slimmer.

Q. Should I sleep in a bra? I have heard that this will preserve the bustline.

A. I do not think most women would find this comfortable. Some women who have extremely large breasts prefer sleeping in a bra. However, if you do wear one to bed be sure that there are no wires which might pinch the tissues.

Q. I am 14 years old and thought that my pimples would clear up once I began my menstrual periods. My blemishes are just as bad, or worse, than ever.

A. The oil glands in the skin are especially active all during adolescence. Therefore you will probably have to fight the skin problem for some years yet.

Do not allow this condition to worsen. Wash your face with soap and water several times a day. Most important, do not pick at your face.

I think every teen-ager with a crop of blackheads would be wise to have them removed professionally by a dermatologist. Neglected blackheads often lead to acne.

Q. Is there any way I can get rid of the stretch marks from pregnancy?

A. None that I know of. These often become dimmer as time passes. The important thing is to try to prevent them by massaging the abdomen gently with a softening lotion or melted cocoa butter all during pregnancy.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Husband Living Only in the Past

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is the second marriage for both Elmer and me. My first marriage was an unhappy one and ended in divorce. Elmer's first marriage (he claims) was happy, but his wife died. Do you think it's right for a husband to have pictures of his first wife all over the place? Every wall in every room of our house is covered with pictures of "her." They go all the way back to their marriage right up to pictures of her wake.

Also, Elmer made me promise that when he dies I will ship his body back to where "she" is buried, so he can be buried next to "her." How should I take all this?

SECOND FIDDLE

DEAR SECOND: It's all right for a man to remember the past, but he doesn't have to live in it. Some wives do not object to having Number One's picture "all over the place," but if you do, your feelings should be considered. As for Elmer's wanting to be buried next to "her," tell him to put it in his will and his wishes will be carried out as soon as he is.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl and my problem is my mother. She won't let me have anyone over to the house unless it's in perfect order because she's afraid the kids might go home and tell their mothers that she is a poor housekeeper.

Abby, this is silly because kids couldn't care less how the house looks. I know that I don't pay any attention to the housekeeping when I'm at someone's house visiting. And even if I did notice that a place was a mess I sure wouldn't go home and tell my mother.

Please put this in your column. My mother never misses it. Thank you.

NO COMPANY

DEAR NO COMPANY: I never give advice to one who hasn't asked for it, but in your case I'll make an exception and address this to your mother: There is nothing more reassuring to a mother than always to know where her daughter is—and with whom. You can insure this feeling by making your daughter's friends welcome in your home anytime. Youngsters take little notice of "housekeeping" In fact, the "perfect" house is not nearly as inviting as the one that looks "lived in."

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I go to the home of friends for cocktails and dinner, I just hate to end up sitting by somebody else's husband.

When the hostess starts saying, "Alice, you sit over here by Bill, and Joan, you will sit beside Harry," I always say, "I still enjoy sitting by my own husband, thank you." Am I wrong? I would like your opinion.

LIKES MY OWN

DEAR LIKES: I think it is simply a matter of good manners for guests to sit where the hostess seats them.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ROBERTO: Any man who can be made "blissfully happy" or "miserably unhappy" by a woman is still "young."

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding," send $1.00 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles Calif., 90069.

Regimental Dinner

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor will travel to Kelowna on Saturday where he will attend an All Ranks Dinner of the British Columbia Dragoons. His Honor is the honorary colonel of the regiment.

Co-Hostesses

Mrs. R. L. Barnes and Mrs. K. W. Plewes were co-hostesses for a recent shower held in Mrs. Barnes' Jamaica Road home for April bride-elect Miss Jerry Lee Koellmel. A cake decorated with best wishes to the future bride centred the tea table. There were games and contests throughout the evening. A decorated laundry basket contained the gifts. Among those present were Mrs. P. Koellmel, Mrs. W. Allen, Mrs. W. W. Allen, Mrs. D. Jackson, Mrs. R. Rogers, Mrs. G. Greenwood, Mrs. D. Petersen, Mrs. L. Huber, Mrs. W. Ross, Mrs. G. Barton, Mrs. E. Gadsby, Mrs. M. Hamilton, Mrs. E. Saari, the Misses Sharon Harrison, Kathy Plewes, Cheryl Barnes and Diane Barnes.

Pioneer Women

His Honor Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes will be honor guests at the formal opening of the annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter IODE which will take place in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel on Monday at 8:30 p.m.

Rev. Brian Whitlow will give the benediction. The provincial government and the city of Victoria will send representatives to the opening.

Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd, regent of Municipal Chapter of Victoria, will give a welcoming address and Mrs. H. A. McKenzie, Nelson, will give the response.

WINNERS PERFORM

A musical program will be provided by Miss Mary Chard and Miss Jocelyn Abbot, both winners of IODE bursaries.

An informal reception will follow the opening.

A business meeting will be held on Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Delegates will meet at 6:30 p.m. for a sherry party prior to a dinner at which Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, will be the guest speaker. His subject will be "Pioneer Women of British Columbia."

On Saturday morning there will be a second business meeting. At 1:30 p.m. Rev. S. J. Parsons will conduct a ceremony at the cenotaph. The local Municipal Chapter will provide entertainment.

That evening there will be a final business meeting at 8.

Dinner Dance

Music was by the Fakirs when the Engineers' Wives' Association of Victoria held a dinner dance recently at the Victoria Golf Club. President Mrs. R. D. Bennett and vice-president Mrs. W. R. Workman greeted the guests. Mrs. T. R. Johnson was program convenor for the affair.

Police Chasing Butterflies!

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — If the girl has butterfly tattoos on her thighs, she probably is a member of an all-women gang currently plaguing Singapore.

Some of the female gangsters—pretty, young and shapely—look as if they have stepped straight out of a Hollywood film.

After 14 girl gangsters were arrested recently, police secretary Loke Foo Yee said crimes committed by women in this island republic present one of its major headaches.

The rounding up of the 14 girls helped to break up one of the island's most notorious criminal bands—the "butterfly" gang. The all-women gang had been operating for more than a year, mainly as decoys in hold-ups.

Working with underworld male friends, the girls—mostly bar or cabaret dancers—would lure unsuspecting "Romeos" to the dark alleys of downtown Singapore.

Down a dimly-lit sidestreet the victim would be beaten and robbed.

IF SEX ABSTRACT IT'S NYET, NYET

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet culture minister clashed with leading ballet director Igor Moiseyev over a basic artistic question: Is sex abstract?

Announcing a new international ballet competition to begin in Moscow in 1969, Culture Minister Ekaterina A. Furtseva told a press conference that the competition will be held "along the lines of realism" and abstract dancing will be banned.

"And we do not share the opinion of some ballet lovers who approve of the sexual direction ballet has taken," she said. "When you see sexual figures on the stage, it is unpleasant. . . ."

Moiseyev, the competition chairman, interrupted in a loud voice and said: "Sex is not abstract."

Over the roar of correspondents' laughter, Mrs. Furtseva glared at him and replied: "I don't entirely agree with you. That's a bad joke."

When the press conference adjourned a few minutes later, Mrs. Furtseva, 58, and Moiseyev, 62 were engaged in a heated private discussion.

CLUB CALENDAR

Annual meeting, Queen of Peace Council, Catholic Women's League, Wednesday, 8 p.m., parish hall, 849 Esquimalt Rd. Reports will be given and officers elected.

Persuade, Don't Preach To Youth

"The Church must persuade, not preach when dealing with young people on drugs."

Archbishop Harold Sexton, in addressing the general meeting of Anglican Church Women of the Diocese of British Columbia on Wednesday, expressed great concern for the growing consumption of drugs among young people. He felt that many users were victims of circumstances and should not be too roundly condemned.

"LSD is too dangerous to be played with at all," he added. "The church can be of most help by establishing personal contacts with these young people."

The archbishop announced that he had just received a letter from the Church Commission on Women, which endorsed the concept of one organization for women in the church. He commended the Anglican Church Women's efforts in this regard.

LIBERAL APPROACH

Discussing the Mother's Union, he said that the time has come for a more liberal approach to remarriage of divorced persons in the church —"not just anyone, but as a matter of justice towards innocent and unfortunate members of the church family."

The meeting of the ACW of the Diocese of B.C. resumes today for a workshop. It will be led by a Toronto team: Miss Lois Robin, youth portfolio; Mrs. D. Cumming, national vice-president; Mrs. C. Matthews, national chairman of devotions; Mrs. V. E. Martin, national representative for B.C.

A full slate of officers were returned. They are: president, Mrs. F. A. Goodwin; first vice-president, Mrs. H. McDonald; second vice-president, Miss Dorothea Lucas; recording secretary, Mrs. L. E. Small; corresponding secretary and Mrs. H. J. Newnham; treasurer.

Bavarian Beer Fest

Members of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will don appropriate costumes for a Bavarian beer fest, to be held in the clubhouse this Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. Bill Pringle's Bavarian Band will play rousing dance music and a supper of Bavarian-style delicacies will be served later in the evening.

Nurses Unhappy Punching Clock

OTTAWA (CP) —For two years a time clock has caused discontent among some nurses at the Ottawa General Hospital.

"We're supposed to be professionals; professional people shouldn't have to clock in," complained one in a newspaper survey.

Another with five children said the installation of the clock has changed her whole attitude toward her job.

"Sometimes I'm a little late leaving home because of the kids and I'm docked pay for arriving at the hospital a few minutes late.

"In the old days I often worked overtime and didn't bother to claim for it. Now if I work even 15 minutes extra I make sure I get paid."

Andre Lacroix, hospital public relations officer, said he was not aware of the discontent.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

Remember that old song, "There'll be a change in the weather and a change in me"?

The lyrics are due to come true this spring as fashion does a turnabout and comes up with some rather startling trends.

Are you ready, willing and able to set a whole new fashion course? Or are you fit to be tied for having to switch boats in midstream? Vying for your attention will be predominantly two different kinds of looks: The slim chic of the '30s and the pretty, romantic impression inspired by even earlier days.

Actually, you can choose your weapon and straddle the line, enjoying the best of both "worlds." To help you recognize the right looks for you, here is a head-to-toe rundown:

UNDER YOUR BONNET . . . Hats head off both looks for spring. The floppy, utterly feminine natural leghorn styles bedecked and beribboned will grace more than one girl's curly coif. At the other extreme, but boasting of its own kind of femininity, is the simple, striking beret in felt or straw to set off a smoother, shorter hairdo.

THE CAPABLE CAPE . . . The newest coverup is the swaggering cape. It cuts a fine silhouette worn maxi length over a mini or it could be fun worn mini length over a maxi.

SUITABLY SUITED . . . There's a very different look in suits, far away from the strictly tailored apparel of former years. The "sweater suit" carries out the '30s theme and rings the loudest bell.

THE BODY SHIRT . . . The new blouses run the gamut from the very trim, slim and skimpy to fluffy, ruffly feminine numbers complete with wrist and neckline frills. For two totally different moods, sample one of each.

LINE ON THE WAIST . . . A cinch for stardom is the come-lately emphasis on the waist underscored by fuller skirts. Belts of all widths and materials are designed to pinpoint a narrow circumference. Get in shape tout de suite so you can brave the measure.

OUT ON A LIMB . . . The advent of the mini is, after all, a natural. As the man in Oklahoma said about Kansas City, "They've gone about as far as they can go." But don't count the mini out—yet! Look for it to continue strongly in sportswear right into summer. If you want to try the midi without involving an expensive purchase, whip up a wrap-around felt skirt (no side seams needed) in the new mid-calf length and wear it right over your mini, as many chic women are doing right this minute.

CHOOSE YOUR SHOES . . . Heels are getting wider and higher and suddenly we're on our way back up again in higher heels. Although chunky in appearance, this fashion undoubtedly heralds the impending return of the feminine-looking shoe (Hurrah!)

In the meantime, complete your footnotes by wearing knee socks with sportswear and textured hose of all types for all occasions, but don't go too wild on pattern or you'll look like too much of a good thing!

Remember it's the look that fits in with your appearance, your figure and your life which will be the right look for THE NEW YOU.

JUST FOR YOU: Take a good long look in your closet and plan pour acquisitions to blend with, not replace, your current "collection." In any case, don't go overboard on new purchases because the fate of the future fashion is on a see-saw at the moment.

Talks Called About Welfare

By BRUCE YEMEN

No municipality will suffer net financial loss as a result of revised provincial grants and welfare cost-sharing formulas, Welfare Minister Dan Campbell told the legislature Thursday.

He also announced an April 23 meeting with municipal representatives to discuss "the whole question of welfare rates and ceilings."

In the coming year, he added, "communities will have to be much more markedly aware of the whole question of welfare and not just rates."

The minister was replying to David Barrett (NDP—Coquitlam) who opened debate on social welfare department spending estimates of $75,276,000 with a wide-ranging attack on department policies.

AFTER MIDNIGHT

The estimates received House approval shortly after midnight following 7½ hours' debate and a tenacious, unsuccessful effort by NDP members to get the minister to promise welfare payments will be increased this year.

Mr. Campbell would say only that the whole welfare question would be discussed at the April 23 meeting with the Union of British Columbia Municipalities.

The closest he came to suggesting an increase in payments was to say that in the previous year social allowance estimates had been overspent by $6,000,000 to meet welfare needs.

Leading the battle for increased payments was Leo Nimsick (NDP—Kootenay) backed up by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and Randolph Harding (NDP—Revelstoke-Slocan).

AFTER NEXT YEAR?

Mr. Campbell said the increase in the municipal share of welfare costs from 10 to 20 per cent would not be allowed to cause any community a net loss in the coming year, but made no commitment for succeeding years.

Opposition criticism had pointed out that increasing the per-capita provincial grant to $25 would not offset the extra welfare costs in many municipalities.

Mr. Barrett warned that rising unemployment will soon hit 8 per cent in B.C., predicted 100,000 persons will be on welfare by June and said "not one community will be untouched by the problem."

He said there were 69,000 persons on welfare in October, the total had risen to 82,000 in December and is still rising.

LEADERSHIP COMING

Mr. Barrett said he agreed with the minister's philosophy of much greater community involvement in welfare but stressed that the department must provide the leadership for such involvement.

Mr. Campbell assured him the leadership will be forthcoming.

The minister said any increase in welfare allowances—as called for by the opposition several times—would mean that municipal budgets would also have to be increased.

Mr. Nimsick replied that "it is not good enough if you intend asking the municipalities to accept a bigger load to increase welfare rates."

Mr. Campbell said outside the legislature about 30 communities will be adversely affected by the revised provincial payments and will have their losses made up by the province, based on 1967 welfare rates.

Mr. Barrett had asked the minister to stand up and announce a new scale of social assistance because deserted mothers could not maintain "a normal and healthy existence" for their children on current payments.

Referring to the NDP member's comparison of assistance given to children living with their mothers and those in foster homes—$25 compared to $80—Mr. Campbell said it would be "economic suicide" to pay $80 for each child on welfare.

"We might as well not be hypocrites—there would be no one working in B.C. on that basis," he said, pointing out that a family with four children could claim at least $320 a month.

He also referred to the "net input" of welfare cases from other parts of Canada adding to the province's welfare rolls.

. . . INQUEST

strated the use of the restraint jacket which leaves the arms free, but when the straps are tied under a bed or chair, fastens the wearer to his position from the back.

Dr. Molino Yam, a general practitioner who had cared for Mr. Tong since late in 1967, said, "When I talked to the patient, he answered sensibly and always asked if he could go to Chinatown.

"I felt very sorry for him but I couldn't let him go."

He also testified that he had not ordered Mr. Tong to stop smoking.

"It was one of the few pleasures he had left and I didn't want to take it away from him."

Dr. Yam said his patient about March 10 began falling out of bed and in daytime, wandering through the hospital. Side rails on his bed did not stop him so, "I told them they may restrain him if necessary." He understood however that the patient could untie himself and on one occasion had escaped the hospital.

"Restraints are used in all hospitals for the patient's own protection," he added.

He said he had talked to Mr. Tong following the accident but the burned man gave confused, contradictory replies to the question of whether he had been smoking. Similarly he could not say how the fire started.

'SHOOTING UP'

Orderly Edward Riendl said he was answering a request from another patient and was opposite the door to Mr. Tong's room Sunday morning and suddenly, "There was Mr. Tong, a blaze shooting up from his pyjamas."

He placed the patient on the floor and a practical nurse, Mrs. Ida Weisse, gave him bedding to smother the flames.

He said the day previous, after being advised to keep Mr. Tong in restraints, he had tied the patient in his chair. But he said the patient was very cooperative and docile and would follow all instructions made by motions.

He thought the fire couldn't have been burning more than 45 to 50 seconds before it was detected and pointed out that Mr. Tong's room was in a busy location.

Assistant Fire Chief Alfred Perry said the fire could have been burning a minute and a half, judging by the state of the pyjamas. The material wouldn't flash, he said, according to tests. But it might burn quickly if the victim flailed his arms.

Mrs. Weisse said she saw no evidence of fire damage near the patient's chair. She said there was a rule against smoking after 10 p.m.

Assistant Chief Perry said he had seen cigarettes and matches on a table outside Mr. Tong's door after the room's contents had been removed.

Head nurse Mrs. Phyllis Patterson said there had been no written order from a doctor asking special attention be given to Mr. Tong but special surveillance of such cases was a recognized responsibility.

She was aware that on Saturday Mr. Tong had slipped out of the hospital and had been found on Rupert Street.

FOUR TIMES

Orderly Frank Langford said on Saturday he had apprehended Mr. Tong in the corridor four times.

After the last occasion Mr. Langford gave Mr. Tong various treatments and was "restraining him and making him comfortable" in bed when Dr. Yam arrived. While he placed Mr. Tong's arms in the restraint, Dr. Yam tried to explain the necessity to the patient.

"The jacket was attached underneath the bed . . . he was on his back in bed when I left the room." He added that another person, "Mrs. Murphy, went in there and had taken his cigarettes and matches away from his bedside table."

Mr. Langford said he had seen Mr. Tong slip out of the restraining jacket before. Mr. Tong on earlier occasions had tied the loose straps in front and walked away still wearing the jacket.

He had seen Mr. Tong reach under his bed to release the straps.

"This particular night I took more precautionary measures and also put up the sidebars.

"The last time I saw him the sidebars were still up and he was lying on his side facing the window." He said he had not examined the patient under his covers to see whether or not the restraints were still tied.

When he examined the burned portion of the restraint tapes Mr. Langford said the knot was not the one he ties but it looked like a knot Mr. Tong would tie if he retied the loose tapes around his waist. At this point the inquest was adjourned.

MAN TO BEAT

Trudeau Riding High On Popularity Wave

By VICTOR MACKIE

(Third of a Series)

OTTAWA — Late in starting, Justice Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau has plunged into the Liberal leadership race with such vigor and has been carried forward on such a surprising wave of popularity that he is out in front.

He is recognized as the man to beat.

The justice minister, who is short on political experience but long on ability, has an excellent organization. It was put together in a hurry on a contingency basis before Mr. Trudeau had made up his mind to enter the race.

It laid the groundwork for his campaign before the federal provincial constitutional conference and without his knowledge.

When Mr. Trudeau finally decided he would allow his name to stand as a candidate, the nucleus of the organization was in being and it has never looked back. It has attracted an unusually large number of capable young people who are working together harmoniously and enjoying the job.

Same Approach

Mr. Trudeau, by his nature, does not take himself too seriously and his workers have adopted the same approach.

Ironically, Mr. Trudeau's headquarters are located in the Empire Building on Metcalfe Street in Ottawa. The reception offices are on the second floor.

Pierre Elliott Trudeau in bold red letters is printed in several places on the white plaster wall. Blown up newsprint photos of Mr. Trudeau in action during his campaign also decorate the offices.

A large line sketch on the wall in black and white by Hans Zander shows Mr. Trudeau's face in a crystal ball with the caricature of a fortune teller gazing into the features that have now become so well known across Canada.

Proudly his organizers boast that Mr. Trudeau is getting nearly double the lineage in newspaper stories and in pictures than other candidates are receiving. This is attributable in part to his reputation as a "swinger."

Refreshing

He is a phenomenon in that he has enchanted many young and not-so-young voters wherever he has gone. They find his direct approach and his almost casual attitude towards politicking a refreshing new experience.

But his first appeal as a "swinger" is now being played in low key. He is now presented as a very serious-minded, hardworking middle-aged man, young in ideas and youthful in strength and vigor.

He does not smoke and drinks very little. He has worked a 14 to 18-hour day almost regularly since he took over the justice portfolio, you will be told by his organizers, who now appear to want his serious side emphasized.

His workers at his headquarters take the position that at least 50 per cent of the campaign lies ahead. The large half of the work still to be done will be the convincing of uncommitted delegates at the convention that Mr. Trudeau is the man to be the next prime minister of Canada.

They believe that more than half the delegates who arrive at the convention will have a favorite candidate in mind. The job of the Trudeau organization is to persuade enough of them that they should switch to the man from Quebec.

His organizers are convinced this can be done. They look for exceptionally strong second ballot support that will build up steadily on succeeding ballots, so that Mr. Trudeau will clearly become the winner.

Mr. Trudeau has made a tremendous impact wherever he has gone in this country during the campaign. He has accumulated coast to coast support, his followers contend.

Their claim appears to be backed up by the findings of a cross-country survey made by a large weekly newspaper. It reported he had overwhelming support among the voters under 35.

His campaign organizers were ready to assess his strength for this correspondent, provided they were not tied down to exact figures.

Rural Area Strength

In British Columbia, they report that the campaign was now "stabilizing to some degree." This applies to the support for all candidates, they believe. They see Mr. Trudeau running a "neck and neck race" with Mr. Turner. They are delighted with the response in the West Coast province.

Alberta will give Mr. Trudeau a greater percentage of committed delegates than any other candidate, they predict. They say Mr. Trudeau has particularly impressed delegates from rural areas.

Saskatchewan, they admit, is difficult to assess. All they would say was that Premier Ross Thatcher has eliminated certain candidates as not deserving support of Saskatchewan delegates.

The premier has not included Mr. Trudeau in this group they were happy to say. Mr. Thatcher, they say, is keeping quiet and not committing himself to any particular candidates—"he is looking for a winner."

In Manitoba, the Trudeau organization has found support for their man steadily mounting. He is "gaining more and more delegates" at the expense of the other candidates.

'Trudeau Country'

They see Mr. Martin losing ground rapidly in Manitoba and in Alberta. The Trudeau workers were annoyed because the Martin workers had claimed great support in areas the Trudeau people claim as "Trudeau country."

They say they are prepared to challenge the Martin team to name their committed delegates. They are confident they can produce greater strength in these two prairie provinces.

The large turnout to hear Mr. Trudeau in Winnipeg on a cold snowy Sunday afternoon astonished even his own workers. They were happy with the reception he received and spoke highly of the calibre of the Manitobans working on Mr. Trudeau's behalf.

They believe his organization, man for man and woman for woman across the country, is the best in the field. "The best bunch of professional amateurs in the business," said one organizer with pride.

In Ontario, they expect Mr. Trudeau to "do very well." They are prepared to forecast he will "beat all other candidates in that province, or at least emerge even with Paul Hellyer."

Trudeau organizers claim to have 182 committed delegates at this stage. Ontario will send 734 delegates to the convention. Mr. Trudeau's workers hope to enter the convention with at least 200 from Ontario. If they can accomplish this, they feel they are on the way to winning.

Strife, Struggle

In Quebec, the Trudeau campaign is getting well under way. His organizers expect to pick up 400 votes. But they say the usual sound and fury of Quebec campaigning is now being heard. Out of the strife and struggle will emerge a solid bloc of votes for the only French-Canadian candidate.

Manpower Minister Jean Marchand is now working hard to produce strong support for his man in Quebec City. He was stung by reporters' questions at a recent press conference as to why his own area showed little strength for Mr. Trudeau. In Montreal Mr. Trudeau has very strong support.

The Trudeau organization proudly points out it has made public the names of the 23 members of Parliament (now 24) who are committed to actively support him. They say other organizations have talked a lot about support from the Liberal caucus and wondered aloud if they could match that support with names.

His workers concede that the minister's bill liberalizing abortion and homosexual laws have aroused some antagonism in Quebec.

Non-Serious Candidate Is Serious

WINNIPEG (CP) —Lloyd Henderson says he is, and will continue to be, "a serious candidate" for the national leadership of the Liberal party.

Referring to recently-announced regulations concerning speaking times given so-called non-serious candidates at the leadership convention next week, the former mayor of portage La Prairie, Man., said:

"If this is the attitude of the organizers of the Liberal convention, something is seriously wrong with Liberalism in Canada.

"The brass is trying to organize the convention to their benefit and not in the interests of the people of Canada."

Convention organizers have alloted specific speaking times to only nine candidates. Other "non-serious" candidates will be allowed to speak before or after the nine.

This cuts them out of the live television coverage of the convention.

Mr. Henderson said he isn't so concerned about television time as he is about "democracy in the Liberal party."

He said he hopes "common sense prevails" and the regulations will be withdrawn.

STANBURY . . . sorts out program

From Martin To Turner Is 4½ Hours

OTTAWA (CP) — The sought-after middle slots in the candidates' speaking order on the eve of the balloting at the Liberal leadership convention have gone to Transport Minister Paul Hellyer, Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp and Health Minister Allan MacEachen.

A draw was held Wednesday to decide the rotation for the nine serious candidates delivering speeches Friday night, April 5. The balloting to choose a successor to Prime Minister Pearson follows on Saturday.

External Affairs Minister Paul Martin's supporters were saddened their man got the lead-off position in the speech-making marathon, last chance for the candidates to address the delegates before the vote.

His campaign aides talked over the possibility of making a trade to move up in the speaking order but the idea was finally dismissed as unworkable.

Consensus is that the middle positions are best because delegates would have had time to settle down and would have been warmed up by earlier speakers. Late arrivals would have been seated.

Moreover, the delegates would not have been listening long enough to start getting restless.

The half-hour speeches start at 4 p.m. PST April 5 and end at 8:30 p.m. Order of speaking will be Martin, Winters, Greene, Hellyer, Sharp, MacEachen, Kierans, Trudeau, Turner.

Demonstrations will be permitted for each candidate.

Candidates will also address televised workshop sessions on convention opening day, April 4, from 10:30 a.m. PST to 2:55 p.m.

In charge of organizing the program is Senator Richard Stanbury.

LEADERSHIP SUPPORTERS LISTED

'Low Blows' Claim Levelled

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

With the Liberal leadership convention in Ottawa less than a week away, at least three candidates received declarations of support Thursday.

Senator John Connelly, government leader in the Senate, announced he is supporting Finance Minister Sharp.

Mr. Connelly is the fourth cabinet minister to announce his support for Mr. Sharp. The others are Revenues Minister Chretien, Industry Minister Drury and Mines Minister Pepin.

The campaign committee for Transport Minister Hellyer announced that 19 Liberal backbenchers are supporting Mr. Hellyer.

In addition, three cabinet ministers—State Secretary LaMarsh, defence Minister Cadieux and Labor Minister Nicholson—have announced they are behind Mr. Hellyer.

Senator Maurice Lamontagne announced he is supporting Justice Minister Trudeau in the leadership convention in Ottawa April 4-6.

EQUIPPED LEADER

He described Mr. Trudeau as the man best equipped to lead Canada "in the post-industrial society, in a world that is constantly being recreated."

Premier Smallwood of Newfoundland, speaking in St. John's, described Mr. Trudeau and Robert Winters as the two "extraordinary" candidates in the field.

However, Elmer Sopha, Liberal member of the Ontario legislature for Sudbury, criticized Mr. Trudeau as being "grossly irresponsible" on the question of national unity.

"He has chosen to adopt a belligerent and intransigent attitude in dealing with the prime minister of Quebec, at a time when Mr. Johnson is seeking an accord with other provinces," Mr. Sopha charged.

DENIES ALLEGATIONS

Meanwhile, Manpower Minister Marchand, campaign manager for Mr. Trudeau, issued a statement complaining of "low blows" in the campaign.

"A few papers have made reference to accusations concerning tactics I am supposed to have employed in convincing Quebec members of Parliament to support Mr. Pierre Elliott Trudeau," he said.

He said that since taking over Mr. Trudeau's campaign, he has spoken to no more than three or four Quebec MPs, "and at no time during these conversations were there threats or promises."

Premier Alex Campbell of Prince Edward Island introduced Mr. Trudeau to convention delegates as the man "who very well may be the next prime minister."

P.E.I.'s Conservative leader, Walter Shaw, said he was impressed with Mr. Trudeau's personality. However, he said all the candidates were "men of fine character and personality."

External Affairs Minister Martin ignored a doctor's advice and spoke to a dinner meeting in Sudbury of about 45 delegates and Liberal officials.

Consumer Affairs Minister Turner, speaking in Montreal, said he is astonished that some drug manufacturers should be increasing their prices in non-prescription drugs at a time when legislation to reduce drug prices is before Parliament.

Health and Welfare Minister MacEachen, speaking in Orillia, said that lack of co-operation from the provinces has caused the furore about cuts in federal health services to Indians.

He said that the federal government will be forced to cut other health spending to maintain Indian services at their existing rate.

Also speaking to delegates in Kingston, Mr. MacEachen said Canada cannot offer any solutions to the war in Vietnam that would be new or creative.

Mr. MacEachen said he was running for the leadership because his experience as labor and then health minister and his responsibility as House leader in the Commons qualified him for leadership.

Finance Minister Sharp warned Kingston delegates to the Ottawa convention April 4-6 that the new leader must be more interested in politics than Lester Pearson has been if Liberals are to win the next election.

He said the party needs a broader base in constituencies, similar to the base the New Democratic Party now has.

In Brantford, Mr. Sharp said he would favor negotiating an end to the monarchy in Canada if its continuation was contributing to disunity in the country.

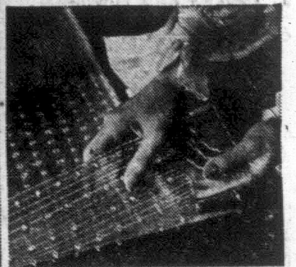
Tenex Carpet Runner protects carpets from soiling and wear without hiding their beauty. So durable it can't be punctured even by spike heels.



Tenex Carpet Runner has 144 little molded-in vinyl grippers on each square foot that make it cling firmly to all but plush-type carpets.

Tenex Floor Runner has a smooth underside that hugs resilient floor coverings. Recommended for all hard-surfaced floors except varnished wood.

New, totally different Tenex* Vinyl Runners* protect your carpets without hiding their beauty—even on stairways!

Tenex Vinyl Runners are a luxurious new type of carpet and floor runner designed for year-round use. They keep your beautiful floors spotlessly clean, protect them from wear, and they stay put.

They're transparent. Tenex Vinyl Runners show off the beautiful color, texture, and patterns of your floor covering. Completely different from any runner you've ever seen, they're so beautiful you'll leave them down even when company comes! Choose from transparent blue, goldenrod, green, sand, or crystal-clear.

They're durable. Tenex Vinyl Runners are made of exceptionally thick, luxurious vinyl. This tough, supple material can't be torn or punctured in normal use, even by spike heels. Keeps your fine floor coverings clean and wear-free as new, for many extra years of life and beauty.

Two styles meet all your needs. For your carpeted floors and stairways, choose Tenex Vinyl Carpet Runner. It has 144 little molded-in vinyl grippers on the underside of each square foot to stay in place without fastening—even on stairways (with all but plush-type carpeting). For all your hard-surfaced floors, except finished wood, choose Tenex Vinyl Floor Runner. Its smooth underside hugs tile, sheet vinyl, or stone floors.

Both Tenex Vinyl Runner styles are 27 inches wide and have non-slip crosswise ribbing. They have attractive, clear borders with no-trip feathered edges. They clean easily, can be rolled up instantly. Order enough for all your heavy-traffic areas—in any lengths up to 60 feet.

Guaranteed Ten Years. Tenex Vinyl Runners are so durable they're guaranteed for ten years against puncturing, tearing, or wearing through in normal use, or you'll get a free replacement. *Patents Pending

TENEX CARPET RUNNER per running foot $2.25
TENEX FLOOR RUNNER per running foot $1.95

8 CARD OF THANKS

The family of John A. Wallace extend a heartfelt thank you to those who sent flowers, donations in lieu of flowers, and sympathy cards at the time of their bereavement; and a special thanks to all his friends of Victoria for being so kind through the years, and to the Colwood detachment of the RCMP and Sands Funeral Chapel of Heather, Colwood. —Fred and Marian Wallace.

9 IN MEMORIAM

INGRAM—In loving memory of dear mother, Maud Ingram, who left us March 29, 1967.

The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved
so well;
The world seems quite another place
Without the smile on her face.

—Always remembered by Doreen, Ron and Family.

INGRAM — In loving memory of Mrs. Maude Ingram who passed away March 29, 1967.

One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away,
God took her home — it was His will,
Within our hearts she liveth still.

—Ever remembered by Des and Audrey and family.

WATERS — In loving memory of Thomas Waters who passed away March 29, 1967.

—Ever remembered by wife Margaret and family.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Duplicate bridge rewards skill more than rubber bridge and the team-of-four match based on International Match Point or IMP scoring is the most skillful form of duplicate, but even in this game there is a tremendous luck factor.

Opening lead—♥ A

Today's hand decided a recent IMP match when one North-South pair bid six spades and the other stopped at game.

The luck factor is represented by the queen of clubs. Move it to the East hand in place of one of the small clubs and the slam bidders would have lost the match. The swing involved in the location of this club queen was 750 points each way or a total of 1,500. Translated it meant 26 IMPs total.

The hand caused considerable argument. The winning team claimed that the slam contract was more likely to succeed than to go down because it would make any time West held the club queen or when West held five small clubs so that the queen would drop on the first club lead. Obviously correct dummy technique would be for declarer to draw trumps, cash one of dummy's high clubs to check on the possibility of a singleton queen and then to fall back on the club finesse.

The losing side admitted this but pointed out that East just might have been able to ruff an opening club or diamond lead.

Our own opinion is that the slam was just about as close to being an even money proposition as you will ever find and that a small amount of overbidding by the winning North and South had paid off this time. Next time it may not.

Pig Heart Transplant Aids Woman

LEEDS, England (Reuters) — Surgeons here transplanted three pig's valves into a woman's heart, it was announced Thursday.

It is believed to be the first item three natural valves have been grafted into a human heart.

The operation was carried out at Leeds Hospital Monday and the woman, Jean Bastow, 38, is making satisfactory progress, the hospital announced.

Mrs. Bastow, a mother of two, comes from Bradford, near this Northern England city.

Doctors said she suffered heart trouble for some time and three of her four aorti valves were diseased.

The announcement said two of the valves were transplanted when her heart was stopped. A heart-lung machine was in action for three hours.

Her heart stopped but was kept nourished with blood.

After two hours, her heart was restarted and the third valve transplanted.

The heart-lung machine was switched off and Mrs. Bastow's heart took over at once, the announcement said.

She now is in the hospital's intensive care unit.

SAANICH, FIREMEN GO TO ARBITRATION

An arbitration board may settle the contract dispute between Saanich firefighters and the municipality, Reeve Hugh Curtis said Thursday.

Saanich has offered an increase of 6.53 per cent for fourth-year firefighters and above but the employees rejected this, he said.

"It appears that the matter will go to an arbitration board," he said.

'Another VMD' In the Making?

With school construction drying up, more skilled workers may be driven from Greater Victoria in a search for jobs.

This was the fear expressed by representatives of labor, contractors and the school board Thursday in a meeting to discuss common problems.

Plans for an estimated $4,342,850 worth of school construction in Greater Victoria have been stalled for up to seven months under the provincial government's current education spending program.

'ANOTHER VMD?'

"Are we going to have another VMD situation in the construction industry?" asked E. J. Phillips, secretary of the Amalgamated Construction Association.

He was referring to last winter's closure of the Victoria Machinery Depot's shipyard which has since led scores of workmen to take jobs with American firms.

Labor representatives and builders said they favored a move planned by the school trustees to re-apply to the education department to tender on the Victoria West school building project.

Before this is done the school board intends to take another hard look at the plans to make sure there are no frills in the project which has an estimated price tag of $674,000.

The Vic West project was pigeonholed by the government last month when it set new cost ceilings for classrooms which trustees argue make their construction impossible.

Peter Bunn, chairman of the Greater Victoria school board, said today the dearth of construction and a functional plan means bids from builders would be "extremely realistic" on the Victoria West plan.

If the government turns down the request to get prices on the project, a further meeting will follow to plan united action, said Mr. Bunn.

Greater Victoria teachers hinted at strike action in voicing their support Tuesday in the trustees' struggle to crack the government's construction freeze.

The opposition is definitely hardening, said the school board chairman.

"We mean business. We've had enough of this."

Permitting bids on the Vic West project makes good economic and good common sense, he said.

FURTHER STUDY ADVOCATED

Don't Rush Outfall Plan, Board Member Tells Mayor

A member of the regional district board Thursday fired off an answering salvo to Mayor Hugh Stephen's recent shots in the battle for sewage disposal.

William Reader, director of the board from Colwood, called for further study — in direct opposition to Mayor Stephen's "action now" tone.

He called for more study of various methods of sewage disposal by the board's B committee, to find something better than the outfall system supported by the mayor.

"I am not advocating a delay," Mr. Reader said in an interview.

"In a month or two we could perhaps come up with something better than the outfall system," he said.

Mayor Stephen said Tuesday morning he was convinced the outfall method of disposal was the best for the Victoria region.

MISGUIDED

He also said most critics of the sea-disposal method are misguided.

Quoting from a report prepared by E. O. Baxter, borough engineer for the seaside resort town of Hastings, England, Mayor Stephen said controlled flows of sewage into the sea would not result in pollution.

The report stated, "If the area of the sea which is 'polluted' by reason of the concentration of organic matter is in a part of the sea where it can do no harm, logically it should be less of a problem to man than having an area of land given over to pollution with men working on that land such as occurs at sewage purification works."

The mayor sent copies of the report to all municipal leaders and members of the board.

AMAZING

Mr. Reader said it was "nothing short of amazing to me" that a report written by the engineer of Hastings had convinced the mayor that sewage outfall was suitable for Victoria.

Conditions here are entirely different from those at Hastings, he said.

That area of England has a straight coastline with faster than usual tides and an outward tidal flow, he said.

"Our coastline here is entirely different — crooked, ragged," he said.

"The prevailing winds are almost 100 per cent onshore. Our tides would not carry it (sewage) away but would carry it back on our beaches."

Mr. Reader called for a detailed study of systems all over the world where pollution problems have been cured, suggesting Japan, Holland and Germany as examples.

BEST SYSTEM

"I am not advocating one system — I would like to find out what is the best system and I would then like to put that into effect," he said.

Mayor Stephen quoted the Baxter report as saying that problems in England are simiar to those in Greater Victoria.

Mr. Reader challenged civic officials to put to an immediate referendum whether to start on the outfall system or undertake further study.

He said he thought the citizens of the Greater Victoria region were "absolutely opposed" to disposing of sewage by outfalls.

Caused Disturbance

A man was fined $15 in central court Thursday for causing a disturbance by being drunk on Douglas St. Wednesday night.

Police said Roy Gidluck, 20, of HMCS Yukon, began shouting when he was apprehended. The accused pleaded guilty.

MOUNTIE CHARGED

MONTREAL (CP) — Roger Mourant, 27, member of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police for eight years, Wednesday pleaded guilty to trafficking in 4½ pounds of heroin valued at $1,500,000 on the illicit market, and was remanded for sentence April 16.

Mourant, who was arrested by fellow officers Tuesday, was a member of an RCMP undercover narcotics squad and had been instrumental in recent months in breaking up several smugging attempts, said Philippe Landry, special federal prosecutor.

Victorian To Command Prince George

Captain H. Douglas Adlem has been appointed master of Canadian National's 5,800-ton cruise ship Prince George.

Captain Adlem was born in Victoria and began his CN career in September, 1949, as third officer of the Canora. He became master in August, 1960.

Captain Adlem will command the Prince George for at least 22 cruises this year, starting with a four-day charter cruise to Kitimat.

On April 26 the vessel opens another tourist cruise season between Vancouver and Skagway, with calls at Prince Rupert, Ketchikan, Wrangell and Juneau.

Keep Corn Plots Small

By HILDA BEASTALL

People who enjoy eating sweet corn are usually willing to take a little thought in growing it successfully, but without experience it may be just straight gambling.

Hilda

One of the requirements is to have a small number of cobs coming along to perfection for as long a period as possible.

Until a couple of years ago this was an impossibility in a few of our summers because for corn seedlings are not hardy to frost and it is often the third week of May before sowing is advisable.

Now there is a miniature corn which produces deliciously sweet cobs in just over nine weeks from sowing. This makes cobs available by the end of July from an outdoor sowing.

To extend the season by starting earlier, seed of this miniature corn can be sown this weekend, using two-inch square peat pots set closely together in a standard plant flat. Two seeds are set into good compost of each peat pot, and I found it practical to leave both if they both germinated. The plants grow to about three and a half feet in height, and bear five or six cobs apiece.

The flat will need to be in a warm place for germination, after which it should go into a cooler, light place to bring the plants along.

By early May, the flat will be better off in an outdoor coldframe where the glass cover can go over the plants each night until near the end of the month, by which time they will be six inches in height.

Without disturbing roots, set each peat pot into the ground, covering the edge of the pot. Eighteen inches between pairs of plants (each pot) is enough, but be sure to plant in short rows to form a block.

The first cobs should be ready by about July 7. At the time of putting out the corn plants, sow another short block of seed as a succession crop, and if desired, another small sowing when the first crop is finished. This will give continuous corn up to about early October.

YOUR HEALTH

How Are Cataracts Removed?

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Many people half blind with cataracts ask me a number of questions. One is, isn't there some medicine that will dissolve out the cataracts? And my answer is that none is known.

Alvarez

What is a cataract? It is a frosting of the lens in the eye; instead of looking like clear glass, as it should, it looks like frosted or milky glass. Why do cataracts form? Commonly, they form in older people, perhaps as part of the aging process. But they can start in small children or in just-born children in certain families where there appears to be a hereditary tendency for the lenses to cloud up. Also, there is a more than average tendency for diabetics to get cataracts.

After a beginning cataract is found, will the person soon be blind? No, in many cases the frosting proceeds very slowly and in many cases it is so slow that the person never gets enough loss of vision to interfere with his living.

Will the operation be terrible? No; if I had cataracts I would go and be operated on without any fear in my heart. Many times I have seen the operation performed in a few minutes; and under good local anesthesia. Often an elderly person has appealed to me for help; perhaps grandfather much wanted the operation for his cataracts, but his grown children said, "No, Dad, you are too old." I stood up for the old gentleman. I said he had a right to have the operation; he was not going to die because of it. Even if he were to live only 10 more years, he should not be condemned to sit all that time in darkness.

Every so often I hear from someone who has a cataract in only one eye, and the sight in the other eye is good. In that case, I agree with able professors of ophthalmology who say that often it is stupid to remove the cataract because in that case the images that reach the brain from the two eyes will be so different in size—except perhaps when a contact lens is used on the eye that was operated on—that the person cannot see well. In order to see, he may choose to cover one eye with a cloth patch or with an opaque glass in his eye glasses. Hence, why perform an operation if it is going to cause only discomfort?

Does a person have to wait a long time for the cataract to "ripen" and get hard? I understand that some ophthalmologists still believe in waiting until the cataracts are "ripe" (hard) and the person is fairly blind, but other able eye men tell me that they do not wait. They remove the soft lens in its capsule.

Adventists Want to Build Church in Spain

A fund to help build Adventist churches and chapels in Spain has been set up by Victoria Seventh-day Adventist Church.

A collection will be taken at the 11 a.m. service Saturday.

"Since the passage of Spain's 1967 religious liberty law, Adventist and other Protestant churches may now look like and be identified as churches," says Rudy Kwiram, leader of the church's Sabbath school.

"This means that Adventist pastors are permitted to conduct worship services, advertise in newspapers and openly invite the public to attend.

"The new Adventist church at Zaragoza, Spain, is the first Adventist church that looks like a church. A recent series of 30 public meetings there drew up to 850 persons a night to hear Bible and health lectures."

Mr. Kwiram said the Adventist church in Spain was organized in 1903. It now has 21 organized congregations.

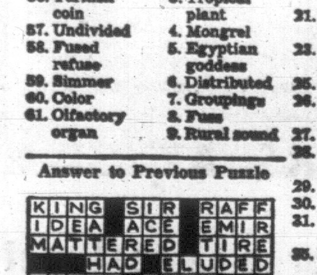
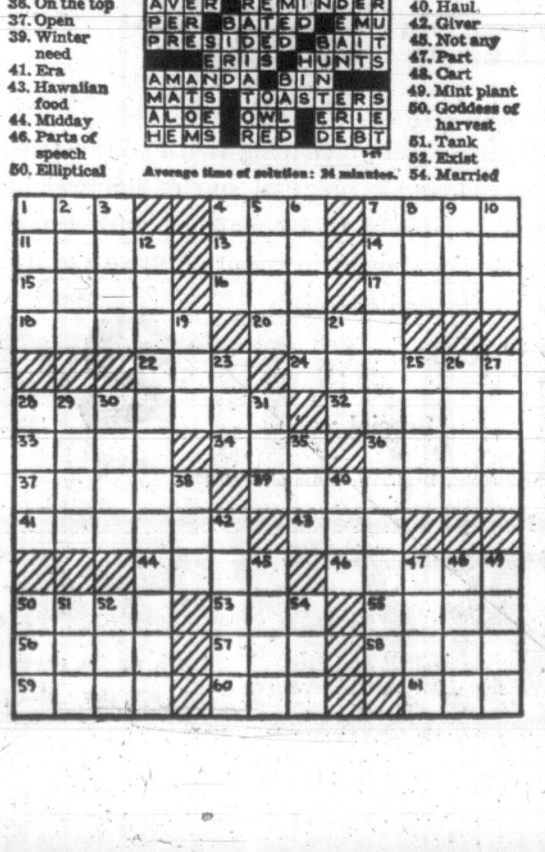
Answer to Previous Puzzle



Average time of solution: 24 minutes.



ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Ty Schuiling, age 13, of San Bernardino, California, for his question:

How are mountains built?

Our busy planet is engaged continuously in remodeling its wrinkled surface. Small projects, such as lakes, are minor events. Others re-form vast areas of the earth's crust and span vast eons of geological time. The biggest and most dramatic of these projects is mountain making.

San Bernardino basks amid a scenic geological wonderland of fruitful valleys, stretches of mineral-rich desert, rocky, sun-baked slopes and jagged snow-capped peaks. The dramatic formations run generally crosswise, underlining the massive Sierra Nevada that parallels the coast of California. They are the Transverse Ranges and their formation is linked to the dynamic mountain making that created the Sierra Navada. The uplift of the Sierra Nevada into a mountain chain began late in Miocene Epoch, almost 20 million years ago, but it was another great era of uplift in the middle of the Pleistocene Epoch, less than one million years ago, which raised the majestic peaks of the range to their present towering heights.

The major modeling of this planetary scenery is typical of most mountain making. Slow, shattering activity occurs in the earth's crust. Under large plains, the crust may be 15 to 20 miles thick, under massive ranges it may be 40 miles thick. Yet geological measurements show that the average weight of the crust, thick or thin, is roughly the same. What's more, it balances the weight of the heavier seabeds.

The earth attempts to maintain this globe-wide crustal balance but weather and water continuously shift vast masses of rocky silt downhill, adding its weight to the hollows. The weathery atmosphere and the weight-balancing forces within the crust are engaged in eternal warfare. The opposing factors direct the slow rise and decline of massive chains such as the Sierra Nevada system with all its minor ranges.

Peaks Eroded

A major mountain chain stands on the site of an ancient ditch called a geosyncline. Busy streams dumped weighty deposits into its shallow waters, triggering a gradual readjustment of crustal balances. The sides of the geosyncline rose and the entire region uplifted. The crustal layers compressed and wrinkled, bent and cracked, buckled and folded into overlapping piles like tumbled sandwiches.

These massive upheavals generated stupendous crustal heat and pressure. The region shuddered with earthquakes, volcanoes erupted new layers of rocky lava. The growing chain was readjusting its crustal weight back to normal. Then the violent phase subsided. But meantime the watery weather had begun its conuterattack. It wears down the lofty peaks. Rocky debris washed down their slopes adds extra weight to the hollows. This creates the necessity for crustal readjustments in the far future.

Earth scientists cannot explain fully why our global mountain chains form along certain well-defined belts. They suspect that this problem involved forces within deep levels below the crust. One theory suggests that heat from below wells up and sinks in convection currents. These pockets would likely cause weak areas in the rocky crust. This theory may or may not explain why restless, mountainous regions tend to favor definite zones on the global map.

Andy sends a World Book Atlas to Stuart Smith, age 12, of Winston-Salem, North Carolina, for his question:

Can beams from radio stations bounce back from space years later?

Radio is a form of electromagnetic energy. Hence it travels in straight lines, fanning out from its source at the speed of light. Like light, its beams can be stopped or absorbed or diverted by solid objects in its path. Its energy spreads out and diminishes with distance but faint signals can be boosted by amplifiers. Like beams of light, it can bounce from a solid surface and reflect back in the direction from which it came. In theory, at least, it would seem possible to beam a radio signal to Sirius and expect its dim reflection to return to earth after about 17 years.

This radio space-hopping would be a huge project calling for intensely powerful beams. So far, scientists have been successful in bouncing back a radio signal from the moon and, of course, from our artificial communications satellites. But many stars emit their own radio beams from objects clear across our Galaxy and beyond.

Teamsters Walk Out In Warehouse Dispute

NANAIMO — Teamsters working for Johnston Terminals, Ltd., on northern Vancouver Island walked off their jobs today.

The drivers and warehousemen staged the walkout in a dispute that started Monday at the government assembly wharf.

A representative of the Teamsters' Joint Council, Local 31, was here today attempting to solve the dispute with company representatives. The strike involves Johnston warehouses in Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Campbell River.

A spokesman at Port Alberni said six men have refused to enter the warehouse and another eight have not entered Campbell River terminal.

SCHOOL DISTRICT No. 65
(Cowichan)
NOTICE TO FENCING CONTRACTORS

Sealed Tenders, plainly marked "Tender for Fencing," are invited by the Board of School Trustees for the supply and erection of Chain-Link Fencing at various sites throughout the school district.

Working drawings, specifications, instructions to bidders, and form of tender may be obtained from the School District Maintenance Office, 2670 James Street, Duncan, B.C.

A certified cheque (bid bond) in the amount of 10% of the total tendered price must accompany all tenders. A performance bond, to bind the tenderer in the amount of 50% of the contract price, must be provided within fourteen (14) days of a contract being accepted. This bond shall be approved by and acceptable to the owner and made out to School District No. 65 (Cowichan) as owner.

If the tenderer defaults in executing the contract within six (6) days following notification in writing of the award of the contract, then said certified cheque (bid bond) will become the property of the Board of School Trustees, School District No. 65 (Cowichan).

Tenders must be in the hands of the undersigned by 2:00 p.m. Monday, April 22, 1968, at which time the tenders will be opened in public. The lowest or any tenders will not necessarily be accepted and the Board of Trustees reserves the right to reject any or all tenders or any portion of these tenders without explanation. No tender will be considered having any qualifying clauses whatsoever.

DRIVER DIED WRAPPED IN PULP SHEET

CAMPBELL RIVER — A coroner's jury has ruled that a forklift operator crushed under a two-ton bale of pulp Saturday met death by accident.

Joseph Kerr died at Elk Falls pulp mill at Duncan Bay as he lay on a stack of pulp with a sheet of pulp wrapped around him, the inquest heard Wednesday.

Another forklift operator did not see him and lowered a pulp pallet weighing about 4,000 pounds on top of him.

No evidence was presented on what Mr. Kerr was doing lying where he was killed. The jury ruled no one was to blame.

Hospital Vote 'Imperative'

NANAIMO—The head of the regional hospital here has called for a $4,641,475 expansion program to overcome crowding and admission delays.

Hospital society president Eric Winch said it is "imperative" that the necessary money bylaw be put to regional voters without delay.

A report from secretary-treasurer Gordon Frith showed 7,853 admissions from a population of 39,004 for a ratio of 201 per 1,000. The provincial average is 167.9.

He said the hospital should have 254 beds instead of its 225.

Mr. Winch said the board is concerned patients admitted often must spend time in the emergency ward before a bed becomes available.

"Persons who are awaiting elective surgery . . . find that no bed will be available for months on end, and that dates of admission, when fixed, are subject to cancellation and re-cancellation."

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

'YOU CAN AND WE DID'

Valley of the Swans ... You Can't Miss It

By ELIZABETH FORBES

I was in the gallery at the Legislative Buildings a night or so ago when a bill creating a 16,000 acre wildlife sanctuary on the migratory fowl flyway in the Kootenay River valley near Creston passed second reading. And I listened with interest as Minister of Conservation and Recreation W. K. Kiernan enlarged on the benefits of this bill not only to wild life conservation but to tourism in the district.

Forbes

He said that the sanctuary would eventually draw hundreds into the valley to observe and to photograph the wildfowl. Going further, he envisioned in the not too distant future, special trails and observation points for these visitors.

If I could have stood up and cheered at this point, without being evicted from the gallery, I would have done so. For I believe nothing would please visitors to Creston more than being able to see these feathered migrants close-up and to photograph them from well-placed viewing points.

I make that statement as one who tried to do this a little over a year ago and who returned home without a single picture.

The idea started with me in the winter of 1966 when I saw a B.C. government presentation "Valley of the Swans" at a National Film Board night in one of our high schools.

It showed the wet lands of the Kootenay—especially Duck Lake mentioned in the new bill—and the work of provincial wild life men in caring for and banding ducks, geese, whistling swans and other feathered migrants.

I saw the same film again in the summer in Beacon Hill Park. Impact of the two showings made me determined to see the valley in reality.

That autumn a North Vancouver friend suggested we take a holiday motoring in the interior of the province. I agreed if Creston was included on the itinerary.

We arrived there toward the end of a sunny autumn day and immediately I made inquiries.

"Valley of the swans?" the motel proprietor repeated vaguely. "Oh! yes ... yes ... you go back down the road a piece and at the first garage ask for Sam . . . what's-his-name. He'll know all about the swans."

We went back down the road and stopped at the first garage. Sam, we were told, was likely out somewhere on the flats. But if we would go on up the hill to the first fork, turn right and then left, we'd see where he lived. He just might be there.

Last words we heard shouted after us was "you can't miss it."

However, we did miss it and we ended up at another fork in the road and at another garage where a smiling young man gave us more instructions. Not on how to find Sam (we never did catch up with him) but how to see the valley of the swans.

"Go up to the lookout," he said. "Stand there . . . turn to the right . . . look down over the flats. Where you see trees and water and more trees and water . . . that's your valley."

We wanted to know how we got down to those trees and that water. The lad shrugged. "There's a road . . . but you'd better settle for the lookout."

When we insisted he did add "go out toward the highway . . . turn left and then right . . . cross a bridge . . . you can't miss it!"

Again we did miss it. So we went back to the lookout where a provincial government sign told us the story of Baillie-Grohman, who had a dream back in the late 1880s of reclaiming the rich flatlands with a canal that would control flooding of the Kootenay River.

It was long after he returned to England, broke and disillusioned that draining and dyking brought the result he envisioned and that we saw in the acres of golden harvest stretching below us in the light of a setting sun.

Far to the right on the edge of this reclaimed land was the dark smudge of trees and waterways that will now be designated a wildfowl sanctuary.

This sanctuary will no doubt be made easy to find. It will be readily accessible to visitors and photographers. And it will without doubt develop (as it was said in the throne speech) into one of the most outstanding conservation projects on this continent.

Israel, Jordan Clash Again Along UN Cease-Fire Front

Bombers Rock Arab Positions

Times News Services

TEL AVIV—Jordan and Israel today fought with tanks, artillery and mortars in a day-long battle the full 70-mile length of the Jordan River Valley.

Israeli planes swarmed across the Jordan River and bombed Jordanian gun positions following a border incident which each side blamed on the other.

The border is a cease-fire line established by the United Nations following the June war. A Jordanian military spokesman said four Israeli jet fighters were hit and seen falling in flames during the clash.

The battle began with rifle and machine-gun fire and gradually escalated to larger weapons as the war front expanded along the cease-fire line from the Sea of Galilee in the north to the Dead Sea in the south.

Unlike the March 21 clash between the two nations, there was no invasion today by Israeli infantry.

During the day, Israeli planes intermittently bombed the village of Karameh, where Israel launched a major raid last week to destroy alleged terrorist bases.

One report said the fighting had stopped at sundown this evening.

JORDAN BUYS U.S. WEAPONS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States and Jordan signed an agreement Thursday providing for renewal of U.S. arms shipments.

The state department said the pact was signed in the Jordanian capital of Amman and provided for shipment of aircraft and tanks to Jordan. The U.S. also sells arms to Israel.

An Israeli army spokesman charged that the Jordanians began firing machine-guns at Israeli settlements at 11:30 a.m. Israeli troops fired back, he said, and the Jordanians wheeled up artillery to bombard the settlements of Fesher, Beit Yosef and Yardena. The Israelis replied with their own artillery.

Israeli Bombers Rock Jordan

Fighting halted around noon but erupted again a half hour later. At this point Israeli planes were dispatched to bomb the Jordanian guns, the spokesman said. He claimed there were no Israeli casualties.

Tension had filled the valley earlier in the day after four Israeli civilians were killed when their trailer, pulled by a tractor,, hit a mine in the banana grove in Massada, south of Lake Galilee.

To the Arabs it looked as though war was impending again.

Before news of the air strike, press reports in Cairo, Beirut, Damascus, Amman and Bagdad had chorused the general feeling that Israel was about to hit Jordan again, and soon.

Israeli troops buildups were reported under way in the northern part of the Jordan valley, and inhabitants on the Jordan side of the river were reported to evacuate their homes for safe ground.

The press also spoke of Israeli buildups along the ceasefire line with Syria, in the Sinai Desert and even along the quiet border with Lebanon.

Reports from Amman said King Hussien held a lengthy meeting at army general headquarters Thursday. In Beirut, President Charles Helou and Premier Abdullah Yafi discussed the situation with Arab League Secretary-General Abdel Khalek Hassouna.

Iraqi President Abdel Rahman Aref warned the Arabs that time was not on their side. In a speech, Aref said the mission of United Nations peace envoy Gunner Jarring was "useless" and the solution of the crisis lay in the hands of the Arabs. By that he meant another war.

The incidents today came eight days after Israeli forces slashed into Jordan, destroyed three guerrilla bases and killed 170 Arab commandos.

Earlier today an Israeli Army spokesman said machine-gun bursts were fired at two Israeli army jeeps and a command car near the occupied city of Gaza. He added there were no casualties.

In Beirut, Lebanon, A Palestinian commando group, the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, claimed its raiders blew up four Israeli halftracks with mines.

In addition to the four persons killed when a trailer they were riding hit a mine, a fifth person, an American was wounded.

NEW PM TO BE TESTED IN JUNE MINI-ELECTION

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal byelections will be held Monday, June 17, to fill all four seats now vacant in the House, Prime Minister Pearson announced today.

The four byelections will be the first test of strength at the polls for Mr. Pearson's successor, to be chosen at a Liberal leadership convention here April 4 to 6.

Voters will go to the polls in three Quebec ridings, Montreal St. Jacques, Matapedia-Matane and Sherbrooke, and one in Ontario, Grey-Bruce.

Montreal St. Jacques and Matapedia-Matane were last held by the Liberals; Sherbrooke by independent Maurice Allard, and Grey-Bruce by the Conservatives.

PROTEST VOTE

Labor Suffers Crushing Blow

By CARL MOLLINS

LONDON (CP)—The Labor government has been crushed deeper into a trough of troubles by 55,341 soured English voters.

Their stampeding change of political sympathies trampled Labor out of three parliamentary seats and swept a fourth back to the Conservatives in byelections Thursday.

The four-seat slam by the Tories left Labor holding a bitter political record: It is the first time this century a party has lost three seats in a single day's byelections.

The 55,341 voters account for the total of ballots lost to Labor Thursday through switched loyalties or abstentions since the general election just two years ago Sunday. Total Labor poll in the three Midlands ridings and one London constituency was sliced by more than half to 49,945 from 105,286.

PRODIGIOUS LOSSES

Labor's vote plummeted by about 16,000 in both Dudley and neighboring Meriden, by 10,000 in London's Acton and more than 13,000 in Warwick and Leamington, a seat held by former prime minister Sir Anthony Eden for 34 years until 1957 and the only safely-Tory community of the four.

Prime Minister Wilson's government retains a handy 75-seat majority in the House of Commons despite the lengthening series of byelection setbacks. In 20 months, Labor has lost nine of 12 seats tested in byelections while the Tories have held onto five of theirs.

The massive turning away from Labor demonstrated again Thursday is another challenge to a government just shaken by the resignation as foreign secretary of George Brown, deputy leader of the parliamentary Labor party, and plagued by incipient internal revolt.

Although the anti-government swing had been predicted, Labor officials and some neutrals had felt the government's popular decline might be levelling off — especially after the stringent but widely-praised March 19 budget.

OUST WILSON AIDE

Dudley, bailiwick of Wilson aide George Wigg until his recent elevation to the peerage, had been considered a safe Labor seat. The other three polls resulted from deaths.

Chartered accountant Don Williams overwhelmed Wigg's would-have-been successor, financial consultant John Gilbert, by 28,016 to 16,360.

In Acton, Tory businessman Kenneth Baker beat Labor's Walter Johnson 12,242 to 8,522.

BIG BLASTS FOLLOW RAID

HANOI (AFP)—U.S. planes flew a lightning raid today against the Hanoi area.

There were two heavy explosions on the city's southeastern outskirts.

Hanoi's anti-aircraft defences all opened up aganist the attackers who were apparently flying low.

Today's targets were apparently located towards the Red River, to the southeast. It was the second daylight raid in recent weeks.

Bombing Pause Near?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. congressman said today he believes President Johnson is considering a new 30-day pause in the bombing of North Vietnam.

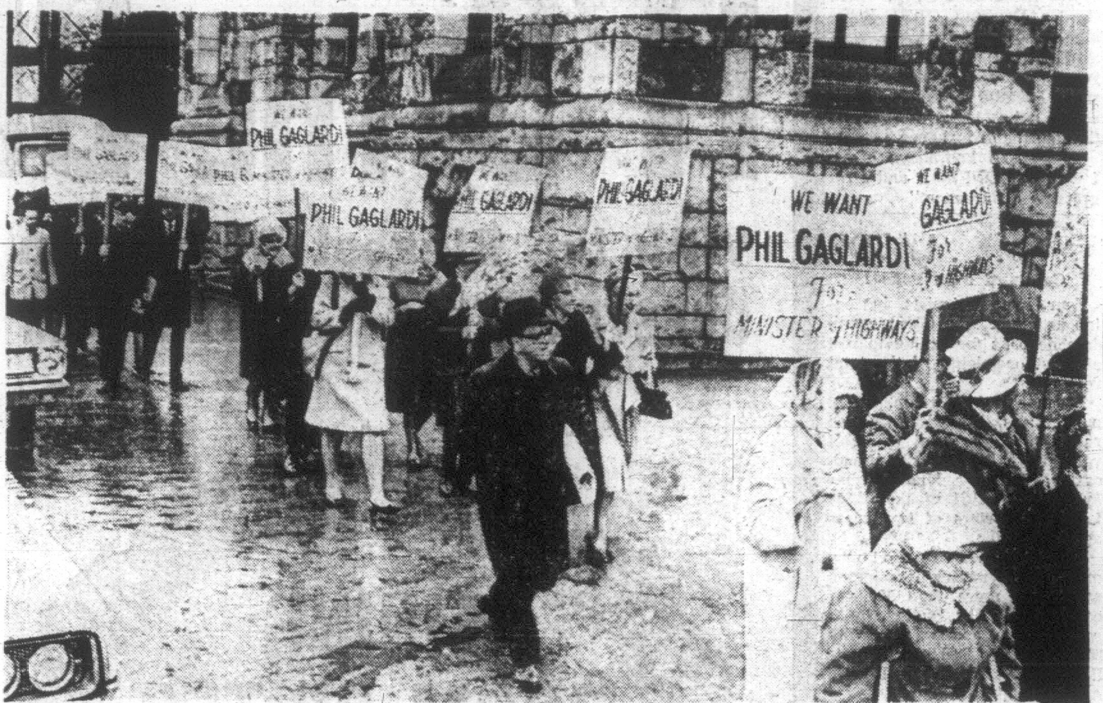
Rep. Melvin Laird of Wisconsin, chairman of the house Republican conference composed of all GOP house members, did not give the source of his information.

Laird said he had heard speculation that a bombing pause might coincide with the Wisconsin primaries next Tuesday, but added, "I am not one who speculates along that line."

He then said that "there may be a bombing pause announced for a period of some 30 days just to give it a try, and then the president would be in a position where he could say to his critics that he had offered such a pause."

Laird charged that the administration was playing politics by postponing a request to Congress for additional money he said was needed to finance the Vietnam war.

Laird said administration leaders had delayed submitting a supplemental money request to avoid giving Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy (D—Minn.), campaigning as a peace candidate, an additional argument against Johnson's Vietnam policy.



PHIL GAGLARDI
WE WANT PHIL GAGLARDI for MINISTER of HIGHWAYS
GAGLARDI

'We Want Phil' Chanters Cleared From Legislature

By JOHN MIKA

The spectators' galleries had to be cleared of some 70 chanting demonstrators Thursday while a trio of aircraft made a flypast over the Legislature's dome as a gesture of support for Phil Gaglardi.

The demonstrators, most of them elderly and a few carrying Bibles, chanted "we want Phil" in the galleries after having piled placards outside demanding his reinstatement as highways minister.

Mr. Gaglardi had made one of his few appearances in the legislature this session about three hours earlier but ducked out after shaking Premier Bennett's hand and telling reporters "I'll be back, see ya fellas."

Michael Latta, a Kamloops oil distributor who lives three blocks from Mr. Gaglardi, shouted from the galleries that the legislature was using "character assassination" against the former highways minister.

And Mrs. E. Graeper of Kamloops yelled down at the Socreds as the demonstrators were herded out on Speaker William Murray's command: "Lousy Communists. Phil is the best man of all of them . . . Phil has done more than all of them put together."

Although some cabinet ministers grinned sheepishly, Premier Bennett sat with a frozen smile on his face throughout the demonstration but he told reporters later his answer to their demand is: "I am satisfied with the present minister of highways."

Mr. Bennett took over the highways portfolio the previous Thursday when he announced the resignation of Mr. Gaglardi and his reappointment as a minister without portfolio.

Regret Demonstration: Bennett

The premier also made a formal statement regretting the incident at the reopening of the house following supper adjournment.

As premier of the province and leader of the government, I greatly regret the demonstration we had this afternoon," he said.

"Demonstrations of any kind at any time in any Parliament in the Commonwealth is a most regrettable situation for any reason," said Speaker Murray who ordered the house into recess while galleries were cleared for the first time in his career.

He said no charges are contemplated although demonstrators could be jailed "at the pleasure of the legislature."

Mr. Latta told reporters after the demonstration that it was "spontaneous" and had been conceived and arranged within the previous 48 hours. He said it included 30 persons from Kamloops and the rest from the Fraser Valley, Vancouver and Victoria.

He said he was one of the organizers but would not identify any others. He said he was in the petroleum products distribution business but would not identify the company.

(The Kamloops city directory identified him as president of Atlas Petroleum Products. An answer tabled in the legislature last Friday said Active Petroleum Products, which lists his name among two directors, was paid $1,201 for gasoline and $1,285 for diesel oil by the highways department during the present fiscal year.)

Mr. Latta said a series of petitions are being circulated around the province to give "tremendous support for Phil Gaglardi" which will be presented to Mr. Bennett.

'Financial Support of Party'

He said the demonstration and a further campaign for Mr. Gaglardi "has the moral and financial support of the Social Credit party" and others.

He said he was not active in the party but helped organize the protest "because of the past years of abuse of Phil Gaglardi."

Mr. Latta said Mr. Bennett "has done an admirable job with the government and heading the government" and the demonstrators were not upset with his role in Mr. Gaglardi's resignation but he was sure "he heard our message" during the chanting.

"We feel he had to accept the resignation to take the pressure off the party," he said.

Mr. Gaglardi was "not that ill" that he had to resign, he said.

Asked his views of the Lear jet flight to Dallas with Mr. Gaglardi's daughter-in-law and grandson, Mr. Latta said, "I don't want to comment on that. That's a controversial thing."

The demonstrators formed a circle in the rotunda of the

ROSSLAND (AP) — Jean Claude Killy of France won his second straight World Cup ski title today as he moved into unofficial first place in early stages of the second run of the men's slalom at the Red Mountain - international ski meet.

Wins Curling Title

Thousands Flee Fires

CHICAGO (UPI) — Fires broke out today in two of the largest department stores on Chicago's famed State Street. Thousands of customers and employees fled the flames down stairwells filled with blinding smoke.

There were no injuries reported.

Judgment Reserved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judgment has been reserved in the hearing here into the grounding of the B.C. government ferry, Queen of Prince Rupert. The ferry is back in service.

Hydro Holds Line On Rates

Electricity and natural gas rates of B.C. Hydro will remain unchanged "at this time," the government agency said in a statement Thursday.

Despite a jump of 12 per cent in ordinary operating costs in the past fiscal year, Hydro will hold the line on rates and on its transit fares, said co-chairmen Gordon Shrum and Hugh Keenleyside.

"Several months ago it seemed almost certain that rates would have to be increased this spring," said Dr. Shrum.

But by curtailing expenses and "introducing cost-saving procedures wherever possible" an increase has been avoided," he said.

The last increase in electricity rates was March 31, 1967, when B.C. Hydro announced a hike of half a cent per kilowatt hour, or up to $1.50 a month extra to a domestic consumer bill.

The increase followed a series of reductions since electric power came under public ownership.

Newfoundland Sales Tax Up

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld (CP)—Newfoundlanders were hit with $20,000,000 in tax increases today when the 1968-69 budget was brought down in the legislature.

The provincial sales tax is to be increased to 7 per cent from 6 and corporate income tax is being raised 1 per cent to 12 per cent.

As well, liquor, beer, tobacco, gasoline and some insurance policies will cost more as the result of Finance Minister James McGrath's first budget.

Two Dead, 16 Injured In Panama Rioting

PANAMA CITY (CP) — Normality returned to this politically torn capital today following wild rioting Thursday night that left two dead and at least 16 persons injured.

Stores that closed at the first signs of trouble reopened and traffic throughout the city seemed normal. The opposition has been trying to get a general strike started against the government.

A national guardsman shot and killed a looter and the second victim died in still unclear circumstances. Guard patrols were out in large numbers in the business district.

The commander of the guard, Brig'-Gen. Bolivar Vallarino, said in a communique today his troops would act vigorously, with "all means at their disposal," to put down any new disturbances. He blamed Thursday night's rioting on unscrupulous politicians, without making any specific reference to persons of organizations.

The main elements in Panama's trouble are two claimants to the presidency, a restive national guard and a decisive Supreme Court session starting Monday. Thursday night's rioting followed a silent protest by 2,000 women.

Firebugs Plague Memphis In Wake of Race Outburst

By BILL JOHNSON

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Troop-protected firetrucks and stringent police patrols kept guard on Memphis today, but fires flickered sporadically in the wreckage left by a riot which claimed one life.

The violence began on historic Beale Street Thursday morning when a march by 6,000 Negroes, led by Rev. Martin Luther King Jr., in support of striking garbage collectors, turned into a riot and continued through the day and night despite a tightly-enforced curfew.

Another possible confrontation between marchers and police was expected today with Negro leaders saying they would stage another march—this one limited to sidewalks as were those held almost daily since the city's sanitation workers struck Feb. 12.

Only police, state trooper and national guard vehicles moved on the major streets during the night, but the alleys and back streets were alive with youths darting forth to set fires and stone firetrucks.

At midnight, a fire department spokesman said 148 fire alarms had been turned in from the downtown area.

In a sniping incident, five shots were fired at police stationed at the intersection of Beale Street and Hernando Avenue, the day's main trouble spot.

Policemen put on bulletproof vests, and national guardsmen with sniperscopes moved into the area. No further shots were reported.

Thursday's march began as a peaceful demonstration. Its leaders and police say the violence was the work of a splinter group of Negro youths.

YOUTH GROUP RIOTS

Frank Holloman, Memphis police director, said the trouble started when 200 youths separated from the main group and went on a window-breaking and looting binge. Police retaliated with clubs and riot gas.

In the struggle that followed and continued through the night, a 16-year-old Negro, Larry Payne, was shot to death. More than 150 arrests were made and at least 50 persons were injured —including five shot and one stabbed.

Holloman said he was told Payne was shot after charging a policeman with a butcher knife when the youth was caught looting.

The stabbing victim was an unidentified city bus driver, leading the Memphis transit authority to halt all bus service.

Gov. Buford Ellington ordered in 4,000-riot-trained national guardsmen and put another 8,000 on alert.

Westbank Revival Sought; Relocate in Saskatchewan

REGINA (CP) — The Bank of Western Canada will be revived and its head office located here if its backers can obtain a stay of proceedings in a Manitoba court which would wind up the bank's affairs, Sinclair M. Stevens of Toronto announced today.

Mr. Stevens said at a news conference that through Westbank Securities Ltd., a Regina-based firm, shareholders and former directors of the Bank of Western Canada have entered an agreement with York Lambton Corp. Ltd. of Toronto which would result in reactivation of the bank subject to court approval, Ottawa sanctions and ratification by the shareholders.

Also announced were details of the agreement with York Lambton which currently holds 50.1 per cent of the voting stock in the bank. The agreement provides for the sale of 28 per cent of that interest and an option for a further 12 per cent. York Lambton would eventually end up with a 10-per-cent interest in the bank.

B. A. Chalmers of Toronto, vice-president of York Lambton, said in a simultaneous news release that it would be York Lambton's intention to retain the 10-per-cent interest.

PREMIER WAS THERE

Also present at the conference was Premier Ross Thatcher who said there were two hurdles to be cleared before the bank could be established in Saskatchewan, one being the stay of proceedings.

The Court of Queen's Bench in Winnipeg has been asked to issue an order staying the proceedings for a period and on terms subject to decision by Mr. Justice Roy Matas.

Shareholders voted in Winnipeg last fall to wind up the bank which had capital of $13,000,000.

The fold-up action was not unexpected. The official notice of the Winnipeg meeting published last July listed winding up of the bank as one of the matters to be considered by the shareholders. The institution was the victim of a series of unhappy circumstances—first, frustration with Parliament, then serious internal disagreements and finally, a deteriorating image that smashed enthusiasm on which the bank was founded in 1966.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseed prices, especially flax, took downturns in trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Most losses resulted from increased selling by traders clearing their holdings for the weekend.

Rapeseed prices moved in a narrow range.

There was a light domestic feed and grain trade. A relatively steady rye market received support from the firm Chicago market.

Lakehead prices for Class Two, IWA and domestic wheat were all unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Commodities on the Board of Trade moved nervously over an irregular price range today.

Trade was moderate and fairly mixed.

It appeared that the trade was taking a watchful attitude concerning the international monetary conference at Stockholm.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Golds Skid at Toronto

Golds took a plunge in active trading today on the Toronto Stock Exchange, as European markets continued to report slipping bullion prices. Golds were also down on Wall Street.

Observers felt speculators were uncertain about the results of a meeting of monetary authorities at Stockholm and about the effect of Monday's reopening of the London gold market.

AT TORONTO Dome Mines fell 3½ to 31½, Giant Yellowknife ⅝ to 11⅝ and Kerr Addison ½ to 15¾. Most smaller issues joined the decline.

Dome Pete rose 1¾ to 53, Scurry-Rainbow 1½ to 28, Husky 1⅛ to 20¾, and Worldwide Energy 95 cents to 3.50.

Uraniums headed the list up among rising base metals. Denison climbed 1½ to 68, Rio Algom 1 to 31 and Preston ⅞ to 18¼.

Gains in the industrial list were generally moderate.

AT NEW YORK blue chips and glamor stocks advanced.

Lockheed climbed about five points on news of its contract to produce the big passenger plane known as the airbus for TWA, Eastern Airlines and Airholdings Ltd. of Britain.

McDonnell Douglas, Lockheed's unsuccessful rival for the contract, dropped more than two points.

AT MONTREAL industrials, utilities and banks rose while papers slid in trading today.

Among industrials, Velcro climbed 2¼ to 44½, Credit-Foncier, a Quebec loan company, 1¼ to 51¼ and International Utilities ⅝ to 37⅛.

CPR, Canadian Vickers and Alcan added ⅛ to 49¼, eight and 24½.

AT LONDON stock market prices were higher at today's market opening in the wake of a strong voter protest against the government, shown in the results of four Thursday by-elections.

Leading shares fell back later in the day, and showed a net loss. Second-rank issues were firmer.

AT VANCOUVER gains outnumbered losses as the exchange took on a healthier tone today in forenoon trading.

Ocean Cement, which rose $2.25 Thursday on news of a stock takeover bid, lost $1.37 of the amount today at $20.62.

Torwest had the heaviest volume, 58,200 shares, to put on .03 at .56. Magnum traded 43,700 to gain .11 at $1.72.

Westcoast Resources, which lost its Japanese partner earlier this week, fell another .04 to .37 on trading of 31,800 shares. The stock lost .26 on Thursday.

Royal American and Stampede made three-cent gains in the oils and Captain International added .25 at $5.50.

Profit Drop Reported By Cominco

MONTREAL (CP) — Cominco Ltd. has reported a 21.8-per-cent drop in consolidated net earnings to $38,484,000 or $2.31 a share in 1967 form $49,183,000 or $2.59 a share in the previous year.

The company said in its annual report that the decrease was caused "primarily by lower prices received for lead and zinc and by higher costs, including interest and depreciation, offset by some extent by an increase in revenue from the chemical and fertilizer operations."

Sales revenue totalled $216,959,000, a three-per-cent reduction from the $224,566,000 in 1966.

Total sales revenues during the last year were divided in these proportions: 48 per cent from lead and zinc, 21 per cent from all other metallurgical products, 29 per cent from fertilizers and two per cent from industrial and other chemicals.

Railway Bids To Halt Service

EDMONTON (CP)—Northern Alberta Railways has applied to the Canadian Transport Commission for permission to discontinue its passenger service from Edmonton to Dawson Creek, B.C., NAR general manager K. R. Perry says.

Mr. Perry said in an interview the railway lost about $160,000 on the passenger operation last year.

Bowater Paper Corp. Executive Resigns

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowater Paper Corp. Ltd. says it is "reorganizing the management structure of its North American companies."

The company said details of the reorganization "will be announced in due course."

It said that "as a consequence of this reorganization it is with sincere regret they have to announce Douglass Campbell has resigned from Bowater." Campbell had been chairman and president of Bowater Paper Co. of New York, a division of the parent firm.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted today at $1.07⅝ for cheques, $1.07¾ for notes and $1.05¾ for silver. Sales were $1.08⅝ for cheques and $1.08¾ for notes.

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar was unchanged at 92 21/64 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling up ⅛ at $2.40 5/32.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 1/32 at $1.08 5/16. Pound sterling was up 7/16 at $2.60 3/16.

Arthur Mayse

While scurrying about our tiger city last night, we saw handsomely displayed on the side of a new building at Fort and Richmond a very old device.

This was the Staff of Asclepius, Greek god of medicine, handsomely executed in what looked to be stainless steel. The staff itself was twined by the traditional serpent, and a Canadian touch was supplied by a spray of maple leaves.

But why apply the symbol of the healer's art to a building that carried a Toronto-Dominion Bank shingle across its front?

Probably part and parcel of the new chumminess in banking, I suggested—'Let us heal your sick finances with a loan.' That seemed a shaky interpretation, though, so this morning I did some checking.

The Toronto-Dominion people like the Staff-and-serpent too, but can lay no claim to it. They're merely renting ground floor space for yet another branch, and the rest of the building will be occupied by a covey of doctors.

Architects Wade Stockdill Armour and Blewitt (a mouthful, but the lady who answered handled it beautifully) told me that the medicos had suggested the Asclepian staff.

I learned further that Roy Ward of Bayliss Neon Sign Company designed the decoration, and that it was set in place on Tuesday.

Since sign specialist Ward is busy up-Island, I can offer not further information about his handiwork—which, after all, speaks for itself.

The Salvation Army, an outfit that never closes its doors to the hopeless and helpless, has been given a brush-off by Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee, and I feel that Sally Ann should have received the $5,000 grant she requested.

The reasons given for the turndown were, first, that the S.A. duplicates services supplied elsewhere, and second that 'pastoral counselling' is given to the needy along with practical help.

Well, as for the first, the plain fact is that the Army was doing good works in these parts long before those other agencies were hatched . . . so who is duplicating who?

Also, if there's another haven that takes in the hungry and shelterless at weekends and after 5 p.m. on weekdays, I've yet to hear of it.

As for the other charge, it could be pointed out that the 'C' for Christian in grant-receiving YMCA and YWCA also suggests a pastoral influence at work.

However, the committee has made up its mind for this year, and all that is beside the point. I can only hope that voluntary contribution more than closes the fund-gap.

While we're on the subject, I'd like to clear up a frequent beef to the effect that the Salvation Army sells household gear and clothing donated to it for poor people's use.

The Army sells through its thrift shops — and urges the general public to buy—in order to finance its pickup service and obtain cash with which to meet bedrock need. Also, very many hardup families refuse to accept direct charity, preferring to keep pride intact by purchasing at minimum prices.

But every day, Sally Ann gives from the items you donate, to people who can't afford even that much.

The other day I hauled out a power mower with last year's gross still crusted on its wheels, and without the slightest hope, began to haul on its starter. Nothing happened, of course.

While I was pondering whether to take it in for repairs or maybe just buy a new chopper, along came a high school boy who took matters calmly in hand.

He eased the screen from the air filter, removed the wad of cleaner material inside, and gave both a dunking in a tin of solvent that happened to by handy-by. Next, he trickled a spoonful of white gas directly into the carburetor throat.

This done, he replaced filter and screen, and gave the starter a casual tug.

Wheeee! The liggle Briggs-Stratton began to sing like a bird.

"Learned how at school," said he; and why, when us now-mature types were going to school, didn't they teach us a few such handy tricks?

The Sasquatches Are Coming But They're Smiling

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Canada has her own goodwill ambassador from the north — Ookpik.

Now B.C. is entering the toy field with a representative of her own. — a nine-inch fuzzy-haired Young Sasquatch.

The larger Sasquatch may have eluded human pursuit but these tiny creatures are guaranteed to welcome everyone with their broad smiles.

Thye're the brainchild of Arie de Ruiter of Langley, who two years ago conceived the idea of selling Sasquatch dolls to tourists at Harrison Hot Springs.

LOAN PROBLEMS

Intrigued by the stories of the legendary creature Mr. de Ruiter, his family and neighbors made a protytpe doll. But their initial efforts to get backing met with little success.

As a previously defunct chicken farmer, Mr. de Ruiter could not get enough credit to cover the initial expenditure of producing a stock of the dolls.

However, with the recent publicity given to the Sasquatch through Rogoo Patterson's film which pruported to show the legendary ape-man and the subsequent Provincial Museum expedition, Mr. de Ruiter finally convinced the Credit Union he had a good thing going.

3,000 ON MARKET

Now sales have proved so successful, with nearly 3,000 dolls in the market even before the toursit season, that Mr. de Ruiter's family is going to need extra help assembling the dolls in the basement.

Handling distribution on Vancouver Island is Reindeer Schuitems, 5307 Patricia Bay Highway, who used to be a neighbor of the de Ruiters in Langley.

Mr. Schuitema and his wife spent many evenings helping the de Ruiters design the Young Sasquatch's charming face.

Business is booming, Mr. Schuitema reports, and "it's something we believe will greatly help B.C.'s tourist industry."

COSTUME BALL SATURDAY

They'll Keep Dancing Until They're All In

Costumes and customs of 100 years ago will be revived in the Agricultural Hall, Saanichton, Saturday night.

North and South Saanich Agricultural Society is starting its centennial year celebrations with an old-time costume ball at which costumes in the style of 25, 50, 75 and 100 years ago will be worn.

Eight prizes will be offered for the best men's and women's costume in each 25-year period.

SUPPER AUCTION

"We are also reviving the old prairie custom of auctioning box suppers prepared by the ladies," says Doug McHattie, who will be master-of-ceremonies.

"In each case the highest bidder has the privilege of escorting the lady who prepared the meal to supper."

The ball starts at 9 p.m. and will continue until the dancers 'have had enough."

The second centennial event will be an amateur rodeo at Saanichton May 24, with music by various bands which have participated in the Victoria Day parade.

The annual Saanichton fair will be held Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 2. It is the oldest fair west of the Great Lakes and was started in September, 1868, by 10 enthusiasts who contributed $5 each to the prize fund.

"they had hired a canoe, with four Indian paddlers, to go to the fair at Cherry Point, near Duncan," Mr. McHattie said. "They had a grand time there, but on the way home they hit on the idea of starting their own fair.

"It has been held every year since."

Five Willing To Transfer Mt. Douglas

Saanich May Get Park Proposition

Five members of Victoria city council agreed this morning it is time the city handed Mount Douglas Park to Saanich.

They also agreed to increase their efforts to persuade the regional district or the provincial government to take Thetis Lake Park off the city's hands.

Both decisions were made during preliminary duscussions on this year's parks budget which, before cuts, totalled $686,720 some $84,505 higher than last year.

With $15,905 of that total earmarked for routine maintenance at Thetis and an additional $34,250 slated for extraordinary expenditure, city manager Dennis Young suggested the time had come to call a halt.

REGIONAL PARK

"Every time I see these expenditures, entirely unrelated to the city's parks program, I realize that we seem to be paying more and more money each year into this park which is in fact a regional park.

"We should go to the other municipalities and invite them to share the maintenance costs with us, and if they refuse we should go into a program of severe retrenchment."

Ald. Ian Stewart agreed.

"Perhaps Mr. Young is correct and we should take some stand," he said. "While I am prepared to vote the money for routine maintenance I am going to have a great deal to say when the extraordinary expenditures come up."

The matter was still under debate at press time.

Mayor Hugh Stephen pointed out that one of the steps the city could take right away is an invitation to Saanich to take over Mount Douglas Park.

HALF FROM SAANICH

Expenditures on Mount Douglas this year will total $7,610 of which Saanich pays half.

In the meantime the city agreed to spend the $15,000 required to keep Thetis Lake in reasonable condition but indications were that the request for extra money would run into heavy going later in the day.

The extra cash is being asked to build change rooms and a comfort station at a cost of $21,900; a sewage disposal system for $7,000; construction of parking areas $2,000; road maintenacne and parking barricades $2,000; a portable fire pump, $250 and the removal of blackberry bushes $1,000.

The feeling was that only the fire pump would survive the budget-paring knife.

Sharp Air Fare Hike Asked on City Route

Excursion Rate Boosted to $15

Applications announced today for fare increases by Canada's major airlines would raise the return excursion price for Victoria - Vancouver flights from $9 to $15.

Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines have both applied to the Canadian Transport Commission air committee to raise their North American rate structure 10 per cent effective April 28.

Air Canada said Victoria to eastern Canada or Caribbean flights would continue to be based on the Vancouver price.

The west coast three-day excursion fare, applying to Victoria-Vancouver and Victoria-Seattle, continues, although at the higher rate.

For Victoria-Seattle, the fare would climb from $13 to $19 return within the three-day period.

One-way fares between Victoria and Vancouver will go up by $2 to $10. The Seattle fare would also rise $20.

No increase in fares is proposed for international or Caribbean routes.

EXPENSES UP

CPA president J. C. Gilmer said air transport expenses have been outrunning revenues, resulting in a cost-price squeeze dictating higher fares. He noted that Canada's airlines charge substantially less than U.S. carriers.

Most domestic fares had seen little change in the past 18 years, he said.

Air Canada said there had been no basic fare rate changes for six years. But recently there have been "substantial increases in the cost of labor, facility user charges, fuel and a wide range of other materials and services."

NEW EQUIPMENT

It is also foreseen that higher capital costs are in the offing in order to buy the new equipment Air Canada has on order. (It is expected Air Canada will go to the New York market for capital borrowing.)

Both CPA and Air Canada announce a new youth air travel plan for the 12-21 years group, applying where unbooked space is available on domestic flights. If youths hold a $3 membership card, they will be able to fly for half-price.

It was being introduced to promote greater understanding among young people by encouraging them to travel between points in North America, Air Canada said.

The two airlines also are proposing to introduce a discount domestic group fare applicable in Canada and the U.S.

Victoria Flying Services Ltd., operating a charter float plane service from the Inner Harbor to Vancouver's Coal Harbor, has an application before the air committee to introduce a scheduled service at a price of $12 per passenger, one way.

At present, the flying service offers charter flights — downtown to downtown — for as little as $42.50 each way for a single passenger plane. Using larger aircraft the firm can take from three to six passengers one way at a cost of $16.60 each.

HAPPINESS IS GIVING . . . AND RECEIVING. The smile on Eric Dowell's face, left, is for giving. Chairman of Victoria Rotary Club's ways and means committee, he has just presented two cheques to Courtney Haddock, head of the Royal Jubilee Hospital board of directors, whose smile of acceptance equals that of the giving. The money, proceeds from a club car raffle, totals $9,972. It will go towards purchase of a retinal camera for treatment of eye ailments, and a kidney dialysis machine. (Times photo.)

HYDROFOIL DELAYED ONCE AGAIN

Start of a Seattle-Vancouver service by the hpdrofoil ship Victoria has been postponed, a spokesman for Northwest Hydrofoil Lines said today.

President William I. Niedermair said the service, originally due to start April 1, will be rescheduled at a later date.

He said the postponement is due to documentation requirements in connection with the U.S. Maritime Administration's mortgage for the ship.

Mr. Niedermair said the 75-passenger Victoria will operate a two-hour service between the two ports. One-way fare will be $10.

Patient Restrained in Bed For Protection, Probe Told

By PETE LOUDON

A patient who died following a hospital fire here Sunday had been placed in restraints to protect himself and other patients, a coroner's jury was told Thursday night.

Testimony was given that Ng Tong, 78, was tied in his bed at St. Joseph's Saturday night because he had an active case of tuberculosis and had been wandering about the hospital on four occasions that day.

A restraining jacket, with the straps tied under his bed, was also intended to prevent him from falling from bed as he had done previously, the coroner's jury was told. This was described as accepted hospital practice.

How he freed himself from the bed and caught fire and how long his clothing was burning before he was detected and the fire extinguished were points which were not established before the inquest was temporarily adjourned by Coroner Edmond Jorre De St. Jorre.

RESUMES APRIL 23

The inquest was adjourned until April 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Law Courts. Eleven witnesses gave testimony during the three-hour session Thursday. Two remain to be heard, with the possibility others will be sworn, the coroner explained.

No evidence was submitted to suggest Mr. Tong had been tied in a chair when his pyjamas caught fire—a theory expressed by officials at the day of his death Monday.

The coroner's jury heard medical evidence that Mr. Tong was suffering from a kidney ailment and a skin disease as well as tuberculosis.

St. Joseph's pathologist Dr. Bruce Hay said third degree burns covered the upper portion of the body.

But he added, "I feel he died of acute kidney failure, chronic kidney disease.

The doctor also stated that his examination showed Mr. Tong suffered a coronary thrombosis, which probably occurred after the fire "a matter of hours before he died."

"It could have been important to the cause of death," he stated.

In response to questioning he added that had the deceased been a man of 25 and of sound body, "I would not expect such burns to kill him."

Inspector Charles Webb of Victoria police and Lloyd McKenzie QC (appearing for the hospital) joined the coroner in questioning the witnesses.

They learned from John Joe, a storekeeper of 1720 Carnegie Crescent, that Mr. Tong had been about 40 years in Canada, had been sick for two or three years, and "he wished to go back to China."

Mr. Joe said he thought Mr. Tong had an adopted son there although he had never heard him speak about a wife. Mr. Joe knew of no mental illness although he thought the deceased might have difficulty in communicating because he spoke only Cantonese and pidgin English.

Detective Edward Hardy exhibited a pair of burned pyjamas and the burned-off straps from a restraining vest. He also showed a complete vest as a sample of the type Mr. Tong had worn.

There were no fragments of the restraining vest other than the straps. The pyjama jacket sleeves had been burned away and almost the complete right side of it. There were some scorch marks on the back of the jacket and on the trouser cuffs.

Referring to the straps of the restraint jacket Det. Hardy said, "it would appear to me as if someone was trying to burn their way loose."

Two interns later demon-

Not Guilty Plea Made in Charge Of Sheep Killing

A man charged with killing sheep on Sidney Island pleaded not guilty in Sidney magistrate's court this morning.

Trial date for Robert Turnbull, Thetis Lake Trailer Park, was set at May 9. Bail of $1,000 was continued.

Police said earlier this week Turnbull was arrested in a boat off Shoal Harbor.

Police were called to the scene by Sidney Island owner Jack Todd, who has been running a flock of sheep there for several years.

Ask The Times

Q. Would you please tell me the history of HMCS Haida—what type of war vessel was she and her history in World War II?—R.P.

A. Haida was a tribal class destroyer commissioned by the RCN Aug. 30, 1943. She served in various theatres of war: Arctic, 1943-44; English Channel, 1944; Normandy, 1944; Biscay, 1944; Korea, 1952-53. The ship participated in the sinking of 20 vessels in 488,542 miles of cruising. After the war she served in the Atlantic fleet and in her last years as a training vessel of the naval reserve in the Great Lakes, Haida was sold to Crown Assets Disposal Corporation Oct. 11, 1963.

DEFENSIVE DRIVERS TAKE NO CHANCES

Stop Sign: Slice of Metal Guaranteeing Nothing!

By DON VIPOND

Don't trust anybody.

That's putting the philosophy of the defensive driver harshly. But it also underlines the single great truth he drives by.

On the road, nothing is for sure.

A stop sign is a slab of metal guaranteeing nothing.

A traffic signal is glass and wires, not a barricade.

And that no-passing line down the road is just a very thin layer of paint.

To drive defensively is to quit fuming at the bad drivers. It's not going to change them and it may give you an ulcer.

What can a driver do to meet the moment-by-moment hazards his fellow motorists present? He can master the proven tricks to stay clear of accident situations. The Institute of Adult Studies is conducting a course in defensive driving. Here Times reporter Don Vipond details the lessons learned in the second of four classes. You can enrol in the next course, beginning April 23, by phoning 385-1411.

All that energy is used to smooth your path down the highway, to spot and compensate and thus avoid those converging factors which meet to produce the moment ripe for an accident.

There are tricks to know. They're simple and they work.

For the tail-gater, the driver whose car fills your rearview mirror—simply gradually slow down.

Usually this will give him the message. Or a chance to pass you. And if a crisis does develop in front of you, you'll have the space to slow down gradually, giving him the time to stop without ending up in your trunk.

And always signal your next move.

You are the eyes of the driver behind you. But he can't read your mind.

Most devastating of road accidents is the head-on crash.

It's the killer but in fact it is rarely head-on. Cars meet off-centre and spin after impact. And most people are killed when they are tossed out. This is where a seat belt saves your life. Don't be caught dead sitting on it.

Most everyone will admit driving is a full-time job but the defensive driver lives that knowledge.

When others may be eyeing their passengers or the scenery, he's keeping a close watch on the right-hand ditch. It's always better to take a chance there than suffer the shattering meeting with an errant oncoming car.

Learning to drive defensively is a matter of tuning in, of heightening awareness of what's going on in the traffic around you.

Of knowing, for example, that almost half of road crashes occur at intersections because drivers are more uncertain there and tend to dispute the right of way.

Of knowing that it's good sense to keep your wheels straight when you stop to make a left turn at an intersection. Then if you're rammed from behind you won't be driven into the path of that oncoming bus.

Of knowing that the worst time for accidents is between midnight and 2 in the morning on weekends. That's when the sleepy drivers, the drunken ones and the hot rod cowboys are thickest. So it's a good time to be in bed.

Next Tuesday's lesson: The intersection crash; passing and being passed.

8 CARD OF THANKS

The family of John A. Wallace extend a heartfelt thank you to those who sent flowers, donations in lieu of flowers, and sympathy cards at the time of their bereavement; and a special thanks to all his friends of Victoria for being so kind through the years, and to the Colwood detachment of the RCMP and Sands Funeral Chapel of Heather, Colwood. —Fred and Marian Wallace.

9 IN MEMORIAM

INGRAM—In loving memory of dear mother, Maud, Ingram, who left us March 29, 1967.

The depths of sorrow we cannot tell,
Of the loss of one we loved
so well;
The world seems quite another
place
Without the smile on her face.

—Always remembered by Doreen, Ron and Family.

INGRAM — In loving memory of Mrs. Maude Ingram who passed away March 29, 1967.

One year has passed since that
sad day
When one we loved was called away,
God took her home — it was His
will,
Within our hearts she liveth still.

—Ever remembered by Des and Audrey and family.

WATERS — In loving memory of Thomas Waters who passed away March 29, 1967.

—Ever remembered by wife Margaret and family.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Duplicate bridge rewards skill more than rubber bridge and the team-of-four match based on International Match Point or IMP scoring is the most skillful form of duplicate, but even in this game there is a tremendous luck factor.

Today's hand decided a recent IMP match when one North-South pair bid six spades and the other stopped at game.

The luck factor is represented by the queen of clubs. Move it to the East hand in place of one of the small clubs and the slam bidders would have lost the match. The swing involved in the location of this club queen was 750 points each way or a total of 1,500. Translated it meant 26 IMPs total.

Opening lead—♥A

The hand caused considerable argument. The winning team claimed that the slam contract was more likely to succeed than to go down because it would make any time West held the club queen or when West held five small clubs so that the queen would drop on the first club lead. Obviously correct dummy technique would be for declarer to draw trumps, cash one of dummy's high clubs to check on the possibilty of a singleton queen and then to fall back on the club finesse.

The losing side admitted this but pointed out that East just might have been able to ruff an opening club or diamond lead.

Our own opinion is that the slam was just about as close to being an even money proposition as you will ever find and that a small amount of overbidding by the winning North and South had paid off this time. Next time it may not.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseed prices, especially flax, took downturns in trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Most losses resulted from increased selling by traders clearing their holdings for the weekend.

Rapeseed prices moved in a narrow range.

There was a light domestic feed and grain trade. A relatively steady rye market received support from the firm Chicago market.

CHICAGO (AP) — Commodities on the Board of Trade moved nervously over an irregular price range today.

Golds Skid at Toronto

Golds took a plunge in active trading today on the Toronto Stock Exchange, as European markets continued to report slipping bullion prices. Golds were also down on Wall Street.

Observers felt speculators were uncertain about the results of a meeting of monetary authorities at Stockholm and about the effect of Monday's reopening of the London gold market.

AT TORONTO—In golds, Dome plunged 5⅛ to 59½, Kerr Addison ½ to 15⅝ and Camflo 30 cents to 5.15.

Oils and uraniums paced the advance in other sections of the market.

Scurry-Rainbow was up 3¼ to 29⅝, Husky Oil 1⅝ to 21¼, Denison Mines 1½ to 68, Worldwide Energy 1.45 to 4.00 and Rio Algom Mines 1 to 31.

In industrials, Revelstoke and Falconbridge gained 1 each to 8⅝ and 94½. Ocean Cement fell 1 to 21.

Final volume was 3,705,000 shares compared with 3,495,000 Thursday.

AT NEW YORK blue chips and glamor stocks advanced.

Lockheed climbed about five points on news of its contract to produce the big passenger plane known as the airbus for TWA, Eastern Airlines and Airholdings Ltd. of Britain.

McDonnell Douglas, Lockheed's unsuccessful rival for the contract, dropped more than two points.

AT MONTREAL industrials, utilities and banks rose while papers slid in trading today.

Among industrials, Velcro climbed 2¼ to 44½, Credit-Foncier, a Quebec loan company, 1¼ to 51¼ and International Utilities ⅝ to 37⅛.

CPR, Canadian Vickers and Alcan added ½ to 49¼, eight and 24½.

AT LONDON stock market prices were higher at today's market opening in the wake of a strong voter protest against the government, shown in the results of four Thursday by-elections.

AT VANCOUVER gains outnumbered losses as the exchange took on a healthier tone today in forenoon trading.

Ocean Cement, which rose $2.25 Thursday on news of a stock takeover bid, lost $1.37 of the amount today at $20.62.

Torwest had the heaviest volume, 58,200 shares, to put on .03 at .56. Magnum traded 43,700 to gain .11 at $1.72.

Westcoast Resources, which lost its Japanese partner earlier this week, fell another .04 to .37 on trading of 31,800 shares. The stock lost .26 on Thursday.

Royal American and Stampede made three-cent gains in the oils and Captain International added .25 at $5.50.

Profit Drop Reported By Cominco

MONTREAL (CP) — Cominco Ltd. has reported a 21.8-per-cent drop in consolidated net earnings to $38,484,000 or $2.31 a share in 1967 form $49,183,000 or $2.59 a share in the previous year.

The company said in its annual report that the decrease was caused "primarily by lower prices received for lead and zinc and by higher costs, including interest and depreciation, offset by some extent by an increase in revenue from the chemical and fertilizer operations."

Sales revenue totalled $216,959,000, a three-per-cent reduction from the $224,566,000 in 1966.

Total sales revenues during the last year were divided in these proportions: 48 per cent from lead and zinc, 21 per cent from all other metallurgical products, 29 per cent from fertilizers and two per cent from industrial and other chemicals.

To Halt Service

EDMONTON (CP)—Northern Alberta Railways has applied to the Canadian Transport Commission for permission to discontinue its passenger service from Edmonton to Dawson Creek, B.C., NAR general manager K. R. Perry says.

Mr. Perry said in an interview the railway lost about $160,000 on the passenger operation last year.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted today at $1.07⅝ for cheques, $1.07⅝ for notes and $1.05⅝ for silver. Sales were $1.08⅝ for cheques and $1.08⅝ for notes.

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar was unchanged at 92 21/64 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling up ⅛ at $2.40 5/32.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 1/32 at $1.08 5/16. Pound sterling was up 7/16 at $2.60 3/16.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, MARCH 29, 1968—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

While scurrying about our tiger city last night, we saw handsomely displayed on the side of a new building at Fort and Richmond a very old device.

This was the Staff of Asclepius, Greek god of medicine, handsomely executed in what looked to be stainless steel. The staff itself was twined by the traditional serpent, and a Canadian touch was supplied by a spray of maple leaves.

But why apply the symbol of the healer's art to a building that carried a Toronto-Dominion Bank shingle across its front?

Probably part and parcel of the new chumminess in banking, I suggested—'Let us heal your sick finances with a loan.' That seemed a shaky interpretation, though, so this morning I did some checking.

The Toronto-Dominion people like the Staff-and-serpent too, but can lay no claim to it. They're merely renting ground floor space for yet another branch, and the rest of the building will be occupied by a covey of doctors.

Architects Wade Stockdill Armour and Blewitt (a mouthful, but the lady who answered handled it beautifully) told me that the medicos had suggested the Asclepian staff.

I learned further that Roy Ward of Bayliss Neon Sign Company designed the decoration, and that it was set in place on Tuesday.

Since sign specialist Ward is busy up-Island, I can offer no further information about his handiwork—which, after all, speaks for itself.

The Salvation Army, an outfit that never closes its doors to the hopeless and helpless, has been given a brush-off by Greater Victoria Intermunicipal committee, and I feel that Sally Ann should have received the $5,000 grant she requested.

The reasons given for the turndown were, first, that the S.A. duplicates services supplied elsewhere, and second that 'pastoral counselling' is given to the needy along with practical help.

Well, as for the first, the plain fact is that the Army was doing good works in these parts long before those other agencies were hatched . . . so who is duplicating who?

Also, if there's another haven that takes in the hungry and shelterless at weekends and after 5 p.m. on weekdays, I've yet to hear of it.

As for the other charge, it could be pointed out that the 'C' for Christian in grant-receiving YMCA and YWCA also suggests a pastoral influence at work.

However, the committee has made up its mind for this year, and all that is beside the point. I can only hope that voluntary contribution more than closes the fund-gap.

While we're on the subject, I'd like to clear up a frequent beef to the effect that the Salvation Army sells household gear and clothing donated to it for poor people's use.

The Army sells through its thrift shops — and urges the general public to buy—in order to finance its pickup service and obtain cash with which to meet bedrock need. Also, very many hardup families refuse to accept direct charity, preferring to keep pride intact by purchasing at minimum prices.

But every day, Sally Ann gives from the items you donate, to people who can't afford even that much.

The other day I hauled out a power mower with last year's grass still crusted on its wheels, and without the slightest hope, began to haul on its starter. Nothing happened, of course.

While I was pondering whether to take it in for repairs or maybe just buy a new chopper, along came a high school boy who took matters calmly in hand.

He eased the screen from the air filter, removed the wad of cleaner material inside, and gave both a dunking in a tin of solvent that happened to by handy-by. Next, he trickled a spoonful of white gas directly into the carburetor throat.

This done, he replaced filter and screen, and gave the starter a casual tug.

Wheeee! The little Briggs-Stratton began to sing like a bird.

"Learned how at school," said he; and why, when us now-mature types were going to school, didn't they teach us a few such handy tricks?

The Sasquatches Are Coming But They're Smiling

By KATHRINE THOMAS

Canada has her own goodwill ambassador from the north — Ookpik.

Now B.C. is entering the toy field with a representative of her own. — a nine-inch fuzzy-haired Young Sasquatch.

The larger Sasquatch may have eluded human pursuit but these tiny creatures are guaranteed to welcome everyone with their broad smiles.

They're the brainchild of Arie de Ruiter of Langley, who two years ago conceived the idea of selling Sasquatch dolls to tourists at Harrison Hot Springs.

LOAN PROBLEMS

Intrigued by the stories of the legendary creature Mr. de Ruiter, his family and neighbors made a protytpe doll. But their initial efforts to get backing met with little success.

As a previously defunct chicken farmer, Mr. de Ruiter could not get enough credit to cover the initial expenditure of producing a stock of the dolls.

However, with the recent publicity given to the Sasquatch through Rogoo Patterson's film which purported to show the legendary ape-man and the subsequent Provincial Museum expedition, Mr. de Ruiter finally convinced the Credit Union he had a good thing going.

3,000 ON MARKET

Now sales have proved so successful, with nearly 3,000 dolls in the market even before the tourist season, that Mr. de Ruiter's family is going to need extra help assembling the dolls in the basement.

Handling distribution on Vancouver Island is Reindeer Schuitema, 5307 Patricia Bay Highway, who used to be a neighbor of the de Ruiters in Langley.

Mr. Schuitema and his wife spent many evenings helping the de Ruiters design the Young Sasquatch's charming face.

Business is booming, Mr. Schuitema reports, and "it's something we believe will greatly help B.C.'s tourist industry."

COSTUME BALL SATURDAY

They'll Keep Dancing Until They're All In

Costumes and customs of 100 years ago will be revived in the Agricultural Hall, Saanichton, Saturday night.

North and South Saanich Agricultural Society is starting its centennial year celebrations with an old-time costume ball at which costumes in the style of 25, 50, 75 and 100 years ago will be worn.

Eight prizes will be offered for the best men's and women's costume in each 25-year period.

SUPPER AUCTION

"We are also reviving the old prairie custom of auctioning box suppers prepared by the ladies," says Doug McHattie, who will be master-of-ceremonies.

"In each case the highest bidder has the privilege of escorting the lady who prepared the meal to supper."

The ball starts at 9 p.m. and will continue until the dancers "have had enough."

The second centennial event will be an amateur rodeo at Saanichton May 24, with music by various bands which have participated in the Victoria Day parade.

The annual Saanichton fair will be held Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 2. It is the oldest fair west of the Great Lakes and was started in September, 1868, by 10 enthusiasts who contributed $5 each to the prize fund.

"They had hired a canoe, with four Indian paddlers, to go to the fair at Cherry Point, near Duncan," Mr. McHattie said. "They had a grand time there, but on the way home they hit on the idea of starting their own fair.

"It has been held every year since."

Five Willing To Transfer Mt. Douglas

Saanich May Get Park Proposition

Five members of Victoria city council agreed this morning it is time the city handed Mount Douglas Park to Saanich.

They also agreed to increase their efforts to persuade the regional district or the provincial government to take Thetis Lake Park off the city's hands.

Both decisions were made during preliminary discussions on this year's parks budget which, before cuts, totalled $686,720 some $84,505 higher than last year.

With $15,905 of that total earmarked for routine maintenance at Thetis and an additional $34,250 slated for extraordinary expenditure, city manager Dennis Young suggested the time had come to call a halt.

REGIONAL PARK

"Every time I see these expenditures, entirely unrelated to the city's parks program, I realize that we seem to be paying more and more money each year into this park which is in fact a regional park.

"We should go to the other municipalities and invite them to share the maintenance costs with us, and if they refuse we should go into a program of severe retrenchment."

Ald. Ian Stewart agreed.

"Perhaps Mr. Young is correct and we should take some stand," he said. "While I am prepared to vote the money for routine maintenance I am going to have a great deal to say when the extraordinary expenditures come up."

The matter was still under debate at press time.

Mayor Hugh Stephen pointed out that one of the steps the city could take right away is an invitation to Saanich to take over Mount Douglas Park.

HALF FROM SAANICH

Expenditures on Mount Douglas this year will total $7,610 of which Saanich pays half.

In the meantime the city agreed to spend the $15,000 required to keep Thetis Lake in reasonable condition but indications were that the request for extra money would run into heavy going later in the day.

The extra cash is being asked to build change rooms and a comfort station at a cost of $21,900; a sewage disposal system for $7,000; construction of parking areas $2,000; road maintenance and parking barricades $2,000; a portable fire pump, $250 and the removal of blackberry bushes $1,000.

The feeling was that only the fire pump would survive the budget-paring knife.

Sharp Air Fare Hike Asked on City Route

Excursion Rate Boosted to $15

Applications announced today for fare increases by Canada's major airlines would raise the return excursion price for Victoria-Vancouver flights from $9 to $15.

Air Canada and Canadian Pacific Airlines have both applied to the Canadian Transport Commission air committee to raise their North American rate structure 10 per cent effective April 28.

Air Canada said Victoria to eastern Canada or Caribbean flights would continue to be based on the Vancouver price.

The west coast three-day excursion fare, applying to Victoria-Vancouver and Victoria-Seattle, continues, although at the higher rate.

For Victoria-Seattle, the fare would climb from $13 to $19 return within the three-day period.

One-way fares between Victoria and Vancouver will go up by $2 to $10. The Seattle fare would also rise $2.

No increase in fares is proposed for international or Caribbean routes.

EXPENSES UP

CPA president J. C. Gilmer said air transport expenses have been outrunning revenues, resulting in a cost-price squeeze dictating higher fares. He noted that Canada's airlines charge substantially less than U.S. carriers.

Most domestic fares had seen little change in the past 18 years, he said.

Air Canada said there had been no basic fare rate changes for six years. But recently there have been "substantial increases in the cost of labor, facility user charges, fuel and a wide range of other materials and services."

NEW EQUIPMENT

It is also foreseen that higher capital costs are in the offing in order to buy the new equipment Air Canada has on order. (It is expected Air Canada will go to the New York market for capital borrowing.)

Both CPA and Air Canada announce a new youth air travel plan for the 12-21 years group, applying where unbooked space is available on domestic flights. If youths hold a $3 membership card, they will be able to fly for half-price.

It was being introduced to promote greater understanding among young people by encouraging them to travel between points in North America, Air Canada said.

The two airlines also are proposing to introduce a discount domestic group fare applicable in Canada and the U.S.

Victoria Flying Services Ltd., operating a charter float plane service from the Inner Harbor to Vancouver's Coal Harbor, has an application before the air committee to introduce a scheduled service at a price of $12 per passenger, one way.

At present, the flying service offers charter flights — downtown to downtown — for as little as $42.50 each way for a single passenger plane. Using larger aircraft the firm can take from three to six passengers one way at a cost of $16.60 each.

HAPPINESS IS GIVING . . . AND RECEIVING. The smile on Eric Dowell's face, left, is for giving. Chairman of Victoria Rotary Club's ways and means committee, he has just presented two cheques to Courtney Haddock, head of the Royal Jubilee Hospital board of directors, whose smile of acceptance equals that of the giving. The money, proceeds from a club car raffle, totals $9,972. It will go towards purchase of a retinal camera for treatment of eye ailments, and a kidney dialysis machine. (Times photo.)

HYDROFOIL DELAYED ONCE AGAIN

Start of a Seattle-Vancouver service by the hpdrofoil ship Victoria has been postponed, a spokesman for Northwest Hydrofoil Lines said today.

President William I. Niedermair said the service, originally due to start April 1, will be rescheduled at a later date.

He said the postponement is due to documentation requirements in connection with the U.S. Maritime Administration's mortgage for the ship.

Mr. Niedermair said the 75-passenger Victoria will operate a two-hour service between the two ports. One-way fare will be $10.

Patient Restrained in Bed For Protection, Probe Told

By PETE LOUDON

A patient who died following a hospital fire here Sunday had been placed in restraints to protect himself and other patients, a coroner's jury was told Thursday night.

Testimony was given that Ng Tong, 78, was tied in his bed at St. Joseph's Saturday night because he had an active case of tuberculosis and had been wandering about the hospital on four occasions that day.

A restraining jacket, with the straps tied under his bed, was also intended to prevent him from falling from bed as he had done previously, the coroner's jury was told. This was described as accepted hospital practice.

How he freed himself from the bed and caught fire and how long his clothing was burning before he was detected and the fire extinguished were points which were not established before the inquest was temporarily adjourned by Coroner Edmond Jorre De St. Jorre.

RESUMES APRIL 23

The inquest was adjourned until April 23 at 7:30 p.m. at the Law Courts. Eleven witnesses gave testimony during the three-hour session Thursday. Two remain to be heard, with the possibility others will be sworn, the coroner explained.

No evidence was submitted to suggest Mr. Tong had been tied in a chair when his pyjamas caught fire—a theory expressed by officials at the day of his death Monday.

The coroner's jury heard medical evidence that Mr. Tong was suffering from a kidney ailment and a skin disease as well as tuberculosis.

St. Joseph's pathologist Dr. Bruce Hay said third degree burns covered the upper portion of the body.

But he added, "I feel he died of acute kidney failure, chronic kidney disease.

The doctor also stated that his examination showed Mr. Tong suffered a coronary thrombosis, which probably occurred after the fire "a matter of hours before he died."

"It could have been important to the cause of death," he stated.

In response to questioning he added that had the deceased been a man of 25 and of sound body, "I would not expect such burns to kill him."

Inspector Charles Webb of Victoria police and Lloyd McKenzie QC (appearing for the hospital) joined the coroner in questioning the witnesses.

They learned from John Joe, a storekeeper of 1720 Carnegie Crescent, that Mr. Tong had been about 40 years in Canada, had been sick for two or three years, and "he wished to go back to China."

Mr. Joe said he thought Mr. Tong had an adopted son there although he had never heard him speak about a wife. Mr. Joe knew of no mental illness although he thought the deceased might have difficulty in communicating because he spoke only Cantonese and pidgin English.

Detective Edward Hardy exhibited a pair of burned pyjamas and the burned-off straps from a restraining vest. He also showed a complete vest as a sample of the type Mr. Tong had worn.

There were no fragments of the restraining vest other than the straps. The pyjama jacket sleeves had been burned away and almost the complete right side of it. There were some scorch marks on the back of the jacket and on the trouser cuffs.

Referring to the straps of the restraint jacket Det. Hardy said, "it would appear to me as if someone was trying to burn their way loose."

Not Guilty Plea Made in Charge Of Sheep Killing

A man charged with killing sheep on Sidney Island pleaded not guilty in Sidney magistrate's court this morning.

Trial date for Robert Turnbull, Thetis Lake Trailer Park, was set for May 9. Bail of $1,000 was continued.

Police said earlier this week Turnbull was arrested in a boat off Shoal Harbor.

Police were called to the scene by Sidney Island owner Jack Todd, who has been running a flock of sheep there for several years.

Ask The Times

Q. Would you please tell me the history of HMCS Haida—what type of war vessel was she and her history in World War II?—R.P.

A. Haida was a tribal class destroyer commissioned by the RCN Aug. 30, 1943. She served in various theatres of war: Arctic, 1943-44; English Channel, 1944; Normandy, 1944; Biscay, 1944; Korea, 1952-53. The ship participated in the sinking of 20 vessels in 488,542 miles of cruising. After the war she served in the Atlantic fleet and in her last years as a training vessel of the naval reserve in the Great Lakes. Haida was sold to Crown Assets Disposal Corporation Oct. 11, 1963.

Q. Could you please tell me where I could get information on a wedding which took place in Blaine, Washington?—G.P.W.

A. Write to the editor of the newspaper there, The Blaine Journal. The address is given in the Ayer Directory of Newspapers and Periodicals as Post Office Box 10, Blaine, Washington, (98230).

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times' Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

DEFENSIVE DRIVERS TAKE NO CHANCES

Stop Sign: Slice of Metal Guaranteeing Nothing!

THERE ARE PLENTY OF TRICKS

By DON VIPOND

Don't trust anybody.

That's putting the philosophy of the defensive driver harshly. But it also underlines the single great truth he drives by.

On the road, nothing is for sure.

A stop sign is a slab of metal guaranteeing nothing.

A traffic signal is glass and wires, not a barricade.

And that no-passing line down the road is just a very thin layer of paint.

To drive defensively is to quit fuming at the bad drivers. It's not going to change them and it may give you an ulcer.

What can a driver do to meet the moment-by-moment hazards his fellow motorists present? He can master the proven tricks to stay clear of accident situations. The Institute of Adult Studies is conducting a course in defensive driving. Here Times reporter Don Vipond details the lessons learned in the second of four classes. You can enrol in the next course, beginning April 23, by phoning 385-1411.

All that energy is used to smooth your path down the highway, to spot and compensate and thus avoid those converging factors which meet to produce the moment ripe for an accident.

There are tricks to know. They're simple and they work.

For the tail-gater, the driver whose car fills your rearview mirror—simply gradually slow down.

Usually this will give him the message. Or a chance to pass you. And if a crisis does develop in front of you, you'll have the space to slow down gradually, giving him the time to stop without ending up in your trunk.

And always signal your next move.

You are the eyes of the driver behind you. But he can't read your mind.

Most devastating of road accidents is the head-on crash.

It's the killer but in fact it is rarely head-on. Cars meet off-centre and spin after impact. And most people are killed when they are tossed out. This is where a seat belt saves your life. Don't be caught dead sitting on it.

Most everyone will admit driving is a full-time job but the defensive driver lives that knowledge.

When others may be eyeing their passengers or the scenery, he's keeping a close watch on the right-hand ditch. It's always better to take a chance there than suffer the shattering meeting with an errant oncoming car.

Learning to drive defensively is a matter of tuning in, of heightening awareness of what's going on in the traffic around you.

Of knowing, for example, that almost half of road crashes occur at intersections because drivers are more uncertain there and tend to dispute the right of way.

Of knowing that it's good sense to keep your wheels straight when you stop to make a left turn at an intersection. Then if you're rammed from behind you won't be driven into the path of that oncoming bus.

Of knowing that the worst time for accidents is between midnight and 2 in the morning on weekends. That's when the sleepy drivers, the drunken ones and the hot rod cowboys are thickest. So it's a good time to be in bed.

Next Tuesday's lesson: The intersection crash; passing and being passed.

Pioneer Women

His Honor Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes and Mrs. Pearkes will be honor guests at the formal opening of the annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter IODE which will take place in the Crystal Ballroom of the Empress Hotel on Monday at 8:30 p.m.

Rev. Brian Whitlow will give the benediction. The provincial government and the city of Victoria will send representatives to the opening.

Mrs. V. H. V. Shepperd, regent of Municipal Chapter of Victoria, will give a welcoming address and Mrs. H. A. McKenzie, Nelson, will give the response.

WINNERS PERFORM

A musical program will be provided by Miss Mary Chard and Miss Jocelyn Abbot, both winners of IODE bursaries.

An informal reception will follow the opening.

A business meeting will be held on Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Delegates will meet at 6:30 p.m. for a sherry party prior to a dinner at which Willard Ireland, provincial archivist, will be the guest speaker. His subject will be "Pioneer Women of British Columbia."

On Saturday morning there will be a second business meeting. At 1:30 p.m. Rev. S. J. Parsons will conduct a ceremony at the cenotaph. The local Municipal Chapter will provide entertainment.

That evening there will be a final business meeting at 8.

Dinner Dance

Music was by the Fakirs when the Engineers' Wives' Association of Victoria held a dinner dance recently at the Victoria Golf Club. President Mrs. R. D. Bennett and vice-president Mrs. W. R. Workman greeted the guests. Mrs. T. R. Johnson was program convenor for the affair.

Police Chasing Butterflies!

SINGAPORE (Reuters) — If the girl has butterfly tattoos on her thighs, she probably is a member of an all-women gang currently plaguing Singapore.

Some of the female gangsters—pretty, young and shapely—look as if they have stepped straight out of a Hollywood film.

After 14 girl gangsters were arrested recently, police secretary Loke Foo Yee said crimes committed by women in this island republic present one of its major headaches.

The rounding up of the 14 girls helped to break up one of the island's most notorious criminal bands—the "butterfly" gang. The all-women gang had been operating for more than a year, mainly as decoys in hold-ups.

Working with underworld male friends, the girls—mostly bar or cabaret dancers—would lure unsuspecting "Romeos" to the dark alleys of downtown Singapore.

Down a dimly-lit sidestreet the victim would be beaten and robbed.

IF SEX ABSTRACT IT'S NYET, NYET

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet culture minister clashed with leading ballet director Igor Moiseyev over a basic artistic question: Is sex abstract?

Announcing a new international ballet competition to begin in Moscow in 1969, Culture Minister Ekaterina A. Furtseva told a press conference that the competition will be held "along the lines of realism" and abstract dancing will be banned.

"And we do not share the opinion of some ballet lovers who approve of the sexual direction ballet has taken," she said. "When you see sexual figures on the stage, it is unpleasant. . . ."

Moiseyev, the competition chairman, interrupted in a loud voice and said: "Sex is not abstract."

Over the roar of correspondents' laughter, Mrs. Furtseva glared at him and replied: "I don't entirely agree with you. 'That's a bad joke."

When the press conference adjourned a few minutes later, Mrs. Furtseva, 58, and Moiseyev, 62 were engaged in a heated private discussion.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

Remember that old song, "There'll be a change in the weather and a change in me"? The lyrics are due to come true this spring as fashion does a turnabout and comes up with some rather startling trends.

Are you ready, willing and able to set a whole new fashion course? Or are you fit to be tied for having to switch boats in midstream? Vying for your attention will be predominantly two different kinds of looks: The slim chic of the '30s and the pretty, romantic impression inspired by even earlier days.

Actually, you can choose your weapon and straddle the line, enjoying the best of both "worlds." To help you recognize the right looks for you, here is a head-to-toe rundown:

UNDER YOUR BONNET . . . Hats head off both looks for spring. The floppy, utterly feminine natural leghorn styles bedecked and beribboned will grace more than one girl's curly coif. At the other extreme, but boasting of its own kind of femininity, is the simple, striking beret in felt or straw to set off a smoother, shorter hairdo.

THE CAPABLE CAPE . . . The newest coverup is the swaggering cape. It cuts a fine silhouette worn maxi length over a mini or it could be fun worn mini length over a maxi.

SUITABLY SUITED . . . There's a very different look in suits, far away from the strictly tailored apparel of former years. The "sweater suit" carries out the '30s theme and rings the loudest bell.

THE BODY SHIRT . . . The new blouses run the gamut from the very trim, slim and skimpy to fluffy, ruffly feminine numbers complete with wrist and neckline frills. For two totally different moods, sample one of each.

LINE ON THE WAIST . . . A cinch for stardom is the comelately emphasis on the waist underscored by fuller skirts. Belts of all widths and materials are designed to pinpoint a narrow circumference. Get in shape tout de suite so you can brave the measure.

OUT ON A LIMB . . . The advent of the mini is, after all, a natural. As the man in Oklahoma said about Kansas City, "They've gone about as far as they can go." But don't count the mini out—yet! Look for it to continue strongly in sportswear right into summer. If you want to try the midi without involving an expensive purchase, whip up a wrap-around felt skirt (no side seams needed) in the new mid-calf length and wear it right over your mini, as many chic women are doing right this minute.

CHOOSE YOUR SHOES . . . Heels are getting wider and higher and suddenly we're on our way back up again in higher heels. Although chunky in appearance, this fashion undoubtedly heralds the impending return of the feminine-looking shoe (Hurrah!)

In the meantime, complete your footnotes by wearing knee socks with sportswear and textured hose of all types for all occasions, but don't go too wild on pattern or you'll look like too much of a good thing!

Remember it's the look that fits in with your appearance, your figure and your life which will be the right look for THE NEW YOU.

JUST FOR YOU: Take a good long look in your closet and plan pour acquisitions to blend with, not replace, your current "collection." In any case, don't go overboard on new purchases because the fate of the future fashion is on a see-saw at the moment.

Persuade, Don't Preach To Youth

"The Church must persuade, not preach when dealing with young people on drugs."

Archbishop Harold Sexton, in addressing the general meeting of Anglican Church Women of the Diocese of British Columbia on Wednesday, expressed great concern for the growing consumption of drugs among young people. He felt that many users were victims of circumstances and should not be too roundly condemned.

"LSD is too dangerous to be played with at all," he added. "The church can be of most help by establishing personal contacts with these young people."

The archbishop announced that he had just received a letter from the Church Commission on Women, which endorsed the concept of one organization for women in the church. He commended the Anglican Church Women's efforts in this regard.

LIBERAL APPROACH

Discussing the Mother's Union, he said that the time has come for a more liberal approach to remarriage of divorced persons in the church —"not just anyone, but as a matter of justice towards innocent and unfortunate members of the church family."

The meeting of the ACW of the Diocese of B.C. resumes today for a workshop. It will be led by a Toronto team: Miss Lois Robin, youth portfolio; Mrs. D. Cumming, national vice-president; Mrs. C. Matthews, national chairman of devotions; Mrs. V. E. Martin, national representative for B.C.

A full slate of officers were returned. They are: president, Mrs. F. A. Goodwin; first vice-president, Mrs. H. McDonald; second vice-president, Miss Dorothea Lucas; recording secretary, Mrs. L. E. Small; corresponding secretary and Mrs. H. J. Newnham; treasurer.

Bavarian Beer Fest

Members of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will don appropriate costumes for a Bavarian beer fest, to be held in the clubhouse this Saturday from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. Prizes will be awarded for the best costumes. Bill Pringle's Bavarian Band will play rousing dance music and a supper of Bavarian-style delicacies will be served later in the evening.

Nurses Unhappy Punching Clock

OTTAWA (CP) —For two years a time clock has caused discontent among some nurses at the Ottawa General Hospital.

"We're supposed to be professionals; professional people shouldn't have to clock in," complained one in a newspaper survey.

Another with five children said the installation of the clock has changed her whole attitude toward her job.

"Sometimes I'm a little late leaving home because of the kids and I'm docked pay for arriving at the hospital a few minutes late.

"In the old days I often worked overtime and didn't bother to claim for it. Now if I work even 15 minutes extra I make sure I get paid."

Andre Lacroix, hospital public relations officer, said he was not aware of the discontent.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP) — Oilseed prices, especially flax, took downturns in trade on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Most losses resulted from increased selling by traders clearing their holdings for the weekend.

Rapeseed prices moved in a narrow range.

There was a light domestic feed and grain trade. A relatively steady rye market received support from the firm Chicago market.

CHICAGO (AP) — Commodities on the Board of Trade moved nervously over an irregular price range today.

Trade was moderate and fairly mixed.

It appeared that the trade was taking a watchful attitude concerning the international monetary conference at Stockholm.

Bowater Paper Corp. Executive Resigns

NEW YORK (AP) — Bowater Paper Corp. Ltd. says it is "reorganizing the management structure of its North American companies."

The company said details of the reorganization "will be announced in due course."

It said that "as a consequence of this reorganization it is with sincere regret they have to announce Douglass Campbell has resigned from Bowater." Campbell had been chairman and president of Bowater Paper Co. of New York, a division of the parent firm.

BM Extends International Interests

MONTREAL (UPI)—The Bank of Montreal has announced it has acquired an interest in Banque Transatlantique of France, in its second move toward international expansion since the beginning of 1968.

G. Arnold Hart, chairman of the board of the BM, noted in a statement that, apart from Paris offices, the Banque Transatlantique had subsidiaries in Morocco and Tunisia and is a subsidiary itself of Credit Industriel et Commercial, a leading French banking group.

In January, the BM obtained an interest in a leading West German private bank, Joh. Berenberg, Gossler and Company, of Hamburg. The 151-year-old Bank of Montreal has 1,043 offices of its own in Canada, U.S., United Kingdom, France, Germany, Mexico and Japan.

Industrial Bonds Stand Reversed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, in an overnight reversal, has decided to allow the treasury department to eliminate the tax exempt status of industrial bonds used by many states and communities to lure new industries.

MARKET SUMMARIES

Golds Skid at Toronto

Golds took a plunge in active trading today on the Toronto Stock Exchange, as European markets continued to report slipping bullion prices. Golds were also down on Wall Street.

Observers felt speculators were uncertain about the results of a meeting of monetary authorities at Stockholm and about the effect of Monday's reopening of the London gold market.

AT TORONTO—In golds, Dome plunged 5¼ to 59½, Kerr Addison ½ to 15⅞ and Camflo 30 cents to 5.15.

Oils and uraniums paced the advance in other sections of the market.

Scurry-Rainbow was up 3¼ to 29¾, Husky Oil 1⅝ to 21¼, Denison Mines 1½ to 68, Worldwide Energy 1.45 to 4.00 and Rio Algom Mines 1 to 31.

In industrials, Revelstoke and Falconbridge gained 1 each to 8⅜ and 94½. Ocean Cement fell 1 to 21.

Final volume was 3,705,000 shares compared with 3,495,000 Thursday.

AT NEW YORK blue chips and glamor stocks advanced.

Lockheed climbed about five points on news of its contract to produce the big passenger plane known as the airbus for TWA, Eastern Airlines and Airholdings Ltd. of Britain.

McDonnell Douglas, Lockheed's unsuccessful rival for the contract, dropped more than two points.

AT MONTREAL industrials, utilities and banks rose while papers slid in trading today.

Among industrials, Velcro climbed 2¼ to 44½, Credit-Foncier, a Quebec loan company, 1¼ to 51¼ and International Utilities ⅝ to 37⅛.

CPR, Canadian Vickers and Alcan added ½ to 49¼, eight and 24½.

AT LONDON stock market prices were higher at today's market opening in the wake of a strong voter protest against the government, shown in the results of four Thursday by-elections.

AT VANCOUVER gains outnumbered losses as the exchange took on a healthier tone today in forenoon trading.

Ocean Cement, which rose $2.25 Thursday on news of a stock takeover bid, lost $1.37 of the amount today at $20.62.

Torwest had the heaviest volume, 58,200 shares, to put on .03 at .56. Magnum traded 43,700 to gain .11 at $1.72.

Westcoast Resources, which lost its Japanese partner earlier this week, fell another .04 to .37 on trading of 31,800 shares. The stock lost .26 on Thursday.

Royal American and Stampede made three-cent gains in the oils and Captain International added .25 at $5.50.

Profit Drop Reported By Cominco

MONTREAL (CP) — Cominco Ltd. has reported a 21.8-per-cent drop in consolidated net earnings to $38,484,000 or $2.31 a share in 1967 form $49,183,000 or $2.59 a share in the previous year.

The company said in its annual report that the decrease was caused "primarily by lower prices received for lead and zinc and by higher costs, including interest and depreciation, offset by some extent by an increase in revenue from the chemical and fertilizer operations."

Sales revenue totalled $216,959,000, a three-per-cent reduction from the $224,566,000 in 1966.

Total sales revenues during the last year were divided in these proportions: 48 per cent from lead and zinc, 21 per cent from all other metallurgical products, 29 per cent from fertilizers and two per cent from industrial and other chemicals.

To Halt Service

EDMONTON (CP)—Northern Alberta Railways has applied to the Canadian Transport Commission for permission to discontinue its passenger service from Edmonton to Dawson Creek, B.C., NAR general manager K. R. Perry says.

Mr. Perry said in an interview the railway lost about $160,000 on the passenger operation last year.

$ EXCHANGE

VICTORIA—Purchase of U.S. funds in terms of the Canadian dollar was quoted today at $1.07⅜ for cheques, $1.07⅜ for notes and $1.05⅜ for silver. Sales were $1.08⅜ for cheques and $1.08⅜ for notes.

NEW YORK (CP) — Canadian dollar was unchanged at 92 21/64 in terms of U.S. funds. Pound sterling up ¼ at $2.40 5/32.

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar in terms of Canadian funds was up 1/32 at $1.08 5/16. Pound sterling was up 7/16 at $2.60 3/16.
